Today

Sobbing Dies Away.
A's and Cardinals.
Sheep to the Rescue.
One Yom Kippur Lesson.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WALL STREET gentlemen dried their eyes, stopped their deep sobs yesterday, and put stock prices up from 1 to 5 points.

The President's speech, to be delivered at Cleveland today, has been sent out, confidentially, to newspepers and news agencies, with PUBLICATION reserved, but no inhibition against showing the speech to tearful stock traders.

The speech, one of sound optimism, based on figures and facts, seems to have comforted the Wall Street sobbers.

GEORGE M. REYNOLDS, head of the big Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company, of Chicago, ended yesterday his fiftieth year in banking, with this sensible and comforting statement:

"Depressions don't kill people. We are recovering from this depression faster than we appreciate. There is nothing fundamentally the trouble with this country. In a few months the volume of business will startle the nation by its size."

YESTERDAY 11 of the biggest savings banks in New York City announced a reduction in the interest rate from 4½ to 4 per cent. Money is piling up in the savings banks, interest rates are low, money is "cheap." There is nothing the matter with us except timidity.

THE A's defeated the Cards in the series opener." If you do not know the A's and the Cards, you are one among ten thousand in this country.

The score was 5 to 2, the Athletics beating the Cardinals in the first championship baseball game. President Hoover was there with four Cabinet members to "lend to each victor a cheer."

He stopped off on his way to Cleveland.

Tells Safety Cong[illegible] of Antarctic Perils; [illegible] Aviation Progressing Here

Pittsburgh was congratulated on its nearly-complete city-county airport by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, conqueror of the North and South Poles, at Syria Mosque last night shortly after newly elected officers of the National Safety Council were named at an executive session.

Byrd, in his talk to nearly 4,000 people who jammed every inch of available space at the Mosque, said:

"I can realize how difficult it was to build an airport here. The physical requirements and the lay of the land was such that it must have been accomplished with difficulty. I predict a great future for aviation in the Pittsburgh district."

Three Pittsburghers were named to office in the election of the Congress that made Charles W. Bergquist, of Chicago, succeed C. E. Pettibone, of Boston, as president.

NORTHCOTT PUT TO DEATH

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., Oct. 2.—(INS.)—Gordon Stewart Northcott, 22, was hanged here today for the murder of three small boys on his Riverside County chicken ranch two years ago.

The trap which plunged Northcott to his death was sprung at 10:09 a. m. (1:09 p. m., Pittsburgh time).

Northcott was led into the death chamber at 10:06 o'clock and three minutes later plunged through the trap. He collapsed as he was led from the death cell and was supported by two guards.

For the first time in the history of the prison a condemned man was brought into the room blindfolded.

One hundred and forty persons witnessed the execution.

Half an hour before going to the gallows Northcott made an asserted suicide attempt, which prison authorities said was a "hoax."

"Goodby, Warden, I've done it."

With this declaration that he had taken poison, Northcutt threw a vial at the feet of Warden James B. Holohan, which he said had contained poison.

Dr. L. L. Stanley, prison physician, was immediately summoned and Northcott's stomach was pumped out.

AIRPORT DELAY MAKES CITY 'FLAG STOP' ON NEW ROUTE

TRANS-U. S. MAIL LOADS AT BUTLER

Planes to Pass Pittsburgh By Until City-County Field Is Completed Next Spring

Pittsburgh, instead of being the "aerial gateway of the West" at the outset of service over the new transcontinental airways scheduled to begin October 15, may find itself only a "flag-stop on a side-track" with the county airport held up for another six months.

Service into Pittsburgh, it was revealed, until the county port is ready for flying, will be side-tracked to Butler, the base of operations of Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, Inc., affiliated in the new aerial project with Transcontinental Air Transport and Western Air Express.

Definite plans of operation over the new route which will eventually offer 24-hour coast-to-coast mail, passenger and express service, are being worked out by officials of the operating companies in New York today.

PLANS UNCERTAIN

Representatives of interests in the new route meeting in New York include Richard A. Robbins, vice president and general manager, Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, Inc.; Harris M. Hanshue president and general manager Western Air Express; Daniel M. Sheaffer, chairman of the executive committee and J. L. Maddux president, Transcontinental Air Transport.

In a telegram to George R. Hann, president of Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Mr. Sheaffer emphasized the national importance of the new airways hookup and paid high compliment to the state of Pennsylvania for its foresight in providing lighted airways across the mountainous country, heretofore considered such an asset to the advancement of aviation. He said:

"We must speed the completion of the Columbus-Pittsburgh-Harrisburg-New York airway. The state of Pennsylvania is to be congratulated upon its foresight in surveying and constructing this airway in co-operation with the Department of Commerce. Pennsylvania's appropriation of $250,000 at the last Legislature for aviation development stands as a wonderful example.

SPEED NEW SCHEDULE

"We are delighted to have Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation associated with us in this undertaking and we are counting upon your co-operation in the earliest possible inauguration of our through schedule to New York with the new municipal airport and the Pittsburgh-Butler airport."

The Pittsburgh concern, it is generally conceded, will take over the eastern operations, probably all the way from Columbus, but whether T. A. T. will extend its present line from Port Columbus into Pittsburgh, the local concern confining its operations only from here to New York, has not been decided, it was declared.

Formal announcement of the operation plans will be forthcoming later in the day, it was believed.

Edison Winners Become Chums at College

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 2.—(INS.)—Thrown together by a common bond—that of being chosen by Thomas A. Edison as the two brightest students in the United States—Wilbur B. Huston, of Seattle, Wash., winner last year of the Edison Scholarship, and Arthur O. Williams, Jr., of East Providence, R. I., this year's winner, today had become fast friends and schoolmates at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Shortly after registration at the first day of school yesterday, Huston, now a sophomore, took his freshman friend in tow and pointed out the features of the school. Last evening they held a long discussion of their respective examinations.

Williams and Huston had first met at Englewood, N. J., at the home of the famous inventor, when Williams was declared the 1930 winner.

Outside of his studies, Huston has been on the editorial staff of the Tech Engineering News, and it was believed possible by the students there that the East Providence lad also would attempt to obtain a position on the staff. Williams had been on the staff of his high schol paper at East Providence High School, and in addition was president of his class, a mathematical society, and the dramatic club.

5 SLEEPERS DIE IN HOUSE CRASH

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—The sagging foundations of a Greenwich Village rooming house collapsed with a roar early today and the timbers crashed in upon 12 sleeping tenants, killing five and seriously injuring seven.

The crash reverberated through the winding streets of the neighborhood.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney and District Attorney Crain were on the spot shortly after police arrived. Their preliminary examination indicated the collapse was caused by undermining of the foundations during the demolition of four buildings adjoining the rooming house.

No precautions had been taken by the wreckers to protect the building, it was said, although neighbors had reported several days ago that the walls appeared to be sagging. The district attorney, after questioning some of the neighbors, ordered the arrest of all officials of the Penn Wrecking Company which had razed the four buildings.

Coolidge Sees Bright Prospects for Germany

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Oct. 2.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Every true friend of Germany and every supporter of sound human progress should hope for the success of President Von Hindenburg and Chancellor Bruening in their efforts to balance the budget and put the government finances on a stable foundation. By a more rigid economy they are attempting to meet national obligations.

Calvin Coolidge

So well informed an authority as S. Parker Gilbert was reported recently to be of the opinion that with firmness this could be done. Certainly the reparation payments, now running at less than $400,000,000 per year, cannot be an intolerable burden for a country of about 65,000,000 inhabitants having no great external debt and no large army nor navy.

Germany has been rapidly regaining the confidence of world opinion. Outside supervision of her internal affairs and military occupation of her territory have practically ceased. Violent statements made for political purposes at home or for foreign consumption need not be taken too seriously.

The responsible authorities of the republic are redeeming their pledges. Through such action the future of Germany appears secure. Any other course would mean certain disaster for her people and thereby grave injury to most of the rest of the world.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

CANNON AWAITS NEW CHARGES

By PIERCE MILLER,
International News Service.

(Copyright, 1930, by International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Showing few signs of stress or worry, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., today revealed himself as awaiting a chance to see the charges filed against him by four traveling elders of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Cannon, after a seclusion of two days with his bride, has taken up the threads of his work with the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Southern Methodist Church—or at least is again occupying the offices he maintains here for that organization in the shadow of the Capitol.

As to the charges now locked up in the archives of Bishop W. N. Ainsworth at Birmingham, Ala., Cannon made only two disclosures. He has not yet seen them, but for the first time he admitted that the filing of them brought him back from Brazil. He said:

"The only thing I care to say about the charges is that I have not yet seen them. Until I do and have a chance to digest them, there will be nothing.

"I had intended staying in Brazil until November, but as soon as I heard of the charges, I returned."

TAXI DRIVERS' DEMAND READY

Demands that the Parmelee Transportation Company recognize Fred A. Shaeffer as business agent, and that the company discontinue hiring drivers from other cities were to be made today by a committee of taxicab drivers meeting with Walter S. Laird, head of the Pittsburgh office of the company.

The outcome of this meeting may determine if Pittsburgh is to have another taxicab strike, union officials said.

At two meetings of Local No. 433, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers yesterday, members voted for the strike, officials said.

The result of the voting was sent to Daniel Tobin, Indianapolis, president of the organization.

The Pittsburgh local has a membership of 1,092, according to Peter V. Day, president. He charges that the company has been discharging union men "for no cause," and replacing them with non-union men.

LABOR ASKS DRY LAW CHANGE

Beer, Light Wine Seen as Solution of Unemployment; Means Work for Thousands

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Speaking for millions of organized workers, the American Federation of Labor today was prepared to demand modification of the Volstead Act to permit manufacture and sale of "light wines and beer" as a means of ending unemployment and restoring prosperity.

The high congress of organized labor, at its fiftieth annual convention in Boston next week, will again adopt a plank, calling for 2.75 per cent beer. The workers, however, will declare against repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and base their whole fight solely on economic issues.

WORRY POLITICIANS

The injection of this labor "wet" plank into the nation's never-ending prohibition war may embarrass political leaders, since the cry for beer has been hushed during the last few years. In the primaries held this year, wet candidates and wet organizations almost unanimously proposed outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, some suggesting alternative measures for control of the liquor trade, but others standing merely on repeal.

The drys will battle even this labor plank. One of the senatorial dry leaders, Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, long a friend of organized labor, declared he would oppose the "beer" plank.

JOBS FOR WORKERS

President William Green believes firmly that sale of beer and wines would put hundreds of thousands of unemployed back to work and bring back prosperity. He pointed out that the brewing industry would require 2,500,000 tons of coal and thus would boom the coal industry. Transportation of this fuel would require 50,000 railroad cars, he said, while transportation of raw materials and finished beer would require another 80,000 cars. This freight movement, he added, would end unemployment on the railroads.

Nation's Drink Bill Placed at 3 Billions

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—American drinkers, on the estimate of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, are spending $2,848,000,000 a year for their intoxicants under prohibition.

This figure, the association said, while not claimed to be infallible, was based on an 18-months' study of production of materials used in manufacturing spirits, wines and beer, deducting the estimated amounts used in legitimate industry. It calculated average retail prices of 50 cents a gallon for beer, $2.30 for wine and $11 for spirits.

The drink bill, it maintained, "exceeds the most liberal estimate of what we would have been spending if the Eighteenth Amendment had never been enacted."

HAVANA FACES MARTIAL LAW

HAVANA, Oct. 2.—(INS.)—Elaborate precautions were taken by the Cuban authorities today to prevent further unruly demonstrations when Rafael Trejo Gonzalez, a student who died from injuries received in the recent clash between University of Havana students and police, is buried this afternoon.

The gravity with which the situation is viewed was reflected today in the announcement of President Machado that an extraordinary session of Congress will be called tomorrow for the purpose of suspending the constitutional rights of Havana and its suburbs because of the recent clashes.

If Congress grants the president's request, the government will have the power of suppressing the press, public assembly, public speaking and changing of domiciles. It is reported President Machado may proclaim a virtual state of martial law if he finds it necessary to preserve law and order.

Toads Fast 300 Years, Not Eager for Food

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Three small toads apparently suffered no pangs of indigestion today after partaking of what archaeologists believed was their first meal in more than 300 years.

The toads, found near Gate, Okla., by J. B. Thoburn, State Historical Society curator, while excavating in an Indian mound, were fed flies yesterday. They were not eager for food, apparently, after their fast of undetermined length, but ate when food was placed in their mouths.

Dr. Frank Brooks, biologist at Oklahoma City University, classified the toads as belonging to the Pelobatidae family and to the genus Scaphiopus.

EASTLAND, Tex., Oct. 2.—(AP.)—The mumified body of "Old Rip," Eastland horned toad, which is reputed to have slept 31 years in the cornerstone of the county courthouse, has been stolen.

Someone removed the glass top to the marble tomb in the new courthouse lobby where the relic had been kept and removed "Old Rip's" remains.

County officials and others will offer a reward for recovery of Rip.

Hoover Poses for Cameras Here as Train Halts on Way to Cleveland

President Hoover tarried in Pittsburgh eight minutes this morning en route to Cleveland to address the American Bankers' Association.

His special train of seven coaches stopped at the Pennsylvania Railroad Station at 8:30 o'clock for change of engines before proceeding westward over the Fort Wayne division.

The President smilingly greeted photographers who asked him to pose. Wearing a dark business suit, from the coat folds of which peeped a brown sport jacket, and a brown hat, the President stood in a chilly wind while the cameramen flocked around the observation platform.

PRESIDENT'S PARTY SMALL

In the party traveling with the President were David S. Ingals, assistant secretary of the navy; Jeremiah Milbank, New York banker; Henry M. Robinson, of Los Angeles, old-time friend of the chief executive, and chairman of the drought relief committee, James Francis Burke, who had been a member of the group, left the train here.

Members of the party said the President was spending his time reading the newspapers and chatting as the trip was partly to give him a period of relaxation.

Few of the throng of commuters at the Pennsylvania Station knew the President was near. His train, designated by two white flags, passed through East Liberty station at 8:21 o'clock unobserved by the crowd waiting on the platforms.

TRAIN HALTS IN MOUNTAINS

En route westward from Philadelphia, where the President yesterday attended the opening game of the World Series between the Athletics and Cardinals, his special train halted last night at Mule's Shoe, Pa., in the mountains between Altoona and Gallitzin.

Cross ties were lashed to the track with chains to prevent it from slipping down the mountain grade if the mechanical devices failed. Switches leading onto the track were spiked so that other trains could not enter.

The train was to pick up Mrs. Hoover, at Bedford, O.

Hoover Arrives in Cleveland, Paraded Through City

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 2.—(INS.)—Making the first trip into the Middle West in a year, President Hoover arrived in Cleveland at noon today to address the American Bankers' Association concerning present-day business and the business future.

His speech in the Cleveland public auditorium at 8:30 tonight before some 7,000 of the country's leading bankers will be broadcast over nation-wide radio hookups. It is the first of the four speeches Mr. Hoover will deliver in the forthcoming week. They comprise his chief contribution to the off-year campaign for control of Congress.

HOOVER IN AUTO PARADE

Leaving the train at the Euclid Avenue Station instead of going into Cleveland's new Union Terminal, the President was put at the head of an automobile parade that took him through the heart of the city through crowd-lined sidewalks.

State and city officials and officers of the bankers' association comprised his reception committee, and there was a military escort to furnish the ceremonial note for Mr. Hoover's first visit to Cleveland.

Euclid avenue was thronged throughout the four-mile parade route, and the President was greeted with scattered applause.

RADICALS JEER

A small group of radicals in front of Hotel Cleveland exhibited large placards as the President's auto drew up to the entrance. These placards bore such legends as "Hoover Leads Wage-Cutters," and "Hoover Blesses the Scabs."

There were cat calls from the group as the President entered the hotel.

There was almost a campaign atmosphere about the President's trip through Ohio, due perhaps to the fact that the election is only five weeks away and Ohio is engaged in a hectic senatorial fight.

Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch, the Republican dry incumbent, joined the presidential party at Alliance, O., this morning and accompanied it into Cleveland, the home of his Democratic anti-dry opponent, Robert J. Buckley.

J. R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican National Committee, joined the party at Bedford, as did Mrs. Hoover, who has been in Indianapolis.

FAR WEST GETS NEXT CARDINAL

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 28.—Informed Vatican observers say that the next American cardinal will, in all probability, be from the United States itself, and from "an archdiocese toward the West."

Pope Pius XI, it is said, considers that the Atlantic seaboard of the United States is now quite liberally supplied with "princes of the church" in the persons of Cardinals O'Connell, Dougherty and Hayes, respectively archbishops of Boston, Philadelphia and New York. His desire to have the Catholic hierarchy in America more generally distributed led him to create Cardinal Mundelein, archbishop of Chicago, in the early summer of 1924, at the same time that he raised Cardinal Hayes to the purple.

On the next occasion, it seems, his intention is to cast even farther west, should he deem the time opportune to increase the number of America's representatives in the Sacred College. Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, of San Francisco, is freely predicted to be the choice.

'BAERING' DOWN ON THE NEWS WITH ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

When American motor cars withdrew from Paris auto show it became just a bicycle race.

American cars have mopped up all foreign shows on beauty, endurance and economy. Our space at the motor salon was under a dark stairway. Which is not the place where we do business.

So far as courtesy and consideration is concerned, the French should spell salon with two o's.

We have attended those Paris motor shows, and an American car has the same standing as old man Harrigan had around the house. When the folks had company the old man stayed in the kitchen.

He had to die to get into the parlor. It hasn't been so long since our champion team of firemen lost a life-saving tournament because a European committee said they were a lot of blooming acrobats.

Competition is only the life of trade until we control the market. Then international goodwill turns sour on the League of Nations' stomach.

They put our big apples at the bottom of the barrel because they're trying to sell their speckled ones first.

SUSPECT FIGHTS FINIELLO CASE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—(INS.)—Habeas corpus proceedings were being pushed today by counsel for Samuel Grossman, charged with the slaying of John Finiello, prohibition agent, formerly stationed in Pittsburgh, as the Philadelphia gangster sought to obtain his freedom.

New Jersey authorities are seeking to return the suspected man to Elizabeth, N. J., where Finiello was shot down during a raid on the Rising Sun brewery.

Grossman refused to waive extradition.

"They are trying to railroad me," he declared, denying any knowledge of the Finiello killing.

Fellow prohibition agents who were present when Finiello was shot, have identified Grossman as one of the trigger men in the actual killing, John D. Pennington, dry administrator for this district, said.

CHINESE ATTACK U. S. SHIP

SHANGHAI, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Red marauders attacked the U. S. S. Luzon, flagship of the American Yangtse River patrol, with field guns and machine guns near Yochow, Hunan province, today, but were repulsed when the Luzon opened up with her three-inch guns.

Rear Admiral Thomas T. Craven, commander of the American Yangtse patrol, was aboard the Luzon, which was hot hit by the rebel cannon fire. The attack came from the shore—a hail of missiles from field pieces and machine guns.

The Americans brought machine guns into action to supplement the fire from the larger pieces. The Reds were silenced.

This is the second time the Luzon has drawn rebel fire in recent weeks.

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Oct. 2.—Three towering pine trees, which for almost a century have been landmarks in the village of Morrisville, near here, were removed today because of relocation of Federal Highway Route 19. The three trees were familiar to all travelers of the road, which connects Pittsburgh with points in Central and Southern West Virginia.

HAYDEN IN TIME FOR BURIAL

Although Sergt. A. C. Hayden, Battery C, Second Field Artillery, arrived in Pittsburgh too late for the funeral services yesterday of his mother, Mrs. Rosina Hayden, of 7500 Calumet street, Swissvale, he attended the burial from the home this morning. He was brought to Rodgers Field in an airplane furnished him when he stepped from a ship bringing him from Panama when it docked in New York yesterday. He was returning home after serving three years in the Canal Zone.

When relatives realized the son would not be able to arrive in time for the funeral, the services were held at the home, but burial was postponed until this morning.

Cartridges Faise Clue to Skidmore

TYRONE, Pa., Oct. 2.—Hunt for George C. Skidmore, fugitive Pittsburgher wanted for the slaying of a gasoline station attendant, was renewed for a short time here when an automobile containing a large quantity of cartridges was hit by a westbound Pennsylvania passenger train late last night. Police thought Skidmore might have been fleeing in the car. It later proved to be owned by David B. Garver, of State College, Pa., who said his machine had been stolen last night while parked in Tyrone. He used the cartridges to shoot at marks, he asserted.

GUNS ANNOUNCE VETS' ARRIVAL

BOSTON, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—An advance delegation of the American Legion convention, which opens Monday, arrived in Boston with a bang. In fact there were several bangs, and a detail of the city's finest were rushed from the nearest police station to City Hall expecting to find an armed revolt.

The police found Capt. Charles Sherwood complacently putting away a smoking 45 caliber gun-shooter and his two companions, James Hass and Robert L. Shaw, grinning broadly.

Introductions seemed in order, so Sherwood explained the trio were deputies from San Diego, Cal., to the Legion convention. A salvo of pistol fire was their customary greeting to the mayors of the various cities they visited, they said. The three Californians arrived in an automobile that had been fitted out as a covered wagon.

ANDREE'S DIARY STILL UNREAD

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—The second diary on which it was hoped to learn the facts surrounding the deaths of Salomon August Andree and his two explorer companions on White Island has been found too damaged by moisture to read. Unless a new photographic process being tried out is successful the secret of their fate may remain forever locked in the Arctic.

Meanwhile, the gunboat Svenskasund bearing the bodies is expected here Sunday. Elaborate plans have been made for the funeral with schools, societies and the trade unions participating in the cortege.

King Gustav will place wreaths on the coffins at the city's oldest church, where the bodies will be taken after landing.

The armed robber forced Webb to accompany him to the bank, and hand over $800 in cash.

'Mother' Jones and Green In Last Chat, Perhaps

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Two veteran campaigners for labor—one a vigorous man and the other an aged, dying woman—have had another and perhaps their last talk.

She is "Mother" Jones, for whom doctors say death is imminent because of weakness induced by her hundred years of life. He is William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. They met over her sickbed on the outskirts of Washington.

Mr. Green had nothing to say today as to his visit, but it was understood it was made because he departs at once for the annual convention of the labor federation at Boston, which will last two or more weeks.

Admits Firing Building To Get Jail Sentence

Joseph Curry, 28, of Buffalo, N. Y., who pleaded guilty to arson today, saying that he wanted to be sent to jail because he was cold and hungry, will get regular meals, such as they are, for 5 to 10 years in the penitentiary, by grace of a sentence imposed by Judge George V. Moore, in Criminal Court.

Curry, said to be a drifter, on September 16, took up lodgings in a building of the H. C. Boyd Lumber Company, Coraopolis. During the night he set fire to the building. Firemen subdued the blaze with slight loss and Curry was arrested. On the stand he gave cold and hunger and a desire for regular meals and lodging as his only reason for turning firebug.

BYRD FORESEES NEW VENTURE AT POLE

Admiral, Guest Here, Calls Antarctic Still Fertile Field for Exploration

Hailed as a conquering hero, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, U. S. N., master of the North and South Poles by air, came to Pittsburgh last night and announced in an interview with a Sun-Telegraph reporter that any attempts at exploration by him in the future would have as their mecca the Antarctic regions.

Discussing the possibilities of a future flight to the area he made famous in his two-year exploration trip to the Polar regions Byrd said:

"My plans at the present time are indefinite. I don't know when my next exploration trip will be started, but, before it is, I have a $100,000 deficit to wipe out."

The deficit Byrd explained occurred because of the heavy expenses incurred during the exploration expedition from which he returned several months ago.

PLANS TO GO BACK

He was asked:

"Are the Antarctic regions still a field for fertile exploration?"

He replied:

"This region has unlimited opportunities for future exploration, and, although I don't know just what I'll do in the next few years, I'm sure that some time I'll go back and complete many projects we were unable to finish on the recent trip."

Byrd flew to Pittsburgh from Indiana, Pa., where he was the guest of that borough. He spoke last night at Syria Mosque as the guest of the National Safety Congress.

KDKA RECEPTION

After his talk and a program of exclusive motion pictures shown to a capacity audience, the explorer went to Westinghouse Radio Station KDKA in the William Penn Hotel, where he was guest of honor at a reception.

There he met Louis I. Kaufmann and Walter Meyers, radio announcers, who furnished him with news and announced entertainment to his party during the long Antarctic night.

3 PENNSYLVANIA PLANTS WIN

Three Pennsylvania industrial plants were among safety winners given awards today by the metals section, National Safety Congress, at is session in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

The awards, based on the first six months' record of 1930, were divided into five divisions and each of these separated into classes, (A) for plants employing less than 500 workers and (B) for larger mills. Awards were presented by former President E. C. Pettibone, as follows:

Steel mills: (A) American Rolling Mill Company, East works, Middleton, O.; (B) Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, Hubbard works, Hubbard, O.

Rolling, finishing and fabricating: (A) Weirton Steel Company, Clarksburg plant, Weirton, W. Va.; (B) Pittsburgh Steel Company, National Steel fabricating division, Monessen, Pa.

Iron foundries: (A) United States Pipe and Foundry Company, Scottdale; (B) United States Radiator Corporation, Edwardsville plant, Edwardsville, Ill.

Steel foundries: (A) Pratt & Letchworth, Buffalo; (B) American Rolling Mill Company, Central works, Middletown, O.

Heavy machine shops: (A) General Electric Company, Philadelphia; (B) Bryant Heater and Manufacturing Company, Cleveland.

The best record of 152 competing plants was established by the American Rolling Mill's East works with only five lost-time accidents among 3,000 workers.

Police Hunt Bandits, $28,000 Bank Loot

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(INS.)—Authorities continued their search for four bandits who yesterday held up the First State Bank of Matteson, a suburb, terrorized employes of the bank by their Wild West antics, and escaped with $3,000 in cash and $25,000 in mortgages.

The bandits' car, which had been stolen, was found abandoned a short time later. Police believe they had another machine "planted" for their getaway.

Jean Harlow's Mate Fights Divorce Suit

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 2.—(INS.)—An answer to the divorce suit filed by Jean Harlow, motion picture actress, was on file here today in which Charles F. McGrew II, of Chicago, requested the court to refuse his wife a divorce. The answer also asked that a restraining order tying up his money be refused. McGrew charged that his wife had appeared in allegedly improper pictures in violation of an agreement made between them after their marriage.

Urns Held to Link Chinese and Aztecs

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—The theory of a connection between Chinese and Aztec civilizations was announced here today by G. Ryden, archeologist, as the result of the finding of ancient funeral urns in a buried city in the state of Jalisco, Mexico. The urns are believed by Ryden to date back to at least 2,500 B. C.

Thales and Pythagoras, are snowbound in the Sierra Mountains, with 200 other picture actors, directors and helpers.

Ralph Bunos, herdsman, agrees to drive 4,000 sheep over the snowcovered highway and thus make a path for the imprisoned actors.

THAT SOUNDS NEW, and is older than moving pictures by a million years.

The world's roads were marked out originally by wandering animals. Heavy mammoths made paths through thick jungles, savage men followed. Mountain goats, sheep and wild asses marked trails along mountain sides.

Thibetan women carry heavy loads on their heads along trails made by the animals thousands of years ago, at an altitude that makes effort and even breathing impossible for those not especially trained.

Man's debt to the "lower animals" is great. Tiny creatures built his islands in the Pacific, sheep and horses made transportation and a settled life, instead of nomadic life, possible.

Man shows his gratitude by killing his friends, the animals, as rapidly as possible. Perhaps that is better for them. Their spirits may come back in a higher form.

THE SAYING in ancient Hebrew writings: "Jerusalem was destroyed because the schools were neglected," could not be said of the Jewish inhabitants in New York City now.

Yom Kippur, Day of Atonement, began last night at sundown with the chanting of the Kol Nidre, and today 400,000 children will be missing from New York City's public schools, absent to observe the holiday.

Jewish children neglect no opportunity for education, which explains a success that puzzles some.

According to the school authorities, 10,000 little Gentiles will also be missing from the public schools, "playing hookey," hoping that their absence from diminished classes will not be observed.

SIMPLE-HEARTED men sold Manhattan Island for $24, not suspecting how that island and land adjoining across the East River would develop. New York City, with more than 7,000,000 population, has real estate assessed at NINETEEN BILLION SEVEN HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS, which means that it is worth at least thirty billions.

That is impressive, and interesting.

IMPRESSIVE, and worth remembering is the fact that if the Indians had put their $24 out at 6 per cent with compound interest they would have enough money now to buy Manhattan Island several times over.

The difficulty is that you can't make that sort of compound interest investment, whereas you can buy a good piece of real estate, take care of it, and later have it take care of you.

OUR CRIME wave is bad, but news from China says it might be worse.

South of Kansu, bandits captured a town and killed everybody in it, 8,000 persons, except some young girls, carried off as prizes.

196 INDUSTRIES SHOW INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Preliminary returns on the government census of manufacturers for 1929 indicated that 196 out of 351 industries covered by census classification had increased their value of output 5.9 per cent over 1927 production.

The same group of industries had increased the number of wage earners employed by 5.2 per cent and had increased the total of wages paid by 7.1 per cent.

The value of products of the 196 industries studied for 1929 was $10,859,839,000 against $10,255,915,000 for the same industries in 1927. The number of working plants in 1929 was 28,382 against 26,696 in 1927, while for the same periods the average total of workers was 1,353,359 against 1,286,520.

Wage payments in 1929 were $1,736,495,000 against $1,621,935,000 in 1927.

Hawaiian Princess Drops U. S. Divorce

RENO, Nev., Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. Helen Campbell Lambert, Princess Kapiolani, of the Hawaiian royal family, has decided to dismiss the divorce suit she filed here last February against Andrew A. Lambert on the grounds of nonsupport and seek a divorce in Hawaii.

Mrs. Lambert is the daughter of Prince David and Princess Abigail. She married Lambert, a former German submarine commander, in San Francisco, November 21, 1923. They have three children.

BYRD PRAISES NEW COUNTY AIRPORT

Company. H. O. Allison of Pittsburgh was named as a local council member of the national committee.

Prior to Admiral Byrd's talk and showing of motion pictures filmed in the Antarctic at "Little America," he was honor guest at a dinner given by local officials of the National Safety Council in the Pittsburgh Athletic Club.

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong and County Public Works Director Norman Brown were guests, as were Mayor Charles H. Kline, John S. Herron, president of City Council; E. T. Whiter, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and C. E. Pettibone.

SAFETY AT POLE

Byrd said in part:

"The expedition to the South Pole was accomplished with the safety factor always in mind. We took 82 men to 'Little America' and returned with all in good health."

Stressing the hazardous conditions encountered at the Pole, the speaker said:

"Our dogs as well as the men experienced great difficulty in surviving the blizzards. To put an end to this hazard, tunnels were built, and the dogs kept there. Houses for the men were built apart from each other, and connected with tunnels to prevent a fire hazard. That was another way we stressed safety."

Special motion pictures depicting the progress of the expedition were shown for the first time last night, while Byrd gave a graphic description of the scenes.

Retiring National Safety Council President Pettibone introduced Byrd to the audience. Prior to the talk, banquets for delegates were held at the Schenley Hotel, Webster Hall, Syria Mosque and a number of other points in the Oakland district.

Members of executive committee representing industrial sections: Dr. Howard B. Fonda, New York; H. G. Hensel, Chicago; John S. Shaw, Wilmington; J. E. Walters, West Lynn, Mass.; Glenn H. Shaw, Akron; George H. Warfel, Omaha; Will Cooper, Chicago.

Twenty-six section meetings were held today, with several divisions electing officers. Luncheon meetings were held by the industrial nursing, mining and woodworking and lumber sections.

The social feature of the day will be an exhibitors' smile party tonight in the William Penn Hotel, given by the safety appliance manufacturers holding the exposition in Pirate Hall.

P. R. R. Officials At Byers Opening

The Pennsylvania Railroad, according to E. W. Smith, vice president, will participate in the formal opening, October 8, of the A. M. Byers plant, near Economy. A special train is scheduled to leave the Pennsylvania station at 9 a. m., and to return at 2 p. m. Several officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad will attend the affair.

MOVE LAUNCHED FOR CONGRESS BROADCASTS

Washington Paper Opens Poll Of Law Makers on Plan To Put Sessions on Air

Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—A movement for broadcasting proceedings of Congress has been launched by the Washington Herald in co-operation with Hearst Radio Service.

In an editorial in today's issue, the Herald says:

"Many voices are raised lamenting the lack of interest of the American people in public affairs. Public indifference, say some of our most estimable citizens, leads to political disintegration, graft and corruption.

"We are reminded often, by well-meaning folk, of the adage: 'Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.' We have had the opportunity to see how our liberties are curtailed—because vigilance was lacking—in the everyday operation of the prohibition laws. Granting the problem, what can be done about it?

"LOGICAL STEP"

"It is true political affairs these days have many competitors for the public attention. But the Washington Herald doubts very much that there is any real lack of interest on the part of the American people in things that vitally concern their welfare. We think they would like to know more of what is going on here in Washington, the nation's capital, rather than less. Why not give them the opportunity?

"Congress can do something, right away, to stimulate public interest in its debates and in national affairs generally. That is to have important congressional speeches brought to the American people over the radio. That is a natural and logical step in promoting a sound interest on the part of the public in its own business. It should be made, at the very next session, in December.

"FREE HEARING"

"The newspapers do their full part to inform the people of happenings at the capital. But there cannot be the personal touch in reading a report of a speech that one would obtain from hearing the speech itself.

"The right of free speech is a precious heritage of the American people. But there cannot be free speech without free hearing. The interplay of debate on Capitol Hill is available to the few who have time and leisure to read the Congressional Record, but the rest of us must content ourselves with such space as the newspapers can give it.

"We offer this suggestion to the Congress, with the feeling that it would do more than any one thing otherwise possible to re-create an American interest in national affairs—and in the men and women who direct them—let the House and Senate chambers be wired at once, so that the important speeches of the next session may be carried to the people, everywhere, over the radio."

BEGIN POLL TO DECIDE

Hearst Radio Service is beginning a poll of encumbent senators and candidates for the House and Senate, to determine their attitude toward broadcasting of Congressional proceedings.

One attempt to lift the barriers on broadcasting of Congress was made in 1928. Senator Clarence C. Dill, (Dem.), Washington, introduced a resolution calling for the equipment of the desk of each senator with radio microphones and for the Committee of Rules of the Senate to make arrangements for "the broadcasting of such proceedings of the Senate as the committee may determine through such radio broadcastings as it may be possible to arrange without expense to the Senate or government."

Senator Dill hoped that both houses would make broadcasting arrangements. His resolution was tabled.

Assurances have been given Hearst Radio Service E. J. Clough, director, said, that chain broadcasters would welcome an opportunity to broadcast the important deliberations of the Senate and House, such as debates and votes on appropriation measures, treaties, presidential appointments and tariff bills.

Marriage Licenses Decline in Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—A sharp drop in the number of marriages reported in the Chicago area was attributed by County Clerk Robert Sweitzer to present depressed economic conditions.

For the first nine months of this year there were 4,108 fewer licenses issued than during the same period last year. June, always a banner month, showed a decrease of nearly 1,000 as compared with June, 1929.

14 Dead in English Coal Mine Blast

WALSALL, Staffs, England, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Fourteen persons were killed last night in an explosion in the Grove Colliery at Brown Hills, near here. The explosion occurred deep in the pit, and government mine inspectors, who descended with colliery officials, found the workings full of carbon monoxide gas. About 1,000 men were employed in the mines.

Hoeflar, African Hunter, Visits Here

Paul L. Hoeflar, noted African explorer and big game hunter, arrived in Pittsburgh today where he will deliver a series of lectures before school children and several clubs.

He appears here in conjunction with the showing at the Warner Theater of a motion picture version of his travels.

Widow Picks Man as Killer Of Mate After 33 Years

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—(INS.)—Thirty-three years ago, Robert Atchinson galloped his horse into the yard of an Oklahoma Territory homestead, rested his rifle on his hip, and shot John Coontz dead.

Today, the aged widow of John Coontz, her sight and hearing undimmed by the passage of time, took the witness stand before United States Commissioner David Head and identified the man she claims killed her husband.

"That's the man," cried Mrs. Leonette Coontz Doxden, pointing a gnarled accusing finger at Joseph R. Adkins, alias Robert Atchinson.

Robert Atchinson was convicted of that murder 33 years ago, and sentenced to life imprisonment, but he escaped from El Rano Jail shortly after the trial. Atchinson in response, said:

"I am not the man you want. Robert Atchinson, the man who killed John Coontz, was my cousin. He died in New Mexico a year or two after he escaped from that jail in Oklahoma."

You Can Always Depend On DONAHOE Advertisements!

Quoting from the misleading advertisement of a certain Pittsburgh food store published on August 11, 1930: "With crops ruined throughout the country canned fruits and vegetables will be scarcer next winter than fresh fruits and vegetables are now . . . We feel that we should give our customers an opportunity to supply their needs NOW while stocks and assortments are complete."

Was this advertisement the result of poor guesswork on actual conditions or was it an attempt to unload on the public a lot of old 1929 pack canned goods?

Quoting from DONAHOE'S advertisement, August 12, 1930: "The great fruit-and-berry-producing states west of the Rocky Mountains—California, Washington, Oregon, etc.—from which practically all our canned fruits and berries come—have not been affected and are now busy canning for the fall season.

Vegetables in many vegetable-producing states also have not been affected and are being canned now for the fall season."

SUIT HOLDS UP PHILADELPHIA MACHINES

Vote Equipment in Storage Pending Court Ruling On Taxpayer's Fight

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—Five hundred voting machines are stored in a warehouse here ready for the November 4 election, but a number of late developments have arisen which may prevent their use.

The latest attempt to bar machines from the city elections was made when a taxpayer bill in equity was filed in court by John W. Glover and his wife, Alice.

They asked that county commissioners be restrained from purchasing or paying out city money for the 600 voting machines which have already been received from the Automatic Voting Machine Corporation of Jamestown, N. Y. These machines are now in the Terminal Warehouse at Delaware avenue and Brown street.

CHANGES SOUGHT

Another factor which may stand in the way of machine elections next month is the request of the commissioners that the Automatic corporation repair every machine so that lock outs should be possible for blank spaces.

Glover's contention in asking for the bill in equity is that the construction of the Jamestown company machine does not conform with the voting machine act of April 18, 1929, providing for absolute secrecy.

He also complains that the machine as required by the act cannot be locked against use when not being officially used at an election and further that it does not provide against any person seeing the number of votes registered for any candidate or tampering with any of the registering mechanisms.

DENIES SAFEGUARDS

Glover, who is active in Forty-second ward politics, further avers that the Jamestown machines have no safeguards providing against mistake or fraud and that the mechanism is so constructed that a voter may operate it intending to register his vote and at the same time the mechanism can be so manipulated no vote is registered.

Declaring such machines would make an election illegal, Glover asks the commissioners to enjoin their use. He made an unsuccessful attempt to prevent their use in some divisions at the last May primary.

Judge McDevitt will fix a date for the hearing on the bill later.

COUNSEL TO DECIDE

As to the repair matter, the commissioners went into conference with Russell F. Griffen, Automatic Corporation vice president, and the latter attempted to demonstrate that the lockouts were possible without repairs on the machines. The decision was that they leave the matter in the hands of William T. Connor, counsel for the commissioners, and let him decide whether actual repairs are necessary.

The 500 machines are slated to be used in 31 of the 48 wards in the city. They were given a trial in 31 divisions of the First Ward at the May primaries and were declared successful, returns from those divisions coming in two or three hours sooner than the others.

George F. Holmes, president of the county commissioners, had this to say:

"We intend to comply with the law and we want the machines equipped with those devices declared necessary by the act. The manufacturer wants to dictate to the county commissioners whether spaces shall or shall not be locked out. That is for us to determine. If vote marks are registered in blank spaces, election officers who made errors in their return sheets could plead it was due to confusion over the vote registered for non-existent candidates."

'Practical-Joke' Hanging Kills Man

MANDAN, N. D., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Edward Loran was a practical joker. He often had told his brother, Ted, that he planned to play a good one on his wife, make her believe he had hanged himself. Today funeral arrangements were being made for Edward after his body had been found suspended from a noose in his basement. Ted Loran said his brother's body was about one-fourth of an inch off the floor. He thought Edward had misjudged the length of the rope.

Swing of Brassie In Court Saves Woman $25,000

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Alice Barber gave a $25,000 golf demonstration in Superior Court, showing a jury how she swings a brassie, and won out freedom from a claim of $25,000 damages.

She was demonstrating a previous stroke which was the basis of the suit filed by Mrs. Mattie Finn, who charged that Mrs. Barber's brassie ended up in her face, permanently impairing her sight.

"I kept my head down, as all golfers should, hit the ball and followed through," Mrs. Barber related as she swung neatly. Mrs. Finn testified Mrs. Barber hit the ball without giving her time to get out of the way.

The jury, deliberating five minutes, returned a verdict for Mrs. Barber.

BOOK BY FORD URGES BIG PAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Henry Ford blames the present industrial depression on business men who watched the stock market instead of their business, and believes the cure lies in quantity production and intensive marketing of high-class goods.

The automobile wizard outlines his opinion in a book, "Moving Forward," which will be published by Doubleday, Doran and Company. He predicts that in 1950 the American workingman will get a minimum wage of $27 a day, advocates high wages as one of the fundamental laws of business, and says genuine overproduction has never existed.

The book, written in collaboration with Samuel Crowther, says the fundamentals of business principles are: First, to make more and better goods as cheaply as possible and force them on the market; second, to strive always for higher quality and lower prices and costs; third, to raise wages gradually and continuously and never to cut them; and fourth, to get the goods to the consumer economically so he may benefit by low cost production.

9 LIQUOR RAIDS NET 5 STILLS

BRITTEN WARNS PEACE TREATY BREEDS WAR

Revised, Says Chairman House Naval Committee Versailles Pact Must Be

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Declaring the Versailles treaty which brought the World War to a close is a constant menace to peace, Representative Fred A. Britten (Rep.), of Illinois, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, joined forces with those advocating revision of the pact.

Basing his conclusions in part upon a personal study of conditions in Europe, Chairman Britten predicted the allied nations will be forced to agree to revision in the not far distant future.

U. S. INVOLVED

Although the United States concluded a separate peace with the Central Powers, he believes the question is of vital interest to this nation. He said:

"I think revision of the treaty of Versailles is coming. All Europe is much more interested in discussing the possibility of revising the treaty than are we in the United States. If Woodrow Wilson's 14 points, which brought about the Armistice, had been adhered to by himself, Lloyd George, Clemenceau, Sonino and Orlando, the treaty of Versailles could not now be so severely attacked, and many of the present irritating boundaries in Europe would not prevail.

"The greatest obstacle to world peace are the things left undone by the Versailles Treaty or the articles of the treaty which deliberately miscarried the good intentions of Woodrow Wilson.

SEES WAR THREAT

"I am quite confident that Europe was not more dangerously near a war in 1914 than she is today, and although war may be averted for a number of years, it can only be done by a revision of the treaty, a revision of boundary lines, the abolition of the Polish corridor which cuts the present Germany in two, and by the good graces of God himself.

"The preparatory disarmament conference of the League of Nations has for the past six years been attempting to agree upon a formula for general European disarmament, but even this has been found impossible. Every nation is armed to the teeth while calling upon his neighbor to disarm, because every nation distrusts its neighbor but professes confidence in itself.

BOUNDARY TANGLES

"The boundaries of Czecho-Slovakia include several million Germans who will never submit to Czech rule. There are several hundred thousand Germans in the beautiful Meran district of Northern Italy who will always refuse to become Italians. Russia will demand her seacoast from Latvia, Lithuania, Esthonia and Poland when the time appears ripe to do so. Austria must either be annexed to Germany or forever remain a pauper state. Jugoslavia is ready to clash with Italy on the slightest provocation for the return of her sole important harbor, Trieste, which was given to Italy by the treaty makers.

"These are but a few reasons why I think another war is imminent, unless the predominant irritant—the Treaty of Versailles—is made over."

Bank Crash Victim Saves at Home, Loses in Fire

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 2.—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the home of Charles Boyd, near Shady Grove Park, with a loss placed at $12,000. The owner and his son had been coon hunting, returning about 3 a. m. Neighbors discovered the flames during their absence.

In addition to the home and furniture, $200 in cash was destroyed. Hidden beneath a carpet, it represented the amount Boyd had saved since the failure of a bank in Uniontown wiped out his original funds.

Pittsburgh Woman Returns on Tuscania

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Mrs. B. M. Levy, Denniston avenue, Pittsburgh, returned to the United States on the Tuscania from a summer's vacation spent on the Continent.

FIRE DAMAGES N. S. STORE

North Side firemen battled more than an hour early today before they subdued a fire on the second and third floors of a four-story brick building at 103 and 107 Federal street.

The flames were discovered by Charles Wheeler, a watchman living on the fourth floor of 109 Federal street, the first floor of which is occupied by the Jays Wallpaper Company.

The first floors of 105 and 107 are occupied by the Briceland Furniture Company, which uses the upper floors as storage rooms.

The wallpaper store and the Klopfer millinery store at 111 were slightly damaged by smoke and water.

Battalion Chief Louis Steckle estimated the damage at $1,500.

FIRE CAUTIONS HERE PRAISED

The educational movement in Pittsburgh for lower fire losses was praised by Frank H. Wentworth, a member of the fire waste council of the United States Chamber of Commerce, in an address at the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce yesterday. Speaking before deputy fire chiefs and others representing fire departments in this section, Wentworth said Pittsburgh had advanced more in fire prevention work than most cities of the country. The address was a forerunner of "Fire Prevention Week," to be observed here next week.

Wentworth, managing director of the National Fire Prevention Association, made a second address last night, speaking before some 100 janitors, guards, building watchmen and superintendents. He gave them hints on what each might do to eliminate fire hazards.

Civil War Injury Kills Veteran Here at 84

Injuries suffered in a skirmish at Chambersburg during the Civil War were said to have been responsible today for the death of Robert Walker, 84, of Dallas avenue, Natrona Heights.

The veteran's knee was crushed between two horses, and Walker has been an invalid since that time.

Church Neglect Held Aid to Lynching

ATLANTA, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Prominent clerical and lay members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in a statement today, ascribed the persistence of lynching to the neglect of religious leaders to impress the people with the "solemn warnings of the church on this subject" and weakness and complicity on the part of public officials.

MAY AGAIN ASK LEFT TURN BAN

The proposal to abolish left turns on the Boulevard of the Allies, negatived by Council sitting as a committee yesterday, may be reintroduced in a new form by the Department of Public Safety.

The ordinance was disapproved after representatives of the United States Postoffice and business men of the district voiced their opposition. The mail trucks use the boulevard to reach the garage on Magee street.

JEWS OBSERVE YOM KIPPUR

Today was a day of penitence fasting and prayer for Jews of the Pittsburgh district in observance of Yom Kippur Day of Atonement.

The solemn festival began at sunset last night with the chant of Kol Nidre and will conclude with sunset tonight. Twenty-four hour services were held in many orthodox synagogues while in the Reformed temples appropriate exercises were held at intervals.

Abstinence from food was accompanied by meditation confession of sins and supplication for divine mercy. In compliance with the ancient ritual rabbis bent the knee in prayer in a ceremony dating back to the annual entrance of the high priest to the Holy of Holies of the Tabernacle.

Thousands have bought the radio MARCONI praises

Sensational new instrument called "a great advance" by inventor of radio!

Senatore Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of radio, leader of radio science for 36 years, who praises the new Radiola!

Here is a new radio so far advanced . . . so skillfully engineered . . . so startling in performance that it has been acclaimed by the greatest celebrity in the radio art — Marconi himself — as "a great advance in radio reception!"

With faith in Marconi's expert judgment . . . and with the utmost confidence in any instrument bearing the RCA trademark . . . thousands have visited Radiola dealers throughout America to see and hear this latest triumph of radio science!

"Such gorgeous tone," they exclaimed! "Thrilling . . . lifelike . . . brings in distant stations so easily . . . what exquisite cabinets . . . such marvelous value!"

Climax of 7 Years' Research

The new Radiola is the result of seven years' development of the Super-Heterodyne principle. It is the finest home instrument that the world's most brilliant group of radio engineers can build. You can always depend on RCA for the ultimate in radio, for RCA has always been the recognized leader of the industry, the creator of practically every great advance in radio.

The new Radiola is four times more sensitive, three times more selective than any recent model. It meets perfectly modern broadcasting conditions.

The government has assigned to each broadcasting station a broadcasting channel of a standard 10-kilocycle width. The new Radiola is so expertly designed that it receives all of the program in the full width of the channel — no more — no less. Hence the remarkable tone quality, the startling realism, the exceptional freedom from overlapping, noise and distortion.

Never Before Such Value!

This New instrument is the greatest value in Radiola history. Four years ago a Radiola Super-Heterodyne Console model cost $570. Today, this exquisite model, with all its revolutionary improvements, comes into your home for only $142.50, less Radiotrons.

These facts might seem sensational! But it is so easy for you to prove them to your own satisfaction. See and hear this new instrument which the Radiola factories are working night and day to produce in quantities sufficient to meet the demand. Look for the famous RCA trade-mark. Insist upon it. It is your guarantee of the utmost in modern radio and continued pleasure through the years.

MASTER MYSTERIES — Murders at the Circus — By ARTHUR HOERL

QUEEN ANNE TURNING A DOUBLE SOMER-SAULT, SHE STRAIGHTENED OUT AND CLUTCHED FOR THE SWINGING TRAPEZE. IT WAS NOT THERE! IT SWUNG TWO FEET ABOVE HER STRETCHING FINGERS!
24 FT.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Beller, ringmaster of the Beller & Swarney Circus, is killed under mysterious circumstances. Emily, an ill-tempered elephant, tramples him to death. Queen Anne, the star aerialist, is attacked in her wagon-home by an unknown person. Dale, called in by Swarney to investigate, learns that Beller's death was probably not accidental, but deliberate murder. Swarney admits bitter arguments with Beller over ownership of the circus. Beebo, the master clown, believes his daughter, Tito, was wronged by Beller, whom he also hated over a grievance of his son. Cap. Wiegle, the animal trainer, and Queen Anne's husband, is in love with Adele, Beller's widow.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER IV.

That night the outfit traveled north. With the first streaks of dawn the halt came in Baldwin, still in New Jersey, some miles south of the New York state line. Baldwin was booked for Friday and Saturday. After that the circus went on into New York gradually bearing westward, ending late in the summer, somewhere in Iowa. Then south to elude winter, and further west.

The first night Dale went to sleep with a strange lullaby—the rhythmical staccato of the sledges of the roustabouts as they wedded tent posts and earth. Dale had watched the dawn come up, in one of the extra wagons of the outfit. It was a smaller edition of Swarney's No. 2 wagon. All night he had been jostled in a chair, a lamp swinging over his head, as he carefully, and between long, thoughtful pauses, wrote down the actors in the strange drama he had been called in to witness.

This was his record:

Roy Swarney—has motive for Beller's death; evidence points to him but all circumstantial and too obvious.

Adele Beller—her apparent infatuation with Cap Wiegle gives her a motive. No other evidence.

Cap Wiegle—has a motive; a good possibility because of having charge of animals; has sufficient courage.

Anne Wiegle—no apparent motive; must go deeper into the Adele-Anne-Cap Wiegle triangle.

Beebo Meister—motive for the crime; probably suspects Beeler of wronging his daughter, strengthening motive. Might easily think up such a horrible death as was meted out to Beller.

Tito Meister—if Beller wronged her has possible motive. Her type hardly fits the crime, however.

Dan McLaughlin—no motive yet known.

All others—no one else in outfit yet known to have motive for wanting Beller dead; in fact, no signs of anyone having close association with him.

Who could possibly be next victim? Tito? . . . Why? . . . Anne? . . . Maybe? . . . Beebo? . . . Why and who? . . .

When the wagon came to a stop in Baldwin, Dale's senses, alert all night, were lulled by the lack of motion. He folded the paper and put it into his bill-fold, stretched out on the cot and fell asleep even with the increasing hubbub outside.

He awoke at ten, refreshed by the few hours sleep. He wandered about the grounds for awhile. Then he went to the animals' quarters. Emily would be interesting to see. Dan McLaughlin happened to be there.

"This is the beast that killed Beller, eh?"

McLaughlin nodded.

"Keep watchman here all night, don't you? Funny how it could have happened and not be seen."

"Dinsmore was on that night. He didn't see anything because he was drunk! There's a hard an' fast rule against drinkin' on duty—there's gotta be. Swarney kicked him out the next day."

"No chance of talking to the man, then?"

"Not a chance. He's through an' gone fer good."

Emily had both forefeet and both hindfeet chained together, and a leader from the chains was attached to a spike driven into the ground. The beast could not move very much, merely swaying its huge body and trumpeting occasionally.

The lions, fascinated Dale, too. Their long, lithe, powerful bodies circled interminably about the small cages.

When Dale stepped out in the open later he saw Cap. Wiegle crossing the grounds rapidly, so Dale strolled leisurely to the Wiegle wagon and knocked at the door. Anne was inside. She was surprised at the intrusion until Dale introduced himself. He noticed that she watched him rather, intuition making her suspicious.

There was nothing to be gained by stalling, so Robin Dale came right to the point.

"Did you recognize your late visitor the other night?"

The question had a startling effect upon her. She stiffened and then a look of cold wariness came into her eyes.

"What do you know about it?"

"If I knew anything I wouldn't be asking you, now would I?"

After a pause, during which her eyes pierced through Dale, although he never wavered in his gaze, she spoke coldly.

"It isn't any of your buisness anyway."

"But you haven't answered my question. Don't you want to?"

"No, I don't! I can handle my own affairs—but you can hear this: They're not going to get away with it! I know too much."

"About Beller's death maybe?" insinuated Dale.

"Maybe I know something, and maybe I don't. If I want to shut up about it maybe I have my own reasons. If everybody in the world knows what I know what good'll it do me?"

That was all he could get from Anne Wiegle. He left the wagon quite abruptly and was astonished to see Beebo Meister slinking off hurriedly. Beebo had unquestionably been listening to all that had gone on inside. Dale wondered why Beebo was so interested.

Dale had another surprise after the early performance. Swarney sent for him and the two had dinner together in No. 2.

"Queen Anne knows something about Beller's death, doesn't she?" were the startling words Swarney spoke.

"I don't know," evaded Dale, and waited.

"She's been shootin' her mouth off, I hear. I hate to call in the police and hold up the show, but if she knows anything she ought to speak up. What do you think, Dale?"

"Personally, I don't think she has any proof, whatever she may know—so the police would gain you nothing. Knowing a crime's been committed and proving it are two very, very, different things."

"How you gettin' along, Dale?"

"So-so . . . have an idea that may turn out okay. I'd rather keep it to myself awhile for I may be all wrong. There's a fiend prowling around these grounds, that's sure. When things start to happen you'll be able to grab it."

Even Robin Dale was not prepared for the swiftness with which things started. The unexpectedness of the fiendish act that Dale witnessed with his own eyes circumvented his optimistic prophecy that they would be able to catch the demon that was loose in their midst.

It occured at the night performance on Friday, the day on which Dale talked to Anne Wiegle. Queen Anne was about to do her death-defying act—catapulting from one flying trapeze, doing a double somersault and catching the second swinging trapeze. The height and the swing of these trapeze were always carefully gauged. They were raised or lowered to the proper levels by drums at one side of the performers' entrance.

Dale, in the audience, had glimpsed Roy Swarney at this entrance as Queen Anne's act started. He was so engrossed in her performance that he saw nothing else until, turning a double somersault, she straightened out and clutched for the swinging trapeze. It was not there! It swung, two feet above her stretching fingers!

There was a shout of dismay from the audience. Almost as one it came to its feet as Queen Anne crashed to the ground and lay in an inert heap!

"Colgate's stands in a class by itself"

says Henry Leffman, M. D., Ph. D., D. D. S.*

Distinguished Dental and Medical Authority of Philadelphia

Dr. Leffman says:

"I have made surface tension determinations of eight samples of toothpastes. One of these samples is Colgate's toothpaste. All samples were in original packages as furnished in the open market.

"It is seen that Colgate's exhibits the lowest surface tension.

"Colgate's preparation, therefore, gets into the crevices between the teeth, washing out decaying food, etc.

"The fact that dental authorities agree that a dentifrice, to be really effective, must thoroughly cleanse the teeth and gums, is evidenced by the statement of A. R. Schermerhorn, D.D.S., who states in 'The Dental Cosmos' for July, 1929 (page 690): 'A dentifrice has only one function to perform and that is to clean teeth safely and well.' Low surface tension is conducive to this, while high surface tension works against it.

"Colgate's stands in a class by itself, lowering the surface tension far more than any of the seven other samples. Four of the samples gave a surface tension not much below that of plain water, while the three other samples were intermediate."

Sincerely,

Henry Leffman, M.D., D.D.S.

"DENTAL authorities agree," says Dr. Henry Leffman, "that a dentifrice, to be really effective, must thoroughly cleanse the teeth and gums."

With that as the first consideration, Dr. Leffman took eight samples of toothpaste now on the market. He tested them. He analyzed them. And he then announced, without qualification, that "Colgate's stands in a class by itself!"

That is a tribute not to be taken lightly. For Dr. Leffman is a leader in the medical and dental world—and a scientist whose reputation extends throughout the country.

He finds that "Colgate's exhibits the lowest surface tension—that it therefore gets into the crevices between the teeth, washing out decaying food particles."

All of these facts are well known to the dental profession. That is why they have been recommending Colgate's for the past 30 years.

That is why more people use Colgate's today than any other toothpaste. And why you, too, should choose this penetrating dentifrice which reaches the hidden surfaces that sluggish toothpastes cannot keep clean.

GLASS DIAMOND SELLER FINED

Clyde Youren, 40, "no home," picked out the wrong customers—two city detectives—for the sale of a "diamond" ring and today was fined $25 after the detectives testified the ring, which Youren said was worth $1,000, proved to have only a glass setting. The officers told Magistrate Rothenberg, in Central Police Court, Youren offered the ring for 50 cents.

Alleged to have presented a series of bogus checks to the Seventh Avenue Hotel, James Moran, 38, Mayville, Ill., was held when he was unable to explain initials tatooed on his arm.

Ray West, 216 Third avenue, alleged to have taken $700 worth of carpenter tools, was held for court on a larceny charge. W. J. Hillman, 1006 Evergreen road, and L. W. Swartz, 570 Oakwood street, carpenters working on a building in Third avenue, make the complaint.

RECOVER HOTEL MAN'S AUTO

Just who "the policeman" was that stole his automobile Tuesday night, Scott Bailey, proprietor of Bailey's Hotel, a Negro hostelry at 1533 Center avenue, was anxious to know today.

From another policeman, Bailey said he learned the car was driven away from the stage entrance of the Nixon Theater by a policeman whose first name only was known to Bailey's informant. The chauffeur of the Bailey limousine dropped into the theater to inquire if the Negro stars appearing there in the current play were ready for their trip to the hotel where they are stopping. The machine was recovered last night in Beechview. Save for a dented fender, the car was otherwise undamaged.

ADMITS GIVING WIFE POISON

MARTINSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 2.—(AP.)—A few hours after he had refused to enter a plea to an indictment charging him with murder for the death of his wife, Ernest Pryor, 32, confessed that he planned to kill Mrs. Pryor so that she would not interfere with his love affair with her second cousin, Miss Elsie Ham.

In the confession, Pryor related that he gave his wife, Thelma Pryor, a large dose of poison on August 18, and that the following day, when she appeared to be recovering, he administered another potion. She died soon afterward.

Pryor's statement said he was "ready to plead guilty and to throw myself upon the mercy of the court." When he refused to plead on arraignment, Judge Williams entered a plea of not guilty for him, but no trial date was set.

FREE BUS RIDES AT DEDICATION

Extra street car service will be available to the public both before and after the dedication of the Westinghouse Memorial in Schenley Park Monday afternoon, and free bus service will be provided from 1:15 to 2:45 p. m. between the Carnegie Library and the memorial. It is suggested that motorists approach the park from the Forbes street entrance near the golf course.

Most of the persons to take part in the unveiling and dedication will arrive in Pittsburgh Monday morning. It is expected more than 300 nationally prominent men will be present to pay tribute to George Westinghouse. All shops and offices of the Westinghouse plants will be closed. The memorial will be unveiled by Herman Westinghouse Fletcher, grand-nephew of George Westinghouse and a student at the University of Virginia.

Real Estate

Building permits issued in Pittsburgh in September declined sharply from the previous month and the same month last year, according to the report of the Bureau of Building Inspection. Home building was in small volume and there were no large jobs to increase the totals. The Nineteenth Ward in the South Hills was the most active.

SHE LOVED TO EAT BUT WAS ALWAYS PUNISHED FOR IT

Much of the suffering from so-called "indigestion" or acid-dyspepsia could be avoided if everyone could know what thousands like Miss Lillian Ralston have learned. This New York City business woman, who lives at 1160 Park Avenue, says:

"I suffered from headaches and heartburn after meals; couldn't sleep like I should; never felt right.

"For five years I experimented with medicines and treatments, until I learned about Pape's Diapepsin. I have used three packages now; have gained five pounds, and feel fine. I eat meats and anything I please. At the first sign of discomfort I chew a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin and the trouble is gone in a minute."

If you, too, suffer from sourness, gas, belching, nausea, headaches, dizziness, or pain after eating—either regularly or just at times, get a box of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist. Then you need never worry again about what you eat. These tablets are like candy and just as harmless. If you would like to try them before buying, write Pape's Diapepsin, Wheeling, W. REGISTER, PLEA TO DEMOCRATS

David I. Lawrence Democratic county chairman has forwarded notices to all party workers asking them to call voters' attention to the fact that Saturday is the last day on which they may register as a qualification to cast a ballot in the November election. He stated:

"This is a battle on which the eyes of the nation are centered and those who oppose the Eighteenth amendment will make a great mistake if they fail to realize the importance of the election.

"There are hundreds of anti-dry voters who will fail to register unless their attention is directed to the importance of the issue faced.

"The Democratic platform is pledged to the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, the Volstead act and the Pennsylvania Snyder-Armstrong act. These are the regulations under which the futile attempt is made to enforce prohibition. Pinchot is for all these, but, in the present campaign, in view of the national sweep for a change of the laws, is afraid to say so."

Small Print, Lens, Reading Suggestion

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske has a scheme whereby Dr. Charles W. Eliot's five-foot shelf would be cut to three inches. It is to reduce the ordinary printed page 25 times, print 45 pages on a card and read through a magnifying lens. He believes his system minimizes eye strain as only one eye is used at a time and reduces the cost of literature. In a test he read 200,000 words at one sitting without tiring an eye.

Warden's Daughter Weds Marine Flier

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Lieut. Thomas Ennis, a United States Marine Corps aviator stationed at Quantico, Va., and Miss Helen I. Smith, daughter of Capt. Herbert Smith, warden of the Eastern State Penitentiary, were married yesterday in Capt. Smith's apartment in the penitentiary building.

Later the couple left by airplane on the first leg of an aerial honeymoon. After the trip they will reside at Quantico.

Woman Convicted As Killer to Appeal

Found guilty of voluntary manslaughter, Mrs. Margaret Williams, Negro, 29, of 3508 Butler street, today was preparing to petition for a new trial. Sentence was postponed by visiting Judge Edwain M. Biddle of Cumberland County.

Mrs. Williams pleaded self defense, admitting she fired the shot that penetrated the thigh of Fred Walker, Negro, 36, of 3203 Penn avenue, last April 30, from which he died 10 days later. She said he had been threatening her.

Munhall Man Hit By Auto, Badly Hurt

Michael Sabo, 31, of 798 High street, Munhall, was injured seriously when hit by an automobile at Duquesne Junction last night. He was taken to the Homestead Hospital, where it was said his skull was fractured. Police arrested Cyrus Salson, a Negro, of 1015 Hawkins avenue, Rankin, as driver of the machine.

Train Hits Bridal Party, Kills Woman

WHITTIER, Cal., Oct. 2.—(INS)—A wedding celebration was tragically hushed here when a Pacific electric train struck the car containing the bridal pair, the bride's mother and little son by a former marriage as the four were driving home from the church. The bride's mother died immediately, while the bridegroom and her little son are near death in the local hospital.

REAL Doctor's Remedy
safest aid to bowels

A DOCTOR knows the best and safest way to stimulate the bowels when bad breath, coated tongue, sluggishness of a bilious headache, pasty complexion shows they are lagging. There could be no better proof of this assertion than the ever-increasing sales and popularity of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Syrup Pepsin is a doctor's prescription for the bowels—made by the same formula Dr. Caldwell wrote and prescribed over and over during his forty-seven years of practice. He tested its gentle action with women, older people, babies and children, saw that it does not gripe, sicken or cause any discomfort. He proved its action thorough, complete, with the most robust men. Then as its pleasant taste and perfect action caused it to grow in popularity, he permitted it to be bottled and kept by druggists everywhere, ready for use.

Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from your druggist today. Then, next time you or any of your family feel the need of a bowel cleansing, you will have a doctor's choice of what is best.

GAS RATE CUT UP TO SALE

Postponement of a probable advance in the price of gas was given as a reason for requesting the Public Service Commission to sanction the purchase of the Summerville Gas Company by the Manufacturers Gas Company, according to testimony by W. P. Sadler before Commissioner Samuel Walker. Mr. Sadler, assistant secretary and treasurer of both companies, contended that while the sale only involves a change in book credits, it means a considerable saving in operation.

Both companies' net rates for gas are the same, 65 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, and this rate will not be changed if the consolidation is approved. Summerville is near Brookville. The companies are affiliated with the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company, a subsidiary of the Columbia Gas and Electric Company. The rate charged in Summerville is five cents more than is collected in Pittsburgh.

KONJOLA VERY MEDICINE HIS CASE NEEDED

Former Sufferer Glad to Tell What New and Different Medicine Did for Him.

After all, what mightier recommendation can a medicine get than the grateful words of those who, to their everlasting joy, found in Konjola the very medicine they needed, the medicine they should have had in the first place.

MR. G. R. CHARLTON

Konjola wins victory after victory because all of Konjola's 32 ingredients work together in cleansing the system and stimulating the ailing organs, bringing quick and glorious relief from ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and from rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Consider, for example, the case of Mr. G. R. Charlton, 527 Woodward Avenue, McKees Rocks, near Pittsburgh. Think it over, and then resolve to meet the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, this city. Hear from him the remarkable record of this remarkable medicine. But now read the words of Mr. Charlton, who said to the Konjola Man:

"For years I suffered with a very bad case of stomach trouble. Food did not digest, and did me little good. I tried several medicines in two years, but none gave relief. Six months ago I started taking Konjola, and found it to be the very medicine I needed. I am feeling better than in years, and can eat all kinds of food. Gladly I recommend Konjola to all who suffer as I did. Konjola relieved constipation, too, and I do not have to take laxatives of any kind."

So it goes, everywhere Konjola is put to the test. Konjola is for the aged or the infant, for all the family. That is why Konjola is a household word in tens of thousands of American homes.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh, where daily he is meeting the public and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. Konjola is sold also at all Dow Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

GRAHAM M'NAMEE TO FLY HERE TODAY FOR RADIO SHOW ENGAGEMENT

The LOUDSPEAKER

Money Rolling In. The Newly Rich. | $6,000 for Paul Dixon's Success.

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—No better proof that radio broadcasting has climbed to the perch of big business can be offered than the flood of gold that is pouring into the pockets of the entertainers of the air.

Louis Reid

Prosperity may be loath to catch up with the representatives of other phases of American art and commerce, but it is fairly panting in its pursuit of those who sail the radio sea.

Our spies, ever reliable in their snooping around the counting house, report that Amos 'n' Andy are now collecting a weekly income of more than $5,000 apiece from their activities in broadcasting, the talkies, in syndicated writings and cartoons. How the money rolls in!

Many Radio Artists In the Heavy Sugar

Others of the radio realm who are, as the professors say, in the heavy sugar are Floyd Gibbons, Phillips Lord, who as Seth Parker is making hosanna-shouting pay as it has never paid before; Reinald Werrenrath, best of the "Mandalay" warblers; Walter Damrosch, who has made Beethoven as familiar to the overstuffed divans as Berlin; Rudy Vallee, Graham McNamee and Ted Husing, the big noun-and-adjective man, and Billy Jones and Ernie Hare.

The microphone has meant new riches to those who can combine a talent for singing or talking or playing an instrument or waving a baton with that mysterious quality known as radio personality. When writers speak of the fabulous fifties they really have in mind that section of New York where the mahatmas—and the mahatmammas, too—of the microphone gather in he gold.

Vincent Lopez, the spies are still whispering, is said to count $2,500 a week for his radio labors. Franklyn Baur, the tenor, receives $1,000 a week for his journeys on the high C's.

Other radio entertainers whose greenbacks, you might care to know, turn ever to yellow are B. A. Rolfe, musical propagandist for cigarets; Guy Lombardo, musical propagandist for cigars; Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit, adroit in voicing pre-speakeasy wistfulness; Vaughn de Leath, called "the original radio girl;" Frank Black, Howard Barlow, Gus Haenschen, Harold Sanford and William M. Daly, who not only direct concert orchestras, but prepare for the air music that ranges from "The Old Oaken Bucket" to Johann Sebastian Bach; Jessica Dragonette, the diminutive prima donna; Frances Alda, radio pathfinder for Puccini; he Revelers Quartet and Evangeline Adams, the persistent star-gazer.

Radio Salaries Equal King's Ransom

There are those, too, who are heard only at intervals on the air but who are paid a Balkan king's ransom for their services—such names as Paul Whiteman said to have received in excess of $3,000 a week for his tributes to jazz and now asking $6,000. Will Rogers and Chic Sale, the homespun philosophers. Al Jolson, mammy's most devoted son; John McCormack, Sir Harry Lauder and a countless host of concert and operatic stars.

The broadcasters never know when a new radio personality will suddenly flash upon the air with the offering that calls for a sudden unwrapping of the wallet. For example, there is the recent case of Peter Dixon. A few weeks ago a cog in a radio publicity machine, he is receiving today $1,000 a week for a program which he conceived and in which he appears, called "Raising Junior."

Dixon's rise is the latest romance of the studios. Between pounding out superlatives about crooners he wrote a series of radio episodes under the title of "The Cub Reporter." He received nothing for it, but it gave him experience. More it gave him encouragement to try again at a radio sketch. When he had finished "Raising Junior," he found an eager sponsor.

The most tactful of studio employes are those who issue passes to the sacred pastures of the broadcasters. They have to be, for they never know that the pass-seeker may be a prospective, if not an actual client of their office.

Recently a new clerk was installed at the Columbia studios. She familiarized herself with the various programs and was proving adept in her special duty of issuing passes to the broadcasts. One day the telephone was most persistent. Three times she had turned down a request from the same voice for a pass to the Paramount Hour. A fourth time the telephone rang. She could hold her patience no longer. Turning to an executive standing near, she cried:

"Say, who is this Adolph Zukor, anyway?"

Firestone has "Good luck with 'STANDARD"

at Pittsburgh's newest one-stop service station—Baum Blvd. and Negley Avenue

A LITTLE less than a month ago, Pittsburgh's newest and largest service station—a unit of Firestone Service Stores, Inc.—opened at Baum and Negley Avenues. Here every tested and proved service is available for motorists. Here every motor need can be amply satisfied without delay or inconvenience.

Firestone wisely provided, in its seventy-five thousand square feet of service space, for tire and battery servicing, brake lining and repairing, rim and wheel service, crankcase service, washing, polishing, lubricating, accessories, air, water and the many other services that modern drivers appreciate.

Wisely, too, Firestone, from the first, took care to provide for the many motorists who realize that "Standard" Gasoline, ESSO, and "Standard" Lubricants are essential to the life and efficiency of their cars.

Thousands attended the opening. Thousands more, attracted by the spaciousness of the station and by the promise of novel, thorough and efficient service, have stopped there to have their motoring needs attended. Thousands, too, have driven away with their tanks full of ESSO or "Standard" Gasoline, and with their cars freshly lubricated with "Standard" Motor Oil and Greases. And still they come, hundreds of them every day, for Pittsburgh motorists, having found that they have good luck with "Standard" products, have also learned that they are likely to find good luck where "Standard" products are sold.

Graham McNamee flies here tonight from the World Series in Philadelphia to be guest artist at the Pittsburgh Radio Show in Duquesne Garden. As soon as the Athletics and Cardinals finish their setto at Shibe Park this afternoon, Mr. McNamee will hop into a plane headed for this city. He is expected to arrive about 7 o'clock. McNamee will put in a few busy hours on the Garden stage, then depart some time around midnight for St. Louis.

The crowd permitting, McNamee will shake hands with you at the Sun-Telegraph booth.

"Cal" Aiken and Ralph Shaffer are to describe the Westminster-Washington and Jefferson game over WNBO Saturday afternoon at 2:15. Wavelength: 1200 Kilocycles or 249.9 meters.

SAME OLD FACE

"Say, your face is familiar," said Tampa, of WCAE, when he met Billy Jones back-stage at the Radio Show last night.

"It's familiar to me, too, it's been with me a long time," returned the witty Mr. Jones.

It developed that Tampa and Billy played the same stage years ago while trouping through the East. Old times were renewed and it was impossible to separate the two all evening.

Billy Jones and Ernie Hare are splendid fellows. The crowd last night couldn't get enough of them.

Irene Beasley, the Columbia star, is a charming Southern girl. Her brilliant black hair contrasted against her red evening dress made her look like a Spanish senorita.

In a weak moment, she broke down and confessed that she liked magic almost as well as singing.

WE MEET BYRD

We had a big moment last night in the KDKA studios when Percy Boyd introduced us to Rear Admiral Richard Byrd. We anticipated this pleasure for many months. We had the pleasure of talking to Byrd over KDKA about a year ago when his expedition was in Little America.

* * *

A star and a lot of gold braid have not changed Admiral Byrd very much. Always he speaks of the expedition as "My comrades and I" and when he left the studio his farewell was "If you're ever near my home, fellows, be sure to stop in." And he meant it.

We liked his poise, his nonchalance before the microphone. Somehow we visualized him as Commodore Perry—straight, stalwart—as that great naval leader must have stood on the decks of the "Niagara" in the Erie conflict.

* * *

The Admiral is a handsome man with a chin and a nose that seem to say "I can."

His eyes are deep, dart-like, penetrating.

The Admiral speaks slowly and with great assurance.

Several times last night he displayed a keen wit. When William A. Farren, once a naval cadet, said:

"Glad to meet you, Admiral, as one naval man to another," the explorer returned. "Ah, yes, as the governor of North Carolina said to the governor of South Carolina——"

And the small assembly in the studio roared with laughter.

As Lloyd C. Thomas introduced the KDKA staff, Admiral Byrd eyed them from toe to head and remarked occasionally, "I'll remember you when recruiting for my next expedition."

It was Stephen Leyshon who said, when backing away from the admiral, "Well, admiral, I'm certainly glad I've met you . . . and glad, too, that you're not counting on me to go on your next trip."

* * *

But the Rev. Hugh Thomas Kerr was different. As he made an exit he inquired, "Admiral, will you need a good chaplain on your next voyage?" And the explorer nodded his assent.

Mr. Thomas recomended J. C. McQuiston as purser for the next expedition. Mr. McQuiston was reared among the heather.

Most of the boys who took part in broadcasts to Byrd were in the studios, including Herb Irving, who picked up WFA signals from Little America and pin them on the KDKA wave for the world to hear. The scene was recreated in last night's broadcast.

H. P. Davis spoke a high tribute and presented the admiral with a radio receiving set bearing a gold plate inscription.

* * *

Mr. Thomas introduced H. P. Davis, Dwight Myer, G. Dare Fleck, Louis L. Kaufman, Stephen Leyshon, Walter G. Myers, Don Woodward, Harold Roess, John Frazer, Percy Boyd, Frederick G. Rodgers, Glenn Riggs, William A. Farren, R. P. Griffith, Victor Saudek, Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, J. C. McQuston, George A. Wendt, Walter C. Evans were absent.

As one who sat up with Percy Boyd on many of those 3 to 4 o'clock in the morning broadcasts to Byrd, we appreciated deeply the pleasure of meeting the explorer. When we were small we worshiped heroes in story books and wondered if some day we might meet one. Last night we did.

Things Byrd said in his radio talk:

The Antarctic is 25 degrees colder than the Arctic.

You can see your breath freeze and hear it crack.

Anti-freeze mixtures freeze at 55 degrees below zero.

We wore clothes that were made from the skins of animals living in the Antarctic.

When outside the huts we wore a face protection something like a baseball mask with tubes for the eyes, nose, ears and mouth.

Our eyelids froze together.

Feet are hardest to keep warm in cold climates . . . we accomplished this by using a green weed in our boots.

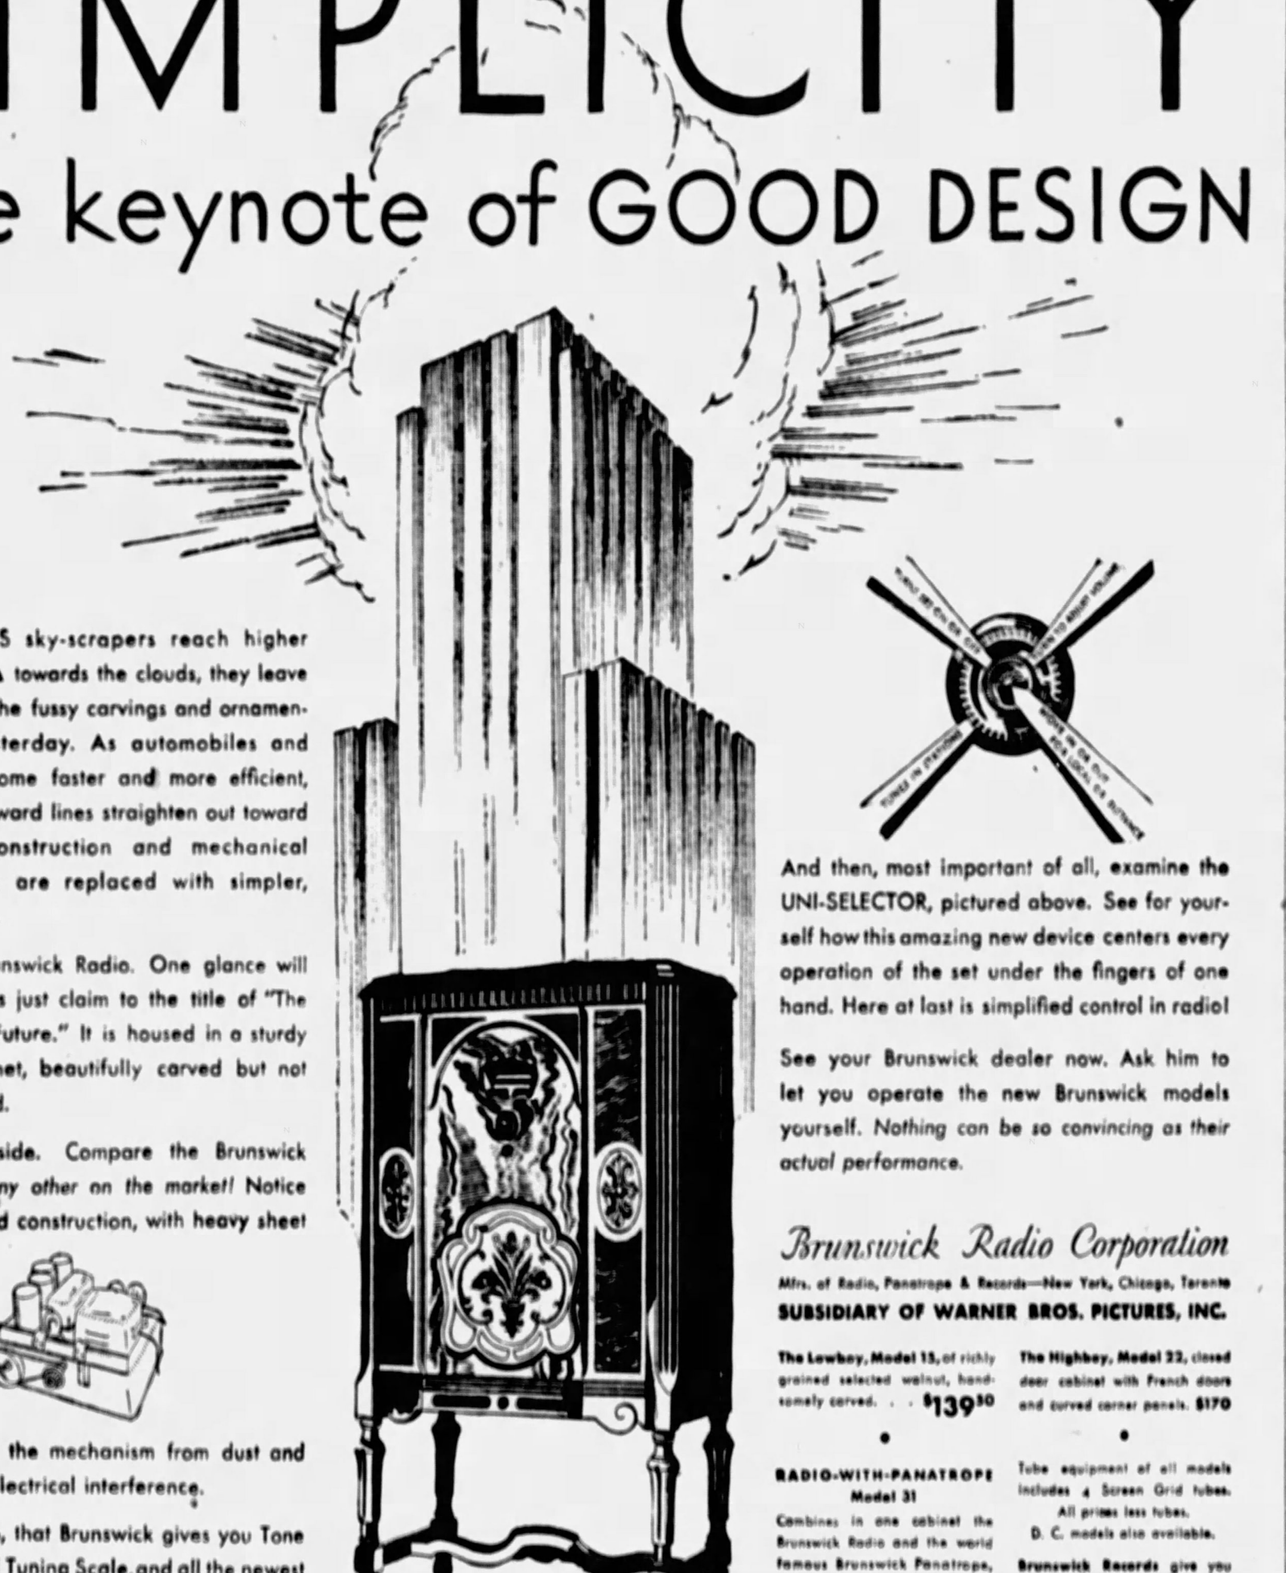
SIMPLICITY

-the keynote of GOOD DESIGN



As sky-scrapers reach higher towards the clouds, they leave behind them the fussy carvings and ornamentation of yesterday. As automobiles and airplanes become faster and more efficient, their first awkward lines straighten out toward streamline construction and mechanical complications are replaced with simpler, better devices.

Look at a Brunswick Radio. One glance will tell why it lays just claim to the title of "The Radio of the Future." It is housed in a sturdy graceful cabinet, beautifully carved but not over-decorated.

Then look inside. Compare the Brunswick chassis with any other on the market! Notice its square, solid construction, with heavy sheet steel shielding the mechanism from dust and damage and electrical interference.

Remember, too, that Brunswick gives you Tone Control, a Rigid Tuning Scale, and all the newest features of real importance in radio design.

MODEL 15 $139.50

And then, most important of all, examine the UNI-SELECTOR, pictured above. See for yourself how this amazing new device centers every operation of the set under the fingers of one hand. Here at last is simplified control in radio!

See your Brunswick dealer now. Ask him to let you operate the new Brunswick models yourself. Nothing can be so convincing as their actual performance.

Passion Play Didn't Seem Either Commercial Or Anti-Semite

BY GEORGE SEIBEL

NOW THAT the Passion Play of 1930 is a thing of the past, and figures on attendance and receipts are available, it is time to discuss two complaints heard occasionally about the great show at Oberammergau. Some people say it has been commercialized—some regret that its tendency is anti-Semitic. I do not agree with either criticism.

George Seibel

During the past season 383,000 visitors came to the little Bavarian village to witness the sacred spectacle. These people paid a little over 5,000,000 marks, or about $1,200,000. This attendance exceeds the year 1922, when 310,000 attended.

Receipts in 1922 were 20,000,000 marks—that being the time of inflation. Receipts and expenses that year were exactly the same. This year there should be a profit, which doesn't mean that citizens of Oberammergau will be rolling in wealth. They were 2,000,000 marks in debt when the season began—which sum had been expended on the new theater and road repairs.

Admission ranged from 20 marks for the best seats down to five marks for the poorest. In American money that means $5.00 to $1.25. When one takes into consideration that the play begins at 8 o'clock a. m. and continues with a noon intermission to 6 p. m. and that there are 1,000 people in the production, this doesn't seem exorbitant. Taking the best seats as the standard and counting the day as two performances the price is less than the average American producer charges for the average American product.

But the Oberammergau performance is not merely an average production. In artistic quality and stupendous dimensions it ranks far above the average. It makes such a spectacle as "The Miracle," which Americans flocked to see, seem shoddy and insignificant. And the acting would be a revelation to Hollywood.

THE BUSINESS END

Of course when there is such an influx of visitors to the village hotels and lodgings are crowded and business of all kinds is rushing. But even under the circumstances it can hardly be said that the Oberammergauers are rapacious. Visitors to the Passion Play are quartered in various homes. Charges for board and lodging are regulated strictly and at no time exceed what any good hotel in America would charge. First-class accommodations are 48 marks—about $12.00. This includes bed for two nights, dinner on the day before the performance, three meals on the day of the performance, and breakfast on the day after.

Could you get accommodations and good food in any American city at any time for less?

Most of the performers in the Passion Play are artisans who might be regarded as artists. They are engaged in wood-carving and similar trades. Visitors are eager to buy their crucifixes, cribs, religious figures, wax works, glass paintings, etc. These things aren't cheap, nor are they dear. Compared with prices in Berlin, Paris, or New York, they are exceedingly reasonable. Considering that the village has vast extra expense during the Passion year, importing all sorts of help from cooks to policemen, prices did not seem out of the way.

PIETY AND PIE

Lastly it should be taken into consideration that even the people concerned in the Passion Play must live. They are a thrifty and industrious lot. They are folks of intelligence, their homes are comfortable and happy; there are no beggars in Oberammergau.

All of which is as it should be, and Americans, always contending for high standards, should be the last to criticise those Bavarians for enjoying prosperity. I saw no evidences that this prosperity was based on extortion.

Most of the 50,000 American visitors will feel that way. Which reminds me that at the beginning of the season Oberammergau had a big scare. American agents had ordered a huge supply of tickets but returned 30,000 unsold. That was due to the Wall Street panic of last November. But as the season continued, and American tourists who had no stake in Wall Street began to pour into Germany, the theater, which holds 5,208, was filled every performance.

Americans made up most of the foreign contingent, the English came next, the Dutch were third. There was a fair sprinkling of Scandinavians, but very few French or Italians.

AS TO ANTI-SEMITISM

With regard to the view that the Passion Play at Oberammergau spreads propaganda of anti-Semitism, it is well to remember that what there may be of this is inherent in the story. The Passion Play is not any more anti-Semitic than the New Testament story, literally read.

The gospel records of the crucifixion, read by ignorant and pious multitudes during the Middle Ages, caused the cruel persecution of the Jews. That fact of history cannot be denied.

These villagers of Oberammergau produce the Passion Play with all the naive faith of medieval ages. If they did not have that faith the artistic value of their production would be vastly diminished. They act splendidly because they believe implicitly.

Now when this story is presented without any of the softening euphuism of present-day Christianity, it may seem anti-Semitic to sensitive souls. But we ought to have outgrown that mental age which takes everything literally. Every romance or drama of the American Revolution has been anti-British. Every Irish play used to have a British villain. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" might be considered anti-white. A Luther film recently was stopped as anti-Catholic, and a presentation of Socrates' death might offend the Greeks.

But the modern world should be above such silly national and racial animosities based on the narrow views of ancient historians and sectarians.

It is amusing at this time to recall that during the Great War one American writer discovered proof that Jesus had not been crucified by the Romans or the Jews but by the Germans. But even this discovery has been revised, for I have a recent letter from this man indicating that it was really the French. Since so few Frenchmen come to Oberammergau to see the Passion Play, it might be well to let this final verdict stand. It was the French!

Ladies and gentlemen, and those who like Hellinger better. Before offering the sweet-and-lowdown on the locals who take themselves seriously, please let me delight you with two of the featured pretenders in George White's musical hit, "Flying High," at the Apollo Theater. They are Pearl Osgood and Russell Brown, whose clowning, songs and stepping in that hit usually stop the show colder than a Broadway audience when your act isn't so hot. They will duet "Good for You, Bad for Me," one of the contagious chunes from Mr. White's smash. (Song here). Thanks very much, Pearl and Russ. Please forgive me for making you get up so early. And now for the weekly libel.

Buddy Rogers and Mary Brian, who are supposed to be sweetenheartens, and who went to the Palace together Sunday eve'g, are confusing everyone. Buddy took Claire Windsor to "Once In a Lifetime" Monday night, and then they went gay in the hot-spots together.

The King of England asked Lord Derby to take his racing stables to the U. S. to create good will. . . . The picture page editor of a local rag was fired last week for giving plenty of space to night club cuties who offered nudes instead of news.

If you recall, "The Jazz Singer," in which Mr. Jolson wept so furiously, you may remember that in the flicker Al quit the show to observe the holiest of the Jewish holidays, the Day of Atonement or Yom Kippur. . . . Well, I've been wondering if Jolson will practice what he screeched in that film during the current Jewish holidays, considering that he is getting $20,000 this week at the Capitol instead of only 15 Gs. "The Jazz Singer," you know, was supposed to have been based on A1 life.

Amateur entertainers of Pittsburgh are to be afforded an opportunity to appear on the stage in a series of Dick Powell "Discovery Nights," which are to be held in the Enright Theater. These events will be held each Thursday night, beginning tonight.

Mr. Powell, it is pointed out, is constantly asked on how to win fame and fortune on the stage and while he promises no results, there is a chance that anyone displaying unusual ability may win a contract to appear in some Warner Brothers' theater.

War Pictures Continue To Be Popular at Film Studios

By HARRISON CARROLL,

(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2.

War stories continue to be popular among the studios. First National has bought "Chances," a Hamilton Gibbs novel, as a starring vehicle for Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

This is a story of two English youths in the war, and the scene alternates between France and their native land.

Doug, Jr., owes his chance at this film to the mature performance he gave in support of Richard Barthelmess in "The Dawn Patrol." The young actor has grown up in the last year. Fortunately, his portrayals have not entirely lost the boyishness that was a prime factor in his growth to popularity.

Richard Barthelmess

Rumors are that Richard Barthelmess may do another war story, too, but the decision cannot be reached until he returns from the East. Dick has to okeh all his stories.

SNOB DE LUXE

In the caustic verbiage of the boulevard a certain Hollywood director is so high-hat that he looks in a mirror and refuses to recognize himself.

SUCCEEDS VIDOR

Because King Vidor wants to rest three months from picture work, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has signed William K. Howard to direct Lawrence Tibbett in "The Southerner."

Lawrence Tibbett

Howard is to be borrowed from Fox, where he is under contract. Work starts immediately, as Tibbett must be through in time to fulfill concert and opera contracts. This will be the star's third talkie. He has just finished "The New Moon." Incidentally, the locale of the operetta has been changed to Russia in the film.

TO CHANGE NAME

With Robert Montgomery going over to the Garbo picture, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has assigned Douglas Montgomery to play the lead opposite Joan Crawford in "Within the Law."

As might be expected, the studio is not going to create confusion by having two Montgomerys on it's list of leading men. Douglas Montgomery will be given a new name.

He is an actor from the stage.

MANY TONGUES

Not all of the foreign versions are made in Hollywood. To the contrary, Paramount has completed 50 features and 50 short subjects during a period of six months at it's Joinville Studios, near Paris. They include films in 13 languages: Czech, Jugo-Slav, Portugese, Swedish, Dutch, Hungarian, Russian, Italian, French, German, Spanish and Rumanian.

MARRIAGE POSTPONED

Due to the death of Alan Crossland's father, the director and Natalie Moorhead have postponed the date of their wedding.

While Crossland is in the East, the blonde star will play a role in the next Robert Woolsey-Bert Wheeler comedy, "Hook, Line and Sinker."

This, if I remember correctly, is the story of two Americans who stir up a South American revolution.

Many Attractions In Miracle Museum

The Miracle Museum, located on Seventh street, near Penn avenue, is again open with a long list of freaks and other strange attractions. Zetta, mentalist, answers questions. Victor Victoria, half man and half woman, is a big feature of the show. Other attractions are the leopard man and woman, the midget horse and Nerida, the human mermaid, who eats, sleeps and swims under water.

NOTES ABOUT COMING STAGE AND SCREEN ATTRACTIONS

"A Month in the Country," which the Theater Guild will present in the Nixon next week, has Alla Nazimova in the leading role. Ivan Turgenev, Russian novelist, wrote the play and it is said to be a dramatization in a comedy vein of a triangular love episode in the author's own life.

Julia Peterkin, who wrote the novel of "Scarlet Sister Mary," which Daniel Reed dramatized and in which Ethel Barrymore will act in the Shubert-Alvin next week, devotes her life to her husband's plantation in South Carolina. Her writing, which has won her international celebrity, is but an incidental part of her existence. There are nearly 500 Negroes and only five white persons on the Peterkin farm.

One of the greatest pleasures of the members of the George Sharp Players during their long stays in Pittsburgh, is their contact with Mrs. Fay Templeton Patterson, well known comedienne, now retired. Mrs. Patterson has never lost her interest in the stage. She attends the Pitt Theater every week.

FULTON OPENING

Frederic March, as a district attorney, sends the girl he loves, Claudette Colbert, to prison, as one of the punch scenes of Paramount's "Manslaughter," opening Saturday in the new Fulton Theater as the first attraction in the new addition to Pittsburgh's first-run motion picture houses.

"Manslaughter" also will be the new attraction in the Sheridan Square, opening in that theater tomorrow.

Moran and Mack, the Two Black Crows, will arrive in the Aldine tomorrow in their second talking film, "Anybody's War." It is a comedy, depicting the funny side of the war. Neil Hamilton and E. H. Calvert are in the supporting cast.

NEW NOVARRO PICTURE

What is said to be one of the most elaborate replicas of a European opera house ever constructed for pictures, was built for a setting in "Call of the Flesh," Ramon Novarro's new feature, which opens tomorrow in the Penn. It is a reproduction of the celebrated Madrid Opera House.

A double feature program opens in the Harris Saturday. "Sweethearts on Parade," with Lloyd Hughes, Dorothy Revier and Kenneth Thomson, and "Shadow Ranch," with Buck Jones, will be offered.

"Africa Speaks," a story of a perilous trip across the Congo, comes to the Warner tomorrow.

SILLS' PICTURE OPENS WARNER BROTHERS' HARVEST MONTH

With the presentation of Milton Sills in "The Sea Wolf" in the Stanley today, "Picture Harvest Month" will be officially opened in all of Warner Brothers' theaters.

Among the features that will be presented in Pittsburgh theaters of the Warner Brothers during October are "The Sea Wolf," "Africa Speaks," "One Night at Susie's," "Sweethearts on Parade," "A Lady Surrenders," Joe E. Brown in "Maybe It's Love," Winnie Lightner, in "The Life of the Party," Lewis Ayres in "Doorway to Hell," Louis Walheim in "Danger Lights" and George Arliss in "Old English."

The Stanley's "Harvest Month" has been augmented by the signing of Ed Lowry to continue indefinitely as master of ceremonies.

"The Seriousness of Guarding the delicate nose and throat membranes"

Says

BRIG. GEN. WALTER C. MONTGOMERY

Graduate of Columbia University, College of Physicians and Surgeons. Instructor and Assistant Professor Department of Nose and Throat, Cornell Medical School, Cornell University, for 28 years. Sanitary Inspector, with rank of Colonel, and later Divisional Surgeon in the 27th Division in the World War in France. Awarded Distinguished Service Medal (U. S.) and Croix de Guerre with Palms (Belgium) and other medals for war service in France.

"The greatest triumphs of medicine will be in the direction of public education on the importance of preventive measures. And in this connection I cannot lay enough emphasis on the seriousness of guarding the delicate nose and throat membranes and accessory sinuses. Your use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos, I regard as a laudable effort on your part to give the great army of American smokers the benefit of recent scientific conclusions."

Walter C. Montgomery

LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating! Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray.

MUSSOLINI HITS SPECULATORS

ROME, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini advocated the death penalty for speculators who bring on financial crises.

The Premier said he already had made examples of speculators and would deal more strictly with the type in the future.

"They will now be made to feel more acutely that they cannot fool the public with impunity," he continued. "Because of the infinite evil they express as sowers of ruin and misery, they merit the penalty of death."

In discussing the economic situation, the Premier said no one could expect "prodigies since this had not been accomplished by President Hoover, the most powerful man in the world in the richest state in the world."

MAN PAROLED, MUST WED

Florendo Camello, 30, of Youngstown, O., was paroled by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court for one year when he pleaded guilty of violating the Mann act. A provision of the parole was that he marry Miss Jennie Zupp, 17, of Youngstown, whom he was said to have brought here from Youngstown last June.

Coincident with the trip, Camello's wife, whom he was suing for divorce, committed suicide in Youngstown. Because of her death Camello went home, leaving Miss Zupp in a hotel here, where she was arrested by police for nonpayment of her bill. She was turned over to the Federal authorities.

When Camello entered his plea of guilty he said he and Miss Zupp still loved each other and wanted to marry.

Bus Owners Fight P. R. R. Petition

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Christ Walter, the artist, has just received a letter from his daughter, Nancy Walter Coneta, and her husband, Jack Coneta, telling him about some hats in Buenos Aires, where the Conetas are living. During the recent revolution there, much of the fighting took place right outside the Conetas' apartment. Well, the Conetas enjoyed every minute of it, but they also enjoyed an incident which occurred immediately after the battle. During the fighting, many of the soldiers and the revolutionists lost their hats. After they had scattered, a little man who runs a hat store nearby ran into the street, gathered up all the hats and put them in his window with a sign which, translated into English, meant, "HATS, CHEAP."

If you sneak into the Pitt Theater (the door farthest right is the only one open) almost any afternoon on which the Sharpe players are not giving a matinee, you'll see 10 young men and young women seated in a semi-circle on a partly lighted stage. In a chair facing them will be Ed Vail, Sharpe's right-hand man. This is one of Vail's three student classes. He's teaching them acting. Each of the students has the book of a play in his or her hand and they read from the book. Vail constantly interrupts them to correct the emphasis the students place on the words. If the line was "Maggie, please be good!" and the embryo actor was putting the emphasis on Maggie, Vail would himself recite the line, putting the emphasis on the "be good," or whatever the case might be. This line seemed redundant to us because all the Maggies we have ever known have always been good.

Vail is brusque with his proteges, but it is a brusqueness without rudeness. They seem to enjoy it. Vail is forever coaching them to bring their voices up from their throats and toss them (the voices) into the open spaces of the Pitt Theater. For night-work he makes the students put on paper to the last detail plans of the sets of the plays which they recite.

An experienced eavesdropper, we heard three young women talking things over not so long ago. Two were brunettes and one was a blonde. No. 1 Brunet was complaining that blondes enjoyed a natural advantage, being blondes, because young men seemed to have a preference for blondes. The blonde present protested, but her protest was faint. No. 2 Brunet conceded that men preferred blondes but that they married brunets. At this point somebody opened the door and we fell, face forward, right on the floor.

Bob Reamy, who draws paintings intended for the International Exhibitions and also draws the illustrations for Sidewalks, walked into his office yesterday, opened a letter awaiting him and immediately exclaimed his happiness.

The letter, it seems, was notification from Carnegie Institute that one of Reamy's canvasses had been accepted for the big exhibition.

The men who work with Reamy were quick with congratulations, and there was talk of getting up a purse to buy the budding artist a fine palette.

That would be great, but when Reamy's colleagues rush out to the institute to see his painting hanging alongside those of the great, they'll begin to suspect that he wrote that letter himself—which he did.

INDEPENDENT LINE FORCED OUT, CLAIM

Operators Charge Attempt to Cripple Small Firms in Monongahela Hearing

Independent bus owners are aroused over what they term an alleged attempt on the part of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to substitute Greyhound buses for short haul train service, wherever possible, and drive the independents out of business. This charge developed at a hearing before Commissioner Samuel Walker, of the Public Service Commission, when the Pennsylvania General Transit Company, subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Railroad, asked permission to increase the number of buses operated between West Elizabeth and Pittsburgh and reduce trips to Monongahela.

Attorney H. M. Jones, counsel for the Monongahela Bus Company, of which Albert Wilson, of Charleroi, is president, protested against the railroad's move. He says he regards it as an attempt to either cripple or put independents out of business.

Attorney Jones said the applications of the Pennsylvania have been so adroitly worded; that if the railroad elects, it may operate buses every five minutes over the route on which they now seek an amended certificate, by asking permission to make additional trips. He averred that recently the Monongahela Bus Company applied for a certificate to operate a line between Pittsburgh and Monongahela, but that the bus company was refused. The Pennsylvania General Transit Company applied and the request was granted.

At the present time the Monongahela Bus Co., operates between Washington and Clairton and between Clairton, West Elizabeth, Elizabeth and McKeesport and makes connections at McKeesport for Pittsburgh, but principally with the Pittsburgh Railways Co.

FISHER ANSWERS

Attorney Jones said he is satisfied the Pennsylvania General Transit Co., is trying to run other bus lines out, hence the protest which the Monongahela Bus Co. has entered.

J. B. Fisher, assistant to the general manager of the Central Region of the Pennsylvania Railroad and superintendent of the motor division, admitted, that as far as West Elizabeth is concerned, the move means more service. He said some trains had been taken off, but would not admit local service would be discontinued. He would not admit that buses might supplement service on other local railroad routes.

Cathie Faints When She Is Told of Tragedy

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Marguerite opened the door a moment, to listen. The noise, whatever it was downstairs, had stopped.

She sighed with relief, and closed and bolted the door again. Just as she was closing the door Cathie heard the Westminster chimes on the second floor, striking two. It made her think of the nursery rhyme about the grandfather clock that never ran any more, after the old man died. . . . But Mr. Farnsworth's clock was running right along. . . .

Marguerite sat back on her heels, shook the dangling red hair out of her eyes. "I can't do it," she said hopelessly. "I'm just making it worse. You'll have to take it off . . . give it to me . . . the nightgown too. . . . lift up your arms . . . I'll slip it off . . . here!" She flung a red woolen robe about Cathie's shoulders, and began pulling open bureau drawers, searching frantically for something. There! She had it. A white crepe nightgown, heavily trimmed with real Valenciennes lace . . . "Put that on. It's handsome enough. Nobody would ever know but what it was your own—"

"It smells of perfume," Cathie objected weakly. "That perfume I don't like—"

For a minute Cathie thought that Marguerite was going to slap her. Then she dropped her hand, and said gently, "Don't! Oh, don't bring up things like that, at a time like this when . . . when . . ."

Faints
Chinese Boy Prevents Her Falling

Noise downstairs. The whole house was awake now. Chinese voices calling to each other shrilly. Pattering feet.

"Come!" Marguerite commanded.

She began pushing Cathie toward the door. "Where's your other slipper?"

Cathie looked down. Saw for the first time that one foot was bare. One turquoise slipper was gone.

"Oh, my God. No, don't wait. Come, never mind the slipper!"

They heard feet running up the uncarpeted stairs. A slim young Chinaman, his face impassive, said, "Cheong said tell you we find boss. Telephone morgue wagon. Too late for doctor now, he say."

Cathie opened her mouth to speak, but no words came. She found herself sinking, sinking. . . .

Once she thought she heard someone say, "She's fainted," but she didn't know whether they were talking about her, or somebody else. She was sinking into blackness, into oblivion, where words could not come.

Marguerite's knees gave under her. She said, "Now I'm going to faint too . . . and her clothes still on the floor. . . ."

Cathie Worries About Missing Slipper

The young Chinese boy had caught Catherine as she crumpled and would have fallen. He stood, tottering against Cathie's dead weight, staring at the larger woman, uncertain of just what to do.

Marguerite closed her eyes. When she opened them again the old Chinaman, Cheong, was there. Without a word he took Cathie from the boy, hoisted her in his arms, and carried her to her room. Marguerite watched for a moment. Then

Talking to Juror Costs Woman $100 Fine

A fine of $100 for contempt of court was imposed by Judge James H. Gray yesterday upon Mrs Cora B. Klein, as a sequel to a conversation May 22 last with a juror sitting in the trial of a condemnation case brought by Mrs. Klein's father, R. M. Curry, of Snowden Township, against the Wheeling, Pittsburgh and Baltimore Railroad Company.

The petition for contempt, filed by counsel for the railroad, alleged Mrs. Klein met a woman juror in a wash room during a recess in the trial and discussed with her questions pertinent to the case. The court adjudged her in contempt.

The trial involved an appeal by Curry from an award by a Board of Viewers in 1923 for a portion of the Curry farm in Snowden and Jefferson Township taken for the right-of-way of the railroad. A verdict of $12,048 was awarded Curry by the jury.

CHIROPRACTORS ARGUE STATE REGULATION

Supreme Court Hears Plea Of Immunity From Penal Clause of Medical Act

The right of the State Board of Medical Education and Licensure to regulate the practice of chiropractic and prosecute chiropractors under the penal provisions of the medical act of 1911 for practicing medicine and surgery without a license was contested in an appeal argued yesterday before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

Six chiropractors from Allegheny County, Howard C. Long, Leo J. Steinbach, Blanche R. Young, William M. Ledger, Lillian P. Shook and Fred S. Cothery, filed a bill in equity before the Common Pleas Court to restrain Dr. Irvin D. Metzger, president, and the members of the state board, from enforcing the penal clause of the law. The suit averred it represented more than 1,000 chiropractors in Pennsylvania.

The petition was denied and the chiropractors appealed. They alleged chiropractors are not subject to prosecution under the medical act, that the law was not extended to their profession as it is not medicine or surgery, and that even if it should be construed as medicine and surgery under the law licenses cannot be lawfully obtained because no qualifications or examinations have been provided by the state board. It was argued on behalf of the state board that the appellate courts have decided the medical act applies to chiropractic and that provision has been made by the board to license chiropractors.

Other appeals from Allegheny County argued were:

First Pool Gas Coal Company, appellant, against Wheeler Run Coal Comany and others; Rachel Freeman, appellant, against Pittsburgh Railways Company; August Braum, for use of Gertrude Braum, appellant, against Potter Title and Trust Company, administrator; Emma Weiss, appellant, against Pittsburgh Railways Company; George C. Hein, against Henry Fetzer, appellant; Real Estate Company of Pittsburgh, for use of B. Epstein, appellant, against J. A. Rudolph; Anna and Andrew Hreske against Federal Electric Sign Company, Inc., appellant; Ida Hecht against H. Hecht, appellant.

The appeal of George Pierce, doing business as Pierce Transfer Company, from a judgment in Jefferson County in the suit of John Raymer, was also argued.

Support for River Project Requested

FRNKLIN, Pa., Laurance H. Callan, chamber of commerce president, has appealed to merchants of Franklin to stand behind the proposition to deepen the Allegheny River by construction of 14 more dams near Franklin and Oil City. The government has already spent ten millions in such dams, he said, and slackwater navigation is assured to Red Bank.

MALONE NOT TO ACCEPT POST

Ex-Council Chief Sees 75,000 Majority for Pinchot in Allegheny; Labor Indorses

Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the Allegheny County Republican Committee, will manage the campaign for the election, November 4, of Republican nominees on the state ticket headed by Gifford Pinchot, for governor, and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, for United States senator.

Armstrong was manager of the primary campaign for the state and county organization slate headed by Davis and Pinchot's principal opponent, Francis Shunk Brown.

MALONE DECLINES

Armstrong announced last Tuesday he would ask former President of Council James F. Malone, an original Pinchot leader, to manage the campaign for the general election. After a conference with Malone yesterday, Armstrong said:

Malone pointed out to me that the campaign for the general election was to insure the success not only of Pinchot but also for my friend 'Jim' Davis, members of Congress, judges, members of the State Assembly and all other nominees selected in the recent Republican primary.

"He declared that responsibility for the election of the entire ticket, including Pinchot, properly rested on me as county chairman, and I believe he is right. Malone said the people who voted for Pinchot in the primary undoubtedly would support the entire ticket, and if there were any disgruntled Brown supporters threatening to bolt Pinchot, I would be in a better position than he to bring them into line.

"I will take charge of the campaign here and prepare a budget of estimated campaign expenses for submission to the nominees."

Reminded of his remark Tuesday that Pinchot supporters should be represented on the campaign headquarters staff, Armstrong said:

"I'll appoint them if they ask me to."

Malone confirmed the substance of Armstrong's remarks and declared Pinchot and his running mates would carry Allegheny county by a 75,000 majority if all elements of the Republican party would work as they have in past campaigns.

LABOR INDORSES PINCHOT

A statement urging all members of organized labor and citizens in general to register Saturday was issued yesterday by the Allegheny County Labor Conference for Progressive Political action. The statement included an indorsement of Pinchot and Davis.

Officers of the organization are: Chairman, P. J. McGrath, secretary of Pittsburgh Central Labor Union; secretary, Jacob Yeager, chairman of the local Order of Railroad Telegraphers; and treasurer, John J. Kane, president of Pittsburgh Allied Printing Trades Council.

Safety From Crime Aim Of New Council Chief

Public safety from the criminal is as important as safety in industry to the newly-elected president of the National Safety Council, Charles W. Bergquist, of Chicago, who finds time among his many duties to serve as assistant secretary and member of the executive committee of the Chicago crime committee.

Questioned today on organized crime, Bergquist said:

"Disrupting a criminal organization seems the best solution in the war on racketeers. In our Chicago fight, it is not the desire to chase the racketeer to Pittsburgh or elsewhere. We seek to jail him on petty charges, and obtain short term sentences where conviction on major charges cannot be gained. If the leaders can be kept in jail through that manner, the organization can be disrupted.

"If the reorganization ends and its high profits cease, the criminal cannot engage expensive attorneys to defend him and find the loophole to circumvent the law. In that manner the gang organization ceases. That solution fits Pittsburgh or any city where crime is organized in gangs."

We cuss the radio for a lot of things that come over it, but when something like the World Series comes along and you can be away out here in the irrigated belt 3,000 miles away and can hear the crack of the bat, you got to admit it's quite an invention.

Grimes, the St. Louis pitcher, said you only had to watch three of the Athletics, and he was right. Two of the three of 'em knocked home runs, and the other one only got a three-bagger. The Chicago Cubs had the right idea when they lost purposely to keep from meeting those birds. Yours,

The three men were taken to a Bloomsburg hospital. Officials there said they believed the men were Henry Brown, Webster Grove, Mo.; Dorsey Hager, Wichita, Kan., and Harold Hough, Chicago, the pilot. CONSULTATIONS AT M. E. MEET

By THE REV. C. T. MURDOCK,
Special Correspondent.

Virtually all the clergymen delegates have arrived to attend the one hundred and seventh annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church which opened yesterday in the Mt. Lebanon M. E. Church. The laymen will arrive tomorrow. It has been announced that two hours would be devoted each day for consultation, so it behooved all comers to be "bright, brief and brotherly."

Most of the committees of the conference, about 20 in number, met for organization. Their various recommendations will be threshed out and presented at a later session of the conference.

CONFERENCE BOUNDARIES

One of the livest subjects to come before us at this session is the proposed plan of making new conference boundaries. This would provide for consolidation with the Erie conference and might involve the removal of the bishop's residence to Harrisburg. A plan involving all the territory from Maine to the Ohio line is contingent upon the co-operation of the Pittsburgh and Philadelphia conferences in a great scheme of reorganization.

The anniversary service of the board of hospitals, homes and deaconess work found Dr. B. B. Wolf in the chair. Dr. Wolf is superintendent of the Hospital and Home for the Aged on the Lower Hill road, Mt. Lebanon.

A great enterprise has been projected here involving the expenditure of several millions of dollars. Additional units must be erected at homes of the aged of the church. The present edifice houses 65 inmates and the waiting list is long.

HOSPITAL PLANNED

Thirty acres of land are devoted to this purpose and a great hospital will soon be erected by the generous sons of Methodism. One-half a million dollars is already in the sinking fund and $1,000,000 more will be raised before the work can be started.

Dr. N. E. Davis, corresponding secretary for the Board of Hospitals, Homes and Deaconess Work for National Methodism, delivered an address and gave figures showing the tremendous advances the church is making along humanitarian lines. It seems to be the most successful branch of its business at the present time.

The Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, pastor of Christ Church, took the place of William Stidger, of Boston University, who was to have lectured but who had to cancel his engagement on account of illness.

SPEAKS ON INDIA

Last night the Mt. Lebanon church was crowded when Bishop Adna W. Leonard spoke on "India in Turmoil." The bishop claimed that the withdrawal of Great Britain from India at this time would endanger the peace of the world.

Bishop Leonard scored the opium trade as the blot on the fair name of Britain and expressed belief that through the co-operation of the equalizing forces of Christianity India some day would be independent of foreign control.

Divert Traffic Through Avalon

Three-fourths of the eastbound traffic through Avalon has been diverted from California avenue, formerly the principal artery, to the new Ohio River boulevard, recently opened, according to borough officials. Westbound motorists use the boulevard less frequently because of a detour at the Bellevue end, at present. This will be obviated with completion of the boulevard in December.

HOPING TO SEE PARIS

MISS MARY SASSANO
Miss Sassano, 6933 Mt. Vernon street, one of the latest girls to enter a nomination for the tours to Paris and Bermuda that Gloria Swanson, film actress, is offering through the Sun-Telegraph.

SPEED ENTRIES FOR PARIS TRIP

If there is a girl in Pittsburgh or vicinity who would like to go to Paris, have all her expenses paid on the tour, sail on the greatest of ocean liners, live at the best hotels in Paris and have extra money to spend for the trip as the guest of Gloria Swanson, it isn't too late for her to send in a nomination blank.

At the same time there are to be five trips to tropical Bermuda given away by the Sun-Telegraph—all expenses paid, and extra money to spend.

Scores of girls have already sent in their nomination blanks, yet there is time for others to express their wishes in the matter.

These tours—Paris and Bermuda—will be awarded in November and the girls will sail early in December, but if you want to be considered now is the time to express yourself.

Girls who have not sent in a nomination blank will find one in the Sun-Telegraph today. Carefully read the rules on the blank, and if you are eligible, clip the blank, fill it in and mail it today.

Incidentally, Gloria Swanson's new picture, "What a Widow!" which is drawing tremendously big crowds at Loew's Penn Theater, and on account of which Miss Swanson is giving the Paris tour, will have its last showing at this theater today and tomorrow.

Wins $7,500 Damage Award from Pennsy

Albert J. Wise, of Elizabeth, was awarded a verdict of $7,500 for personal injuries by a jury in Common Pleas Court before Judge Joseph M. Swearingen in his suit against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. An automobile in which Wise was a passenger was struck by a train at the West Elizabeth crossing of the railroad April 18, 1928, seriously injuring him, according to the testimony.

LUCKY GIRL

she slipped back into her room, and hid the blood-stained garments deep in the bottom of an old trunk. Locked it, pocketed the key.

Cheong, on the stairs, called her. "Stay with your mistress," he said. "Remember, only fools talk."

"Hold your own tongue!" she snapped back.

She saw him smiling slightly, as he waddled on downstairs, a grossly fat Chinaman, in a black silk coat.

That smile had a strange effect on Marguerite. It sickened her. Several moments passed before she could pull herself together enough to go to Catherine. She said in a wheedling voice, "Mrs. Farnsworth, darling, you won't be keeping all the servants now, will you? . . . They'll leave now—the Chinese—now that the old one is dead? Cheong will go away, won't he?"

"I don't know," Cathie said, dully.

They sat in silence, Cathie huddled under the satin quilt, her teeth chattering, her whole body shaking uncontrollably, the maid watching her, stupidity and cunning and despair written on her pallid, haggard face.

Downstairs doors were banging, babble of many voices. "My God, the police!" Marguerite began to rock back and forth in misery.

Cathie listened. "It's Chester! Oh, why did they send for him? I said to call the police, and they've gone and sent for Chester—"

"No, they didn't. He just came all himself. Wait—I'll tell him you won't see him. You stay right here, Mrs. Farnsworth—I'll get rid of him!"

Cathie closed her eyes. The thought of Chester was just too much. She lay back on the pillow, but the chattering, the argument, the scuttling of feet worried her. She sat up again and her glance fell on the blue mule near her bed . . . the other one, where was it? In that room . . . that room . . . .

Her mind, alert at last, raced ahead . . . Chester. . . . If he found the slipper . . . .

Fear Goes
Cathie Suddenly Feels At Peace

Someone had run up the shades. The moon was gone, but the first gray light of morning lay in the room, on the white counterpane of the bed, on the gray face of the dead man, on a bowl of white narcissus on the bedside table near him.

The flowers hadn't been there before . . . funny! China lilies, beautiful double ones with thick pale stems, and golden hearts . . . someone must have brought them . . . but when? Oh, well, it didn't matter . . .

Cathie went over and stood by the side of the bed, where her husband lay, cold and dead. He looked so miserable, so all alone, with his gray face, and the limp, hand still dangling. She wanted to go back to her room, since her slipper didn't seen, to be there, but she hated to go . . . it seemed unkind to go off that way, to be afraid of Mr. Farnsworth, who had always been so kind . . . "I'll stay with you," she whispered, "Don't be afraid, dear. I'll stay . . . I'd have stayed with you always . . . do you know that? Can you hear me telling you now? It's true. Don't you believe me?"

She thought he heard her, that he understood . . .

She knelt by the bedside, comforted. All the horror, all the fear of death was gone.

The chill breeze from the open window blew on her, numbing her, turning her slim arms blue with cold. She didn't know it. She just knelt there, strangely at peace. In the short half year of her marriage she had never felt so near to her husband, so sure of his understanding and sympathy as she did now that he was gone.

"I wish I'd told him about Gordon . . . about always loving him," she thought. "He'd have understood. I wish I'd been nicer to him . . . there were things that I could have done that I didn't. He was always so good to me. I wish I had it to do over . . ."

She began to cry softly and naturally.

Twenty minutes later Chester Farnsworth and two police inspectors found her, still kneeling by the bed.

HOLDUP FAILS, 3 CAPTURED

Three South Side youths whose capture followed their alleged attempt to hold up a general store in Clifton were held by the Mt. Lebanon police today.

The three, Mike Murin, 17, of 817 Windon street; John Dabrowski, 17, of 131 South Twelfth street, and George Revty, 18, of South Eighth street, were captured in the Bethel road a short time after the attempted robbery, police said. The suspects offered no resistance when a squad of police from Mt. Lebanon, informed that the would-be bandits were fleeing towards Pittsburgh, came upon them. In Revty's possession, police said, they found a revolver with which he threatened persons in the general store of Wright & Mitchell at Clifton.

The three, according to police, stole an automobile from Ferry street yesterday morning and proceeded to Clifton. Near the St. Clair Country Club the machine was abandoned when it ran out of gasoline. On foot, the boys headed for Clifton where they decided to hold up the general store.

Entering the place, police said, Revty, pointing the revolver, ordered the clerk to throw up his hands. Instead of complying with the demand, the employe grappled with him. His companions, frightened, fled and later were joined by Revty who succeeded in breaking away from his intended victim.

PLAN ACTION ON CITY HALL

HOLDS STATE'S RATES UNFAIR

Unfair state compensation rates were condemned by Thomas J. Quigley, chief of the mines and quarry division, Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry, when he advocated recognition for managements carrying forth safety work while speaking before the quarry section of the National Safety Congress in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Two highlights of safety work in foreign countries also were related before congress delegates. Leopold F. Adamiak, mining engineer of the Polish Bureau of Mines, told the petroleum section how Poland empowers a department to make regulations and enforce them. How 25,000 native industrial workers have been training in first aid in South Africa was related by W. F. Buchanan, of Johannesburg, Transvaal, before mining delegates.

After citing accident reduction in Pennsylvania, Mr. Quigley advocated lower compensation rates for organizations conducting consistent safety programs as against those that do not.

Two Missing Boys Sought by Police

McKeesport police and county detectives today were looking for Roy Inks, 13, of 2404 Grandview avenue, and Herbert Campbell, 14, of 3609 Woodlawn avenue, both in McKeesport, who disappeared from their homes last night.

The Inks boy left a note to his mother, telling her not to worry, and requesting that she give his paper route to his pal "Bob." Campbell, in a note to his mother, told her not to worry, adding that he would return home in a week.

Both boys wore overalls and sweaters when last seen.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question is one concerning public safety and is answered by authoritative representatives at the National Safety Congress: The National Safety Council says the death toll by accident is increasing. What can be done to prevent this?

LEROY G. BANKS, Aspinwall, director Boy Scout reservation: "In my estimation, in regard to driving, 99 per cent of the accidents are due to carelessness. If people would remember this, I believe, many fatalities could be prevented."

Mr. Banks

WALTER G. MYERS, radio announcer: "The general public does not take the question of public safety seriously enough. They should take an active interest in the Safety Congress, attend the safety exhibit and listen to the lectures. I believe this would benefit them greatly."

Mr. Myers

JAMES NORTON, Department Labor and Industry: "Being greatly concerned with my own department, I do not know much about traffic conditions. Industrially, deaths have decreased 50 per cent in the last few years. I believe that the greatest factor for safety in industry has been education."

Mr. Norton

MRS. J. H. GLEASON, Red Cross nurse: "If the people would listen to what is said at the Safety Council; children, to what is taught to them in school, many accidents would be prevented. The Red Cross organization offers many valuable suggestions. Everyone should take and pass the course in first aid. This would do away with so many 'hit-and-run' drivers."

Mrs. Gleason

MRS. MARY GRIMM, member of Child Welfare Bureau: "I think the increase in the death toll could be prevented if more people would obey the traffic signals. Most of the accidents, fatal and otherwise, are due to carelessness."

Mrs. Grimm

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Many Dances Planned at Yuletide

During the holiday season the debutante set and the boys home from Princeton and Yale and Harvard will dance all afternoon and night, with luncheons and teas and dinners interspersing balls. But all entertainments in the Yuletide will not honor this group for there'll be ever so many delightfully informal parties for a still younger set the girls and boys home from finishing schools and prep schools.

A notable entertainment for the school set will be a dinner dance the Edward J. Houses of Beechwood boulevard will give on Christmas night in the Pittsburgh Golf Club for their sub-deb daughter, Helen House.

During the week-end the atmosphere of the social world will be decidedly bridal, with weddings both at home and in the East to attract us.

Bridal Events

One wedding in the East to take place Saturday afternoon will be attended by some Pittsburgh folks, the wedding of Mary Emma Landenberger, daughter of the late Eugene Landenberger, of Skaneateles, N. Y., and Richard B. Scandrett, Jr., of New York, son of the late Richard B. Scandrett, Pittsburgh lawyer, and Mrs. Agnes Morrow Scandrett.

The ceremony will take place in the Scandrett summer place, "Sotobed," in Idlewild, Orange County, New York, with the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman officiating and with Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow serving as his nephew's best man.

Among the Pittsburghers who'll attend the wedding are the Kenneth R. Cunninghams, of Bartlett street, and the Mitchell B. DeGroots, of Northumberland street, who'll leave this evening for the East.

A lovely wedding the first day of October was that of Margaret Hagan, daughter of Mrs. William Charles Hagan, of Aylesboro avenue, and Theodore Gregg Brown, son of Mrs. Elmer Collins Brown, of Chicago, which took place at 6:30 o'clock last evening in the home of the bride's mother. Officiating was the Rev. H. H. Forsyth, of the Sixth Presbyterian Church.

October Wedding

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Charles Hagan, wore a gown of ivory Duchess satin, and her veil of tulle cascaded from a cap of old rose point lace. A long court train of satin fell from the hipline. She carried white roses, lilies of the valley and sweetheart roses. Dorothy Keller, the maid of honor, wore minuet blue satin and carried cactus dahlias shading from bronze to pale gold. The bridesmaids, who were Mrs. Frances Charters McClure, Mrs. Roland M. Kenah and Mrs. Allan C. Davis of Baltimore, wore gowns of peach satin and carried cactus dahlias shading from rust to yellow. The bride's mother wore a gown of Japanese purple velvet and the bridegroom's mother appeared in blue lace.

Samuel T. Brown served as his brother's best man, and the ushers included John F. McGhee and Wallace D. Guthrie, of Chicago. And I might add, the ceremony took place before an improvised altar of cibotium ferns, palms and bamboo, with cathedral candles. There was a reception for 100 guests after the wedding, with the tables decorated with autumn flowers and ferns.

After a motor trip, the Browns will make their home in Evanston, Ill., about November 1.

The Enoch William Underwoods of Garden City, L. I., make known the betrothal of their daughter, Harriet Denny Underwood, to Lynne Anderson Warren, son of the Anderson Lay Warrens, of Wellesley avenue.

The bride-to-be studied at Walnut Hill School, and was a member of the class of 1929 at Smith. Her grandfather, Frederick C. Underwood, is the retired president of the Erie Railroad.

Mr. Warren is a graduate of Amherst, class of 1929, and a law student at the University of Pittsburgh. He is a member of Scarab and Phinx honor societies and the Chi Phi and Phi Delta Phi fraternities.

He is a descendant of Gen. Joseph Warren, of Bunker Hill fame, and the Warren family is prominent in the history of Virginia.

Fortnightly Review Gives Relief Demonstration At Farm Luncheon

The Woman's Fortnightly Review of Mt. Lebanon believes in farm relief. In fact the Woman's Fortnightly Review of Mt. Lebanon practices farm relief, which statement may be interpreted several different ways after what took place yesterday afternoon.

They called it a "farmerette luncheon," but not a soul, with the exception of the social committee members, knew what was to take place nor where. And there was even more mystification when the parade of 10 motor cars, each car carrying a flag, was led miles out of the way to reach the home of Mrs. W. M. Holtz on Washington road.

Here was discovered the social committee members and their chairman, Mrs. John McKelvie, arrayed in overalls and sunhats and bonnets and busily engaged in "farming" the Holtz grounds which were temporarily planted with cabbages and pumpkins and the trees bearing multi-colored balloons for fruit. A huge old-fashioned dinner bell called all "hands" and guests to a treasure hunt, the treasure being gayly painted chip baskets filled with the sort of viands of which tradition always relieves farms—fried chicken, hot biscuits, fruits and pie, not to mention several other oddments.

The same reverberant bell served as a gavel to call the members to attention after the feast and the farm idea was consistently carried out even to the very original presentation of the new president, Mrs. R. T. Charters, wheeling a barrow load of weeds and wild flowers which, incidentally, concealed the new year books. Equally original and still consistent was Mrs. Charters' speech of acceptance, which she addressed to her "fellow members of the grange." Nor did Mrs. H. B. Long step out of the picture when she outlined the year's plans. Mrs. H. B. McBeth did a deal of prodigious pumping at an organ as accompanist for the singing which was—well, more or less extempore.

And then there was a spelling bee (which was also more or less) with corsage bouquets most ingeniously fashioned by Mrs. J. W. Davis of vegetables as the prizes.

Evening Group

The evening department of music, art and drama of the McDonald Woman's Club will open its season Monday. General discussion of the play will follow Miss Lois Wiley's description of "Green Pastures," the Pulitzer prize drama, which she saw in New York. The November meeting will be devoted to art with several papers on the subject. Later the members will tour the International Art Exhibit. Mrs. Anna Marshall McCracken, of Carnegie Institute fine arts department, will visit the women in December to give them a program on "Christmas in Picture, Song and Story." The first gathering of the new year will be addressed by Penelope Redd Jones, art critic of the Sun-Telegraph; an evening of fun is planned for February and the March program will be given by Karl Emerson Williams, of the Byron King School, and the club choral. Stories of Wagnerian operas are scheduled for April and May's discussion of drama will conclude the year. Mrs. Maurice H. Levison is chairman of the department.

The Woman's Club of the City of Pittsburgh will begin its fifty-fifth season with a reception for the president, Mrs. Sigmond Stingel, Tuesday afternoon at the Congress clubhouse. Officers and committee chairmen will be hostesses and the social and music committees will be in charge.

Miss Alice Long, accompanied by Mrs. Virginia Brown Wilharm, will furnish the music for the opening luncheon of the Bellevue Outlook Club Monday in the Congress of Clubs.

The theory of the Ultra-Violet Ray Solarium rests on the solid rock of scientific fact. Give it a fair trial and you will always be grateful for what it accomplishes for you. Strip off your clothes, put on a pair of goggles to protect your eyes, and stretch out on a cot under the flood of Ultra-Violet rays. The exposures are so short at first, you can't believe there will be any effect, but you'll notice the difference in the way you feel. NEW FROCKS TREAT WARDROBE TO VAGARIES OF THERMOMETER

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 2—Street frocks current this season are well versed in the virtue of versatility, and accommodate themselves agreeably to the vagaries of the thermometer. Frocks of fine cloth suitable for an average early autumn day blossom out in capes of fine flat fur when the sun forgets to shine and the winds remember to blow. These capes own relationship with the frock by generally being of the same pelt as the little bows or tabs with which the frock is embellished. This type of frock is gaining favor with the woman who likes to venture forth without the company of a coat once in a while. Such frocks break the sometimes quite tyranical rule of the coat that seems to begin directly as summer is ended. They make walking a pleasure and can be worn to the smartest luncheon as their fur embellishments removes them from the strictly tailored and uncompromisingly severe type of frock with which we are all so familiar.

FROCKS OF THE TYPE described in this fashion bulletin are a specialty with the house of Drescoll-Beer and the model depicted in the appended sketch is one of the best of their current collection. It is of black broadcloth with insets of the fabric used in the opposite direction. This gives a two-toned effect which serves as an attractive relief to the plain service of the material. The circular detachable cape and small sleeve flounces are of lustrious broadtail.

THE AUTUMN COLLECTION of Redfern is distinguished by some most attractive afternoon dresses, one of which has been sketched. It is of dark brown crepelle and has puffed upper sleeves and a cowl drape at the front of the bodice. A circular inset on the skirt in front gives a supple and animated flare to the silhouette. Two white gardenias lend a pleasing note of decoration to this most useful frock.

MISS HARD-BOILED

By JANE DIXON

Advertisers Ask to Use Raquel's Picture

CHAPTER LXVIII

As soon as she could do so without arousing Jerry to an unreasonable protest against her being so much as "out of my sight," Raquel sought a telephone.

She must know what the specialist meant by summoning her to New York. Jerry had assured her he was feeling better, much better.

"I'm as fit as a fiddle again," he laughed. "Now that you're back." He looked fit, too, except for the faint shadows under his eyes and a certain lassitude that was foreign to him.

The assurance of the specialist that there is nothing new Mrs. Parker, nothing left her with that goddess and weakness she must overcome.

"I thought it better to have you here," D. Logan explained. "Your husband is a very difficult patient without you. He fumes and frets. Your absence seemed to upset him to such a degree that I have been unable properly to gauge his condition. I knew you'd want to help me all you could."

Of course she wanted to help. But that foolish Jerry. He was a spoiled boy. If he knew what his impatience had cost her. She felt the warm night wind of the desert in her face. Galloping swiftly under the stars and scuddying clouds toward a huddle of huts in the distance.

The afternoon mail brought a long letter from Greta.

"I've left the soft spot in Neuilly," she wrote. "It was a morgue after you quit it, cold. Back at the Ritz. The same old squirrel in the same old cage."

New Beauty Queen

"Hold everything now, dearie, while I give you the dirt about Uncle Alphonse," Greta's letter continued. "Well, he didn't take it off the deep end when he heard you'd gone and thrown him down as the saying is. They never do. Not his kind.

"He tore right back to Paris and threw a party that made the Louie fete look like a kid's game of ring-a-rosy. And whom do you think he set up as Queen of Beauty? No one darling but your old pal Greta. Quit laughing. I was a wow.

"You get the drift, don't you? I did, pronto. The idea was to make the folks who frivol around here believe that it was me he was goofy over all the time. You've got to hand it to Alphonse, dearie. He's nobody's Dumb Daniel. He put it over and I helped him. In fact I'm still playing the part.

"Does it cost him plenty? Dearie, I've got a diamond-studded toothbrush. Any time he shows signs of weakening I threaten to take my dishes and go home. Then he sits up and begs and I name my price. He'd like to choke me, but he's got to go on cheering. Ain't we got fun?

"The next time you darn Jerry's socks put a knot in 'em for me."

Pancho Does Well

Greta, the Queen of Beauty—le lis blanc. The Queen is dead. Long live the Queen. One should feel pity for a queen bereft of her throne. And if one didn't——

Clever Alphonse. After all, had she ever been more than an incident in his life, another bauble for his gallery of art?

It was incredible. Raquel thought the way Pancho fitted himself into his new environment.

She had always been scornful of the tongue-worn adage, "Blood will tell." Pancho, she had believed, was living evidence of the fallacy of it. For all he gave of his birthright, he might have been born in some miserable Mexican mountain village infested by the cast-offs of civilization, the son of a peasant and a toothless Indian squaw.

Now she saw her conclusion came of rebellion against her own decadence. He was no longer the gaping, trumpeting clown. There was in him such fitness as could show itself in as fine a grain as that other fire had shown coarse. In the matter of clothes, for example, he had been, at once amenable.

"I want you to accept a loan from me," Raquel told him. It is money I earned myself, as a model.

Raquel's Beauty Seen

She did not tell him the reason for the loan. It was not necessary for her to do so. He appeared shortly thereafter, dapper and trim, a careful but colorful cavalier.

Lucy wrote that she had moved into a four-room adobe house. She had bought a hand-drawn linen tablecloth of Mexican work with napkins to match. Jose played all day on his new violin. He was possessed by the witchery of the sounds he could draw from it. Rosita had a hat with a wreath of daisies on it—she would have daisies, Raquel thought. And Emilio ate so much of the sweets from the big box Raquel sent that he was sick and had to take two cupfuls of brewed herbs.

Things were turning out very well, Raquel thought. She had found security, content. She found abundant time to study new and exotic ways of cultivating the beauty that she believed had fascinated Jerry, despite his protest it was the soul of her he loved.

Mention of this unusual and startling beauty had begun to creep into the society columns of the metropolitan newspapers. A celebrated artist had begged her to sit for a portrait. A magazine with a staggering circulation had asked her to write an article in which she would reveal to women some of the secrets of her charm and her toilet table.

A Good Offer

Even commercialism sought to benefit by her beauty. A firm famous for its synthetic pearls had solicited her to wear a strand of its product twined in her sable hair to show the possibilities of pearls as a head-dress for evening. If she would allow them to use such a photograph for their advertising campaign, along with those of other ladies of fashion in the social world, they would be pleased to send her a check for $2,000—for her pet charity.

Two thousand dollars! A little while ago $2,000 would have meant the difference between squalid poverty and decent living. It would have mended the chinks in the crumbling adobe hut. Bought Lucy shoes that could hold her toes in them. There would have been a new red silk dress, soft clinging silk, not sleazy imitation. There would have been no gaping, tittering crowd to listen to her marriage banns here with a great hulk of a cattleman in the Church of the Blessed Virgin.

Two thousand dollars! Freedom, when she wanted it needed it so desperately. Such a sum was fortune—then. And now, when it was hers for a nod of the head, it was nothing.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

What Women Won't Tell

True comradeship in marriage is not actually reached until you have loved each other madly—and then gotten over it sufficiently to LIKE each other sanely.

Woman's freedom did not come in the form of the ballot, but in the form of a pay envelope.

When a woman can go sweetly to sleep and no longer listen for her husband's key in the latch, nights, it is a sign of either complete faith or complete indifference.

When a woman falls out of love, she lands with a thud; but a man, like a cat, always lands on his feet and walks off—to find another woman who will pet him, make him comfortable, and restore his vanity.

The old-fashioned woman used to give her husband his one "night out," a week; but the husband of a modern woman is lucky if she will give him one night a week at home.

In choosing a husband, it is so hard to find that happy medium between the kind who wants to stay out all night and the kind who wants to loll around the house all day. But any woman who has tried both will prefer the rounder to the hang-arounder.

Love is like the Solar System. Just as you feel certain you've got it down to an exact science, you make another startling discovery and have to begin all over again and work it out on a new theory.

The Beauty Parlor is a modern confessional, where women gather together in an inviolate pact for the conquest of men, and confess secrets to the Goddess of the Curling Tongs, which they would not admit to the Lord in prayer.

Fay King Warns Against Humoring Friends with an Objective

YOU KNOW HOW IT IS! I LIKE TO SPEND MONEY, OLD DEAR!
MY FOLKS ARE ALWAYS NAGGING ME FOR BEING EXTRAVAGANT!
I DON'T SEE WHY YOU DON'T LIKE THEM! THEY'RE GREAT PALS!
BUT THEY ALWAYS LET YOU PAY THE BILL, JOE!
THE FAMILY HAVE A FIT WHEN I GET HOME AT 5 A.M.
WHY DON'T YOU LEAVE HOME?
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Nothing succeeds so well as the stranger's sympathy with the faults of those who are dissatisfied with lectures from persons who really love them.

Young folks turn from their family to the ready flatters and quick sympathy of new found friends, who have not their interest at heart.

Now, nothing is so easy and makes one so popular as humoring the "misunderstood" in their weaknesses.

The drinker, the waster, the foolish spendthrift turn like sunflowers to the sun to those who encourage them—and incidentally gain by it.

New made friends can smile and humor so easily, because they don't really care what eventually becomes of you.

Don't trust those who humor you in the wrong direction. It is pleasant—but fatal!

Shaking Detective Proves More Difficult Task Than Anticipated

"What do you suppose he means?"

It probably means that the fellow has keener brains than we gave him credit for," Mr. Train answered.

"But do you think he knows where we are?"

I am positive he doesn't." Mr. Train rejoined quickly. But I imagine he's hanging around on the chance of finding out. Now, let's see—what would I do in a similar case if my suspicions were aroused that the man with me was a friend of the people I was trailing, and had another friend trailing him. Let's reconstruct."

He sat down and leaning forward in his chair, rested his elbows on his knees and put his fingers, widely spread, together with finger-tips pressed tightly against each other.

First," he said, "when Hasbrouck left him he probably went to the ferry and inquired whether a car and occupants of your description had gone over on it that morning. There are not so many at this time and the attendant would be sure to know. When he found you hadn't gone that way, he'd have two alternatives to hurry along the other road as fast as possible or to follow the hunch he probably has by now that Hasbrouck and I are in cahoots with you, and are hiding you until he's safely away. Mind you, I'm only guessing this, but it's plausible, don't you think so?"

Indeed I do!" I said breathlessly. "Please go on."

If he followed his hunch he probably would make the round of the hotels and find out if people of your description came there this morning. He would also make inquiries about Hasbrouck, whether they knew anybody by that name, and if so, who were his friends in town. He'd also describe my car and me, but there's one thing he hasn't got, and that's my license number. I hung a blanket over the radiator when I was pretending to work on the car, so the front license plate was screened, and I packed snow carefully like over the rear one, so if he looked back he couldn't catch it."

"So," Mr. Train continued complacently, "it's about seventy-five to twenty-five in our favor. Neither Hasbrouck nor I are prominent enough to stand out in a hotel clerk's memory—we're not the hotel kind of folks, never go there. And it would only be by accident that he'd run on to anybody else who might know us. Besides, the people up here, are generally like myself, they want to know why a stranger's asking questions before they answer them. And when they can't find out, they shut up like clams."

"I hope you're right," I said, a bit despondently, for I had hoped to be well on my way to New York by this time.

"I'm sure I am," he returned. "Now, look here, I'll tell you what I'll do. When Egbert finally locates this fellow, I'll pile my wife and daughter into the back seat of my car, pull down the curtains, and start out for New York, being sure that he sees me pulling out. If he's suspicious, he'll figure I've got you folks in my car, and he'll trail us. Hasbrouck will let you know when he goes, and then you can beat it by the other route. I'll go slowly enough, so you can get a good start, and I'll lead him a dance around side streets.

Now, why don't you folks go up to your rooms and snatch a nap. I'll get everything ready, so we can all start at a minute's notice when we hear from Hasbrouck, and you can use the rest. I'll call you the minute he telephones."

"You are very kind," I said gratefully, "and we will follow your advice, for we had very little rest last night. I cannot promise to sleep, but at least I can relax. If only we weren't putting you to such inconvenience."

"If you'll describe it a different way—say giving us a lark," Mr. Train rejoined, smiling, "I'll agree with you, otherwise not. You're giving us a welcome relief from monotony."

I saw that he was speaking only the truth, that he and his wife, as well as the Hasbrouckes, belonged to that rare company to whom an unusual adventure today from his job is trailing him on his motorcycle. He's going through to New York anyway, and he'll trail the other fellow all the way. If the fellow turns back, he'll telephone us. So if we don't hear from him in two hours, it will be safe for you to start. Now I'll tell you what he's been up to."

Household Hints

Do not throw away short lengths of lace and insertions. They come in handy when a little enlarging is needed in nighties or underwear. They can also be used to reinforce laces that show signs of wear.

Don't laugh, joke and hold loud conversations in the room of the invalid unless he is practically well. Otherwise your trying to be funny will only make him very nervous. Be cheerful, but in a nice, quiet way.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, October 3

Rather adverse planetary conditions are in dominance on this day. However, their force is not of first magnitude, and with care current affairs may be expected to move along with nothing more serious than trivial anxieties or small delays or disappointments. These may operate strongly in business as well as social affiliations.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year in which a great deal is to depend on their own rising superior to circumstances.

A child born on this day should be given early training in preserving its equanimity and hopeful outlook under trivial tests and disappointments as well as to conforming to the dictates and desires of those in positions above them as otherwise difficulties in employment are probable.

Learn to Be Interesting and You Won't Have to Pay For Your Good Times With Kisses!

Must the Modern Girl be wild to be popular.

Bonnie's convinced that she must.

"Boys," said she, "do a lot of preaching about how they prefer Nice Girls, and don't respect them unless they are nice. But when it comes to practice—that's different! Any boy I've ever met expected to collect plenty besides conversation, in exchange for an evening's entertainment—and got mighty sore and sarcastic if he couldn't."

Well—we'd read stories like that before. Sometimes we read them with our tongue in our cheek. For we'd met a few men in our own day and they weren't quite the Beasts of Prey some girls would have us believe. So when Bonnie came bleating, we passed her bleat on to the gang. And now they are all speaking at once. Read them over, then cast your vote.

"Dear Sally Martin:

"That Bonnie sure makes me sick. When I finished her letter, honest, I was just boiling! But then I talked it over with my mother, and I can see her point of view, but don't think that I believe she's telling the truth because I don't. I know there are nice boys, because I've met them.

"I was 17 last month and I'm just average looking, but still I have dates, and I can truthfully say I never, never drank or petted. I do smoke some, because I really like it. But I never smoke to show off. I've discovered that boys hate girls to show off—that is, to drink or smoke just for looks or to be a 'good sport.' At least nice boys do. I tell the boys that I'm afraid of drinking, and I am, and I'm not offered drinks a second time, even if they do think it's some kind of a joke.

"Of all the boys that I go out with, only a few have tried 'mauling.' And I didn't get dramatic when they did. I just laughed at them. Of course, I didn't hear from them again, but I didn't want to. I can't stand boys who are so unparticular that they want to 'pet' every girl they meet, and I can't be bothered with them. So we're quits. I want to respect the boys I go with, and how can a girl have any respect for one like that?

"I think Bonnie's got into the wrong crowd. She'll be happier if she changes her company. If she perfects her dancing and learns to be lively, and to both talk and listen, I'm sure she'll find lots of nice friends.

"JANET."

One down for the boys! But according to Ruth, they need it! Listen while she whams 'em!

"Dear Sally:

"I've just read Bonnie's letter, and it almost made me cry. I feel so sorry for her.

"You ask for opinions, so I'm giving mine. And Sally, it agrees with Bonnie's. I've met just scads of just such boys as she has, and they make me sick.

"I'm 20, and I can take pretty good care of myself, but I'm so bored and so sick of boys you have to be saying 'stop' to all the time. I think any girl's a fool to fall for their line. What burns me up is the way some of them act like you've robbed their chicken coop or something, when you object to being mauled.

"Tell Bonnie to stick up for herself and tell them where to get off. And not to let anybody slip anything over on her. She'll win out if she watches her step. Let them know she isn't a doormat, and that she is doing a little choosing, as well as they, and that she doesn't choose their sort. It may wake some of them up. It does pay to be 'fussy' and make yourself a little rare and special.

"She's right that girls could stop all that nonsense if they'd stick together and refuse to go with boys who get fresh. If they'd do that, believe me, it would stop with a bang. And girls ought to do it. Here's one willing to go in for it in a big way.

"RUTH."

I guess that's handing it to them, eh? Now tune in on Jeanne.

"Dear Miss Sally:

"Bonnie's letter interested me greatly, because I, too, am 18. And I heartily agree with most of what she says.

"I am a university co-ed, so I know exactly what one must do to keep up with the crowd and have a good time. A girl certainly can't be very 'goody-goody' and do it, but it does pay to be 'fussy.'

"It seems to be a fact that most fellows don't go with a girl because they like her and respect her. I guess they're just silly, selfish, grabby infants, and it doesn't occur to them that it's just as much up to them as to us to stay 'decent' and act like regular citizens. Their idea is 'get what I can and after me the deluge.'

"But there is a way, around them. A young fellow with whom I discussed all this once, gave it to me.

"Make yourself so lively, and so much fun, that the party is not complete without you. You can do that, and still be 'fussy.' And it works! Make people like you. Be friendly and good natured. Have plenty to say. You won't be called a flat tire if you aren't one. Learn to both talk and let them talk. Be sympathetic. Dance. Don't refuse a dance with one boy, and then dance it with another. Learn to be an interesting person, and you can do about as you please.

"JEANNE."

Sounds like sound sense to me. How about you, partner? Who're you for in this argument?

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Don't Neglect Any Throat Trouble

"Vincent's Angina" is an infectious inflammation of the mucous lining of the tonsils and throat. It is commonly known as "trench mouth." The disease is accompanied by great pain. It is sometimes mistaken for diphtheria, but is caused by a special and peculiar germ.

Ulcers and patches of membrane appear in the mouth and throat. There are headache, general discomfort, coated tongue, and high temperature. Very characteristic are the pain and swelling in the neck, particularly in the salivary glands under the lower jaw.

It is a disease that may be associated with abscessed teeth, diseased gums, and all forms of dental trouble. Everyone should understand what a menace to health a diseased mouth is. The broken and ulcerated tissues are swimming in pus germs. Persons who are debilitated and who neglect cleanliness of the mouth are particularly liable to attack by the germs of Vincent's Angina.

There is a close resemblance existing between tonsilitis, diphtheria and Vincent's Angina. It is only in the laboratory that the true nature of the disease can be determined. For this reason any unusual throat trouble should come under a doctor's care. Then if the disease is found to be Vincent's Angina the patient should be under strict supervision until all the symptoms have disappeared.

There are two forms of the disease. The first is the superficial type, in which there is simple ulceration. In another form the deeper tissues are involved.

Immediate attention must be given to the patient's general condition. Teeth and gums should be looked after by a competent dentist. It is particularly important to have the patient see to it that there is utmost cleanliness of the mouth and infected tract. The tonsils, mouth and throat must be kept clear of the membrane. A cleansing spray, wash or gargle should be used.

The patient should avoid the use of alcohol and tobacco during the progress of the disease. The physician will advise about the diet.

Furnishing Your Home

Ensembles in Bed Coverings

The ensemble idea has come to include the color combinations of pillow cases, sheets, blankets, spreads and comforters. It isn't enough to just put a pair of pastel sheets on a bed—unless they harmonize with the other bed coverings.

The general rules for deciding on the color schemes for beds are: To use different tones of one color; or to use two colors that harmonize; to use a third color very sparingly—if at all.

If colored sheets and pillow cases are used they should match each other. If white sheets with colored borders are chosen both the upper and lower sheet and pillow case may have the border. Or the upper sheet and pillow case can be bordered. While the lower sheet is plain white.

And, of course, the color scheme of the bed ensemble is decided by the color scheme of the bedroom. Favorite flower colors are generally chosen for bedrooms—that's why the pastel tones of rose, pink, orchid, blue and yellow are most popular for bedrooms and bed ensembles.

One correct ensemble of pattern and color is done in tones of yellow, blue and white. The pillow cases and sheets are white, with a two-inch border of yellow. The blanket is a plaid, in two tones of yellow. The pattern on the candlewick spread is in yellow. And the comforter—which rests at the foot—is blue silk, lined with yellow.

One color combination which would be good for a man's or a boy's room: sheets and pillow cases of white with maize borders, plain blankets of tan, a comforter of golden brown and perhaps a spread of cretonne with a crewel pattern which repeats the brown and white of the blanket and sheets.

A very feminine bed ensemble is shell pink sheets and pillow cases, blankets of rose, a lace bedspread lined with rose sateen, and a rose comforter, lined with peach.

For a young girl's bed, white sheets with blue borders, blankets and deep blue, a rayon spread of blue, and a blue comforter, lined with rose, is very effective.

Bed ensembles—as well as clothes ensembles—take a little time and study to assemble. But they repay the effort by their charm and fashion-rightness.

Ordinary City Water and Soaps Will Not Clean Dishes Thoroughly . . . Because Water Is Too Hard

For best results in any home washing just add this new water-softening cleanser to soap and water. Takes ¼ the usual amount of soap—saves ½ the time and effort.

WOMEN here are discovering an easy, inexpensive way to avoid the greasy film on dishes and greasy scum in dish pan that follows washing in this hard water. They claim amazingly fine results.

This new discovery is not a soap—but a water-softening cleanser that gives any soap four times its cleansing efficiency by turning "hard" water into "soft."

What It Is

It is a preparation called Climalene that you add to your washing water. Just a tablespoon or two.

Instantly, it takes all the harshness out of that water. Makes it soft as rain water.

At the same time, due to certain bland cleansing agents, it instantly DISSOLVES all dirt, stains and grime. And thus cuts washing time ONE-HALF or more.

Use the soap or soap flakes you ordinarily do. Then see for yourself the amazing results. During 1929, women used over 24,000,000 packages of Climalene for washing, for cleaning and in the dish pan.

Laboratory Proved

To assure results to you, we buy fine things, lingerie and delicate fabrics, costly china. Then by repeated washings, try to spoil or fade them.

Consider, please, what those things mean to you. Consider, too, that the minute you put this creation into water, all harshness is taken away—your hands protected from roughness, made soft, smooth and white. Then try it.

Remember the name—Climalene. Your grocer has it. Sold only in 10c and 25c packages.

Far be it from me to make some of you very ill, but I thought you should be reminded that the first anniversary of the Wall St. Crash is Oct. 18.

Belle Livingstone, whose salon (one of) again please) on Park avenue was raided, is plotting another whoopee cathedral. In it will be a sardine golf course. "I may only last a week," said Belle, "but I'll show this town something different!" About the only thing Belle can show New York that it hasn't already seen, is a woman who doesn't expect a man to be true.

When Richard Bennett, the actor who makes speeches about critics, falls down in a night club, he knocks over at least five tables.

One of the stage stars has a sad story about Joan Lowell, whose book about her sea career was finally refused. Ship Ahooey.

... says the critics broke her heart. ... Joan is better described as the type who could discover a hair in a dish of spinach. ... The maw and paw of La Guardia will celebrate their Golden Wedding (not rye) Anniversary at their daughter's asylum on October 18. And at least one of us is wondering what the older generation is coming to.

His intimates would have you believe that Charlie Schwab, the big steel man, does all his business between 9 and 10 in the morning in his barber chair. While he is having his face spinach-rubbed or his fingers polished or his boots glistened, a secretary reads his mail. As soon as she has finished reading a letter, Cholly dictates the reply to another secy. Then he calls it a day, they say. In other words, he has it easier than a Broadway radio columnist, who is so lazy he won't even use a megaphone.

Gloria Swanson, it appears, cost the company a mess of coin when she refused to permit Constance Bennett on the studio set, thus holding up Connie's flicker. The reason for the switching was that Connie had been listed among Gloria's rivals for her husband's adoration. However, it isn't the Marquis at all. They say Lew Ayres is the one who can't eat or sleep because of Connie. Gavin Gordon is suffering from Greta Garbo's indifference.

Incidentally, Greta told a mutual pal that she will never again Go For another lad. "I'll go out with them now and then," said the Greatest Garbo, "but no more will I promise to be true." And Motion Pictures reminds us that Mary Duncan believes that love is the most important thing in life but that she will never again make any sacrifices for it. Cholly Chaplin and Bill Haines almost came to blows at a party the other week-end as did Fifi Widener and her husband in the Bulb Belt.

Although the Guinan Asylum has only been open a week at most, one of the Guinan heart-jugglers, Judith Dean ('17) will middle-aisle it within the fortnight with Jack Stack, Jr., of Alcohollywood. They met when the lights were low and the music was soft and slow. Prince Sotcheeney (which isn't the way you spell it—that's the way you pronounce it!), of Hungary, is a handsome guy who has the local debs and dowagers frothing at the mouth.

Inasmuch as we have been talking out of turn all these years, it is only fair to reprint the truth about ourself. A Mr. Harris of s. San Francisco mag has this to say. "As a matter of 'act some columnists are far worse craftsmen than Coolidge even though they are far more entertaining. Take Winchell for example. In N. Y. there are hundreds of people who grow apoplectic at mere mention of his name. A few years ago he was a song and dance man and, by his own confession, a flop at that. He writes of cheap actors, scandals, etc. That is Winchell's type, who is fond of calling himself a newspaper man. He will be a wise-cracking gossiping trouper so long as he lives. He does a dozen things a day that grate painfully on the sensibilities. But with all this he exerts a tremendous fascination over regiments of readers. Some people who despise him most read him regularly. In fact I read his column every day."

That's all I wanted to know.

A more amusing gag is that they got $11 for premiere tickets to "Abraham Lincoln," the movie, which caused one critic to remark that they didn't charge that much at the old Ford Theater the night he was assassinated.

A FAMOUS Coffee Flavor.. now sealed under lock and key

THE only way to keep coffee from losing 60% or more of its flavor before it reaches your coffee pot is to seal it up in air-proof tins as soon as it is roasted. For as soon as coffee has cooled after roasting, the flavor begins to escape. So rapidly does it vanish, that in only nine days 60% is gone, and the coffee has a flat, stale taste. That's the conclusion of recent scientific experiments that uncovered startling facts about coffee flavor.*

Now, sealed in its new Thermo-fresh tin, White House Coffee brings you all the goodness that you should have from coffee . . . 60% more than coffee not sealed this Thermo-fresh way. It's only minutes from the time White House leaves the roaster until it is sealed in its air-proof tin. Roasting, grinding, and packing are carefully timed so that no coffee is left unpacked over night. Thus all the mellow, fresh-roasted goodness of this fine blend is preserved for you.

• • •

But find out for yourself what a difference 60% more flavor makes. Your grocer has this new Thermo-fresh tin of full-flavored White House Coffee. It may cost you a bit more than you are used to paying, but of course you get 60% more flavor.

MACKS' HITS ALL EXTRA-BASE BLOWS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—It is true of baseball that a pitcher can be no better than his support, but sometimes he doesn't have to be even as good as it. That was demonstrated by the success of Lefty Grove in getting a decision over Burleigh Grimes in the World Series opener that started the American League off on the right foot in the big stakes for the sixth year in succession. Grove looked like Grove for only the first two innings, in which he held the Cardinals hitless and struck out three of the six men who faced him. After that he was only an ordinary pitcher, but, thanks to the brilliant work of his supporting company, that was all he had to be.

Joe Boley

When the Cards began to solve the delivery of the smokeball star, they were stopped by the men behind him. With Joe Boley, Max Bishop and Mickey Cochrane standing out in a series of dazzling plays, it was the fielding of the A's, coupled with a break or two rather than the pitching of their southpaw slab ace, that turned the tide in favor of the American League champions in the first game and gave them the jump in the series.

IT WAS CLEAR after the second inning that it was not to be Grove's day, control was practically the only item in his usual wealth of stuff that was up to normal, and it is doubtful if he would have lasted the distance, but for the help he received from his mates. He never had a closer call from defeat in any of the 28 games he won during the regular season.

The seventh inning probably would have spelled disaster for Lefty but for the help that he received from Boley, Bishop and the fates. First, it was Boley's great stop of Douthit's grounder, forcing Grimes at second on what would have been a clean base hit for Douthit if first base had not been occupied, and then, when Grove got into another hole immediately afterward, it was Bishop's jumping one-hand catch of Frisch's liner that kept the game from assuming a decided St. Louis complexion.

BISHOP'S PLAY WAS the turning point that saved Grove and the A's from serious trouble. Even after the Boley break in the same inning, the Cards were headed for the lead when a wicked liner shot off Frisch's bat, travelling straight for the pocket in right center that usually means a three-base hit.

Max Bishop

Had the ball got through Boley, Adams would have scored, and the count would have been 4 to 3 in favor of the Cards, with Frisch on third and two out. But it didn't get through. A foot either way and Bishop would not have been able to reach it, but, as it was, it came just close enough for him to jump and clutch it with his gloved hand. Instead of getting away with a possible winning rally, the Redbirds were retired without a run.

THAT BOLEY AND Bishop should have been the main factors in tripping up the National Leaguers at the first hurdle was just additional evidence of baseball's queer turns. For it was at those two positions that the Cards had been conceded to hold a marked degree of superiority over the A's, Gelbert and Frisch shaping up as a much stronger pair. Not that Boley and Bishop were considered weak, for no club can win pennants without having good men in the important territory around the midway, but it is doubtful if at any previous time during the season the Mackian pair rose to such heights in a critical inning.

THE VIEWS OF baseball men at the big series as to how Grove will fare when he makes his second start differ according to their league affiliations. National Leaguers contend that the manner in which he was hit during the opener indicates he will not be able to hold the Cardinal batters in check, and that he cannot hope for another such series of helpful breaks as pulled him through yesterday.

But the dope of the Mack adherents is that an off-day of that sort is a rarity with Grove, and point out that if he could win when he was out of his stride, nothing can prevent him from winning again when he is good. Only Lefty's next game after the series has shifted to St. Louis can bring the answer.

IF GROVE CANNOT go through again successfully, the Cards' chances for winning out after an unfortunate start, will be greatly improved, as that would leave George Earnshaw as Mack's only real pitching hope.

Gus Mancuso

Even Philadelphians appear not to have any great amount of confidence in Walberg, Rommell, Shores, Quinn and Mahaffey as starting pitchers. The odds are against any clubs being able to win a World Series with two pitchers, much less with only one, so that if Grove doesn't show to better advantage in his second game than in his first, it might be well to avoid haste in figuring the Redbirds as likely to lose out.

THE LOSS OF so great a catcher as Jimmy Wilson for the first part of the series was a hard blow to the St. Louis club, but the Cards are fortunate in having Gus Mancuso available for the gap. The youngster has filled Wilson's shoes in fine style, and in every detail of backstopping is proving himself just about all that could be desired, besides carrying a healthy punch in his bat. And Mancuso would have been back in the minors this year but for an order by Commissioner Landis. Gus had been sent back twice under option, the limit under the rules, and when the Cards tried to help to ship him away a third time, Land's ordered that they either keep him or release him outright. So the Redbirds kept him. They would be in a sorry way without him right now.

THAT A PITCHER has gone through a contest without giving his opponents a single does not always mean that he has hurled a no-hit game. Burleigh Grimes' experience in the opener is evidence of that. Grimes did not give the A's a single, but he gave them enough other hits to yield five runs and the ball game.

Every one of the five hits made by the Mackmen was an extra-base blow. Philadelphia's hits made up in force and length what they lacked in number. Grimes being nicked for two home runs, two triples and a double. At that Burleigh had as much stuff as a pitcher generally needs to win. It simply wasn't in the books for Grimes to escape defeat that day.

OF COURSE, THE base hit figures of the A's, though unusual, did not break any World Series records, either for number of long blows or for total bases in a game. The record for long hits by one

GRIMES VICTIM OF FREAK PLAYS

By GABBY STREET,
Manager St. Louis Cardinals.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—If that's the best the Athletics have to offer, than we will beat them sure, even though we did lose the first game of the series. We hit enough balls hard to win an ordinary game, but had the misfortune to have them come when we had two men out. After seeing Lefty Grove, certainly the best pitcher Mack has to offer us, I am sure that we will win the world series.

Gabby Street

Grove did not show a thing we did not face in our regular league games. He has speed, but I think that Bill Hallahan, the left hander on my club, who will go against the American League champions in one of the games, is faster than the star of the Athletics.

BREAKS HELP A'S

Grove, as the records will show, did not hurl as good a game as Burleigh Grimes, who lost a tough luck battle. We hit Grove for a fare-the-well and a few breaks our way would have told a different story. There was the seventh inning for instance. If Douthit's smash on which Grimes was forced at second had gone through, the infield would have been playing in and Frisch's liner of which Bishop made a leaping catch would have been good for at least two bases.

Grimes only allowed five hits. He will come back and win. The Athletics won't have all their safeties go for extra bases the next time he faces them as hapened in the first of the series.

Al Simmons hit a home run over the fence on a perfectly pitched ball.

That was just one of the breaks which went against us.

The Athletics have a fine club one which threw a perfect defense around Grove, but I think, after looking them over in competition, that my club is better and for that reason I say that we will win out.

I want to praise some of the young players on my club, those who had never gone through the mill in a World Series before. Gus Mancuso caught a great game, just like he did in the final pennant drive. He also hit the ball hard. Charley Gelbert and Sparky Adams also performed like veterans. I am not worried that my club will crack. The players are more confident after seeing Lefty Grove in action than they will be able to beat anything that Mack has to offer including Grove if he starts another game against us.

A'S MAKE HITS COUNT

The first game comes down to the fact that the Athletics made all their hits count for distance, while only two of ours was for an extra base—doubles by Hafey and Frisch.

The Cardinals' misfortune came in that many of our safeties came after two batters has been retired. We hit more balls hard than did the Athletics and we will continue to do so until the series is over in our favor.

I expect to start Flint Rhem another right hander, in the second game of the series here and I am sure that we will go home with at least a tie and then will gain the upper hand when we play at home. Rhem has plenty of speed, fine curves and a great knuckle ball and he will show the A's something.

FRANKIE SETS NEW SERIES HITS MARK

By JAMES J. LONG
Staff Correspondent.

A'S GAIN LEAD

Nobody had kidnaped Flint Rhem during the night and he showed up on time at the park, so Manager Street's original pitching selection stood.

Rhem got a hotter reception than he ever got from any kidnapers. The A's plastered him for two runs in the opening round with Cochrane's homer over right field wall, a single by Simons and a double by Foxx after two men had been retired.

A great stop by Sparky Adams of Dykes' hot shot just outside third base prevented further damage in the inning.

CRUCIAL BATTLE

Upon the result of the second game of the series appeared to hinge to a great extent the outcome of the whole title struggle.

Another victory for the A's would put them two up and make it necessary for them to win only two more in the next five to capture the championship, whereas the Cards would have to win four out of five to turn a threatened rout into a triumph if they lost the first two.

On the other hand, a decision for the Redbirds this afternoon would mean the deadlocking of the argument and leave the teams on even terms for the resumption of the series in St. Louis on Saturday.

The clubs will entrain for the Mound City early tonight. On account of the long jump, no game is scheduled for tomorrow.

Singles by Mancuso and Gelbert followed Watkins' homer in the second, and with men on first and third and only one out it looked as if the Cardinals might at least tie the score, but Rhem fanned and Douthit popped to Bishop for the third out, leaving the National Leaguers one run to the bad.

MISPLAYS PLENTIFUL

The third inning saw the A's making the first errors of the series, first a fumble by Boley on Frisch's grounder and then a wild throw by Cochrane on Frisch's steal of second. In addition, Bishop dropped Bottomley's foul fly, but was not charged with an error. Then Dykes fell in an attempt to catch an easy foul fly from Hafey's bat. In spite of the miscues, however, the A's escaped unhurt as Earnshaw struck out Bottomley and Hafey and left Frisch stranded on third.

The Cards were not so fortunate when they made their first misplays of the series in the same chapter. The side would have been retired runless if Frisch would have handled Cochrane's roller cleanly, but Frankie fumbled it. Simmons followed with a two-bagger. Foxx drew an intentional pass. Miller singled and Rhem kicked in with another error when he dropped Hafey's throw from the outfield. The result was the A's took another two runs.

Street's delay in lifting Rhem, who had been ineffective from the start, continued to prove costly and two runs went over in the fourth on Boley's single, Bishop's walk and Dykes' double before Rhem was derricked and Jim Lindsey was sent in to take his place. Lindsey retired the side without further damage through the aid of an unassisted double play by Gelgert on Cochrane's drive.

HARVARD CUP FINAL TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

Alvin Servick, Duquesne, Pa., High School contender, will battle Harry Ackerman, Mt. Lebanon luminary, in the final round of the eighth annual Harvard Cup interscholastic tennis tourney on the University Club gallery court at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. A bad day was yesterday for favorites. Braving autumnal blasts on the Arnold School lot, Servick whisked 6-0, 6-8, 6-0, 6-1 semi-final triumph over Maurice Saperstein, Fifth Avenue ace, while Harry Ackerman, Mt. Lebanon boy and a real dark-horse, upset the redoubtable Bellevue aspirant, Bud Leyda, in consecutive sets, 7-5, 6-2, 6-4.

If Servick annexes today's affair, the victory will land the second Duquesne High School leg on the Cambridge bowl, which to date has been captured once by each of seven institutions in a career rooted in the soil of 1923. The Monon Valley school bagged the flagon back in 1924, when Chuck Wunderlich emerged successfully from the milling. An Ackerman win, however, would mean an entirely new name upon the silverware. The summary:

Semi-final round: Harry Ackerman, Mt. Lebanon, defeated Crosby Leyda, Bellevue, 7-5, 6-2, 6-4. Alvin Servick, Duquesne, Pa., defeated Maurice Saperstein, Fifth Avenue, 6-0, 6-8, 6-0, 6-1.

Grimes Finds Fence Too Close to Park—Altrock

By NICK ALTROCK,
Famous Baseball Humorist.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 2. — Burleigh Grimes pitched a nice game yesterday, but the right field fence was in the way. If Blades could have run back 50 or 60 yards he might have caught two home runs that plopped right over the premises. But when Blades chased back, there was always a safety razor sign in the way. Wouldn't blame Burleigh Grimes a bit if he gave up shaving and joined the House of David ball team. That pair of homers put the game in the box, right on top of the ice cubes for the A's.

I know that spit is a horrid word, but that is what Burleigh puts on the front end of his delivery. When he is going right with that old saliva ball of his, it is like standing in a cloud of mist. In fact, Burleigh is the only pitcher in baseball who needs a towel more in the pitcher's box than in the shower bath.

Nick Altrock

It is tough to yield five runs on five hits, but the A's were watching for every opening like a Fuller brush salesman at the front door.

The Cards have got a pretty picture on the front of their uniforms. It shows a bird out on a limb, and that is just where the Cards will be if they don't win today. Gabby Street will toss Flint Rhem in the box, if a band of gypsies didn't kidnap him last evening and make him drink near beer all night long.

Well, folks, now that I am an expert, I get a free seat up with the sporting writers, and I want to tell you the A's have the highest press box in the world outside of the Eiffel Tower. It is up under the top rafters with the pigeons, and when you look down on the playing field it is just like seeing a World Series from a Graf Zeppelin.

When I first surveyed the diamond from the expert's perch, I thought the A's and Cards were a couple of miniature golf holes. The experts are dizzy enough already without sending them up top of the second balcony and today, when I put on my expert's clothes, I am going to add a parachute.

President Hoover arrived at the game promptly, just so the crowd would not mistake him for Jimmy

The Athletics did it with five hits.

The American League champions showed the experienced baseball eyes at the opening skirmish of the World Series yesterday that a pitcher can be batted hard and yet allow only five hits.

Those five hits small in number, bulked big. They consisted of two home-run drives out of the park, two tripples and a two-bagger, and were good for a total of 16 bases.

These five swats all extra-base hits, enabled the Athletics to win the opening game of the World Series from the Cardinals in amazing style by a score of 5 to 2.

I have tried to search my memory back in World Series history but I cannot recall a game in the classic in which one team made five runs out of five hits or an instance where every hit was good for extra bases.

It just goes to show what a flair the Athletics have for doing the remarkable.

Defeat is the usual fate for a team that can show no more than five safeties in the hit column and here is a case where Burleigh Grimes was actually batted severely although keeping the Athletics' limit down.

FAILED IN PINCHES

I will give Grimes credit for pitching well on the whole but in the pinches he couldn't master the Athletics. He was just five steps from pitching a wonderful game.

The only way he could have shut out the Athletics would have been to allow no hits for every time the Athletics connected with the ball to safe territory they scored a run—that was what Grimes was up against.

It must have been an uncomfortable feeling for him to have when he saw all of his effort wasted by the fact that there was always some Athletic batsman waiting to hit him in a pinch.

Foxx, Simmons and Cochrane my three broad backs formed the trio that had the most to do with the conquest from the batting standpoint.

REAL BACK-BONE

Foxx collected the first hit when he tripled to the right field wall in the second inning and Bing Miller sent him home on a sacrifice fly. Then Simmons hit the ball over the right field wall in the fourth for a home run and Cochrane duplicated the smash in the eighth.

These players are called the backbone of my batting order and they all came through like lions and gave the Cardinal pitchers sitting on the bench an idea of what kind of a punch we have.

Then Jim Dykes, with a double in the sixth, scored another run while Haas' triple in the seventh resulted in him scoring on the squeeze.

No doubt this strategy stunned Grimes and his support. Haas was in motion at the windup and Boley never laid down a bunt and, of course, the run scored.

That little coup reflected the variety of our attack. We scored runs with drives over the wall and also scored one on a tiny bunt. A team that can do these things keeps the rivals guessing.

PRAISES GROVE

While the box score shows more hits off Grove than Grimes, you must give the left hander credit for pitching a "heady" game.

I have seen him with far more stuff than he showed yesterday, but I seldom have seen him pitch so intelligently before. The fact is that Grove is rapidly becoming a smart pitcher and no longer depends on sheer speed alone.

Just regard his composure in the third inning when he slipped in fielding Grimes' bunt. The bases were full and none out, but Grove never once losing his poise, calmly got the side out at the small expense of two runs scored on sacrifice flies. You have to have a pitching heart to do a thing like that.

After Bishop scored the run that put us ahead in the sixth, I felt that this meant victory because I did not think that Grove could be scored on again and this turned out to be true.

The Athletics backed up their timely hitting with some daredevil fielding. Boley's stop of Douthit's ground smash in the seventh was a classic. He stopped the ball with a dive and, then while on the ground, got the ball to Bishop for a sensational force of Grimes.

Had that ball gone through for a single, Grove would have been in a peck of trouble, for Adams followed with a single.

Then the inning ended with Bishop getting Frisch's bid for a hit with his gloved hand after a leap. These were two conspicuous infield plays that were life savers.

Cochrane made the third stunning defensive play when he ran to the edge of our dugout to catch Mancuso's foul. That shows that my boys were keyed up to do their best.

The Cardinals didn't surprise me. I knew they were a great team and would not be easy to beat. Grimes pitched good ball, but we always had somebody to step up in a pinch and deal a blow.

Of course, victory in the first game has made us all radiantly happy. It means a lot to get the jump on your rival in a short series, and I know that the Cardinals felt certain of winning with Grimes, their ace, yesterday afternoon. His defeat undoubtedly was a shock to them, but, nevertheless, they will come out fighting hard today.

On the other hand, we will go on the field determined to make it two straight.

Long's Sport Comment

club in a title game is nine, set by the Pirates against Washington in 1925, and the record for total bases by one club is 32, made by the Yanks against the Cards in 1928.

But in another respect Philadelphia's odd collection of hits did set a new Series record, aside from the unusual feature that the Mackmen made five runs on five hits. It marked the first time that any club ever went through a game in the post-season stakes without making a single.

Charley Gelbert

THOUGH THEIR WORK did not count for as much as did that of Boley and Bishop as far as the result of the opening game was concerned, Charley Gelbert and Frankie Frisch have not failed to perform up to expectations around the keystone for the Cardinals. The fielding of both was brilliant in the inaugural, a game that was errorless on both sides, and both also delivered on the offensive. Frisch is living up to his reputation as one of the greatest money players of all time, and indications are that he will have a worthy running mate throughout the series in the young shortstop who is under title fire for the first time.*

THE AMERICAN LEAGUE, by winning Wednesday, kept up its record of not having lost a World Series opener since 1924, in addition to lengthening its string of victories to 13 out of 14 straight games. Every year in the meantime the opening game has gone to the younger major circuit.

In spite of that record and their defeat in the opener, the Cards still have a precedent on which to base some hope for 1930. In 1926 they not only lost the first game, but dropped three of the first five, yet they beat out the Yanks for the championship. Gabby Street might help matters a little in the present series by taking Jim Bottomley out of the clean-up notch in the batting order and placing him lower on the list when a lefthand pitcher is working for the A's. Bottomley looked very feeble against Grove.

WHEN MAX BISHOP'S jumping catch of Frankie Frisch's liner in the seventh inning of the opener turned a bid for a triple into a putout and robbed the batter of a hit, Frisch was prevented from setting a new World Series record for total number of hits made in title competition.

As it [illegible] equaled the record established by Eddie Collins. The latter made nine hits in 1910, six in 1911, eight in 1913, three in 1914, nine in 1917, and seven in 1919. Frisch probably will beat the record before completing the present series, which is his sixth, the same number of series in which Collins hung up the original figures.

M'CARTHY MAY PILOT YANKS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Joe McCarthy, deposed manager of the Chicago Cubs, told the Associated Press last night that, while negotiations were strictly in the preliminary stage, he had virtually discarded an offer to manage the Red Sox in preference to accepting a chance to pilot the New York Yankees.

McCarthy made it plain he had reached no definite agreements or signed any contracts, but clearly indicated the New York club wanted his services and he was in a receptive mood to undertaking the job of trying to put the Yankees back on top of the American League heap. The former Cub boss admitted having a telephone chat with E. G. Barrow, secretary of the Yankees, and added that he expected later in the week to go to New York for perhaps a final conference with Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the club.

BELMONT, RUDY IN TUBE CITY BATTLES

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

With the weather considerably cooled off and the scheduled Hickey Park show canceled, Promotor Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, figures to get his first break of the new indoor boxing season tonight, when he dishes up a double windup card for his patrons in the Palisades Roller Rink. Pickings have been lean so long for Jim, dating far into last season, that he has learned to laugh off his losses, but he has been hanging on for a change in his luck and it may be just around the corner. He has the district field all to himself tonight.

Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, boxes Johnny Popicg, of Wheeling, in the windup, and Young Rudy, of Charleroi, is in with Paul Oger, also of Wheeling, in the two 10-round bouts. In two six-rounders, Lloyd Clements, of Swissvale, boxes Mike Kelly, of the South Side, and Sharkey Lesko, a McKeesport, opposes Leonard Payne, Pittsburgh Negro welterweight.

MOOSE TEMPLE SET

Apples Meyers, Moose Temple promoter, is all set for his second show in the downtown arena tomorrow night. He has Marty Gold, of Philadelphia, in with Frankie (Kid) Anslem, Negro bantamweight, of New York, for his 10-round windup and Billy Holt and Jimmy Kelly in the six-round semi-final, with Eddie Hebner boxing Eddie Polo and Peaches Gallagher meeting Tom Anderson in the two preliminaries. Gallagher takes the place of Joe Goudy, who has a cut eye.

Both Joe Glick, of New York, and Tony Herrera, of Chicago, will be in town Sunday and will work out here that day for their 10-round battle featuring the reopening of Motor Square Garden the following night, according to announcement made today by Matchmaker Jules Beck.

Between Rounds

Joe Anderson and Vincent Forgione go at the Sesqui Stadium in Philadelphia tonight. K. O. Kelly meets Mike Dempsey, K. O. Kitts battles Joe Rusko and Jack Rose tackles Hoot Burger in 10-round bouts, making up a benefit show in Barberton, O., while Frankie Clore meets Edgar Norman at Chicago.

King Levinsky, of Chicago, and Tom Kirby, of Boston, will box the 10-round semi-final to the Al Singer-Eddie Mack non-title bout at the Chicago Stadium, October 14. Levinsky knocked out Leo Lomski in his most recent start.

Pete Nebo, the Seminole Indian, boxes Joe Barbara at the Ridgewood Grove Club, in Brooklyn, Saturday night.

Baby Joe Gans, crack Negro junior-welterweight, who recently knocked out Young Saylor at the Meyers Bowl, meets Billy Townsend, the Coast star, at Detroit, one week from tonight. Black Bill and Franklin Young, Negro flyweights, both of whom have shown here, box in Detroit, October 23.

Fidel LaBarba and Kid Chocolate are billed for a return bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, November 3. Chocolate also tosses Benny Nabors in New York, October 16, and Leo (Kid) Roy Young in Detroit.

Izzy Grove, New York middleweight, meets Ismael Ara, Cuban, at Havana, next Thursday night.

Ralph Fiumello, Italian heavyweight, of New York, who recently has knocked out both George Hoffman and Marty Fox, boxes Ted Sandina at the St. Nicholas arena in New York, October 14.

Billy McMahon meets Tony Caraglione and Robert Gillo engages Emil Rossi in 10-round bouts at the St. Nick Club next Tuesday night.

Kid Kola boxes Maxie Lasner in New York tonight. Harry (Kid) Wallace, who has looked around here, meets Ole Neeman at Fort Hamilton, L. I.

Joey LaGiey, former Johnstown welterweight, boxes Irish Tommy Jordan, of Brooklyn, who recently out Buck McTiernan at Hickey Park, Millvale, in a 10-round bout in New York tomorrow night. Harry Sanders and Joe Ryder are in the 10-round semi-final.

Archie Bell, who proved such a wow against Jackie Rodgers at Motor Square Garden last spring, faces Johnny Peña in one of the 10-round supporting bouts on the Jack Sharkey-Ray Miller card that opens the season in Madison Square Garden, New York, tomorrow night. Pete Sametel and Joe Scalfaro are in another 10-rounder.

Gene Baker, former Penn state football, later a boxer out of Johnstown, now is campaigning as a heavyweight in New York rings.

Big Reds-Cards Deal in Making

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—The Enquirer says it has information that negotiations are practically completed for a deal between the Reds and Cardinals whereby Red Lucas and Joe Stripp, of the Reds, are to be traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for Jim Bottomley and Taylor Douthit. The paper says its information comes from a person identified with the St. Louis management, adding the deal will be completed after the World Series.

Chartiers Heights Wins Over St. Clair

Although the St. Clair Country Club defeated Chartiers Heights, 103 to 89, in their team match yesterday, the Chartiers team won the 36-hole competition between the clubs with a score of 150 to 146. Chartiers Heights held a lead of 61 to 43 points from the first 18-hole round of the 36-hole competition, staged early last summer over the Crafton Heights layout, before yesterday's play began. George McClure had low gross, a 71.

GROVE LUCKY TO WIN OVER CARDS—RUTH

MACK SOUTHPAW NOT IN USUAL MOUND FORM

By BABE RUTH,
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—The Athletics won this all-important opening game of the world series without the help which Lefty Grove was expected to supply. I don't want to take anything from Lefty Grove because he had to do plenty of pitching to hold those Cardinals to two runs, but he certainly wasn't at his best this afternoon. When Lefty is right those third strikes whistle, and they were neither numerous nor whistling yesterday. The A's won on just fair pitching by a great boxman, who was favored by brilliant fielding in the crisis when the game seemed about to slip away from him. That was in the seventh inning and those two plays by Boley and Bishop undoubtedly kept Grove from being batted out of his first world series start.

Babe Ruth

Boley's play belongs among the sizzlers of world series performances. Grimes had singled in the seventh, and from our lofty perch in the press box it was apparent that Lefty's fast one had lost a lot of its early zip. Mickey Cochrane glanced over at the dugout and it seemed to me that he perhaps was letting Connie know that things were not going right. The score at the time was 3 to 2 and a break here probably meant the ball game.

GROVE HIT HARD

It was not due to any skill of Grove's that the Cardinals were set down in this inning without a run. Everybody socked him. Douthit hit hard toward left and then Boley came in with his sparkler. He blocked a hard hit ball, then made a quick recovery and a snap throw to Bishop, forcing Grimes at second base. How much that play was worth became evident a minute later when Adams smacked another single to left. It would have scored a run but for Boley's great play. Frisch also hit the ball hard but Bishop grabbed the drive which was heading for the score board where the three baggers bloom at Shibe Park.

Grimes pitched the kind of ball that ends in victory more often than in defeat. But he couldn't keep those heavy hitters from targing him for long drives. Seldom in a season do you see a team win by a fairly good margin without getting more than one hit in any inning. The A's could not bunch even two hits off Grimes in any inning and still they won. They are a great team for making a little hitting go a long way.

As far as the pitching goes nobody will deny that Grimes carried off the honors and yet the A's carried off the ball game. Just tough to beat, whether they are hitting lightly, or getting only fair pitching. But they have made winning a habit for almost three years.

LIKES CARDS' SPIRIT

I liked the hustle and the spirit of the Cardinals and I think this is going to be quite a series. It starts out as likely to be a lot hotter than the series between the A's and Cubs last year. The players are ragging one another and that is a good sign. It will be hard fought, no matter who wins. The A's make all their series that way and I can see that Street has his Cardinals hustling.

I liked the play of Gelbert particularly. I figure he is the player who made the Cards a championship team this year and I believe in another season he will be the greatest all-around shortstop in baseball. His throwing is pretty to look at. He is batting eighth but I will believe he is the player that the A's pitchers will have to watch in this series. He stepped up and tagged Grove for a pair of clean hits on his first two World Series opportunities, and his fielding was always sure.

Except for the seventh, when Boley and Bishop made those great plays, it was not a thrilling ball game. But it was a well-played game. There was no sign of nervousness on either side. But what the game lacked in thrills it made up in tenseness as it was always close enough to be upset by three or four hits in a row.

SCHOOLS PLAY TOMORROW

With the defending champions again idle, the City League will run off their third week of its 1930 gridiron championship campaign with five games on the books tomorrow afternoon, two in Section I and one in Section II.

Schenley, possessors of the title for the past three years, will wind up their practice for their non-league game Saturday with Norwin, while its chief rivals, Westinghouse, is meeting Fifth Avenue at Malone Field. Westinghouse will play its first league game of the season against Fifth.

South High moves on Peabody, this game being scheduled for Westinghouse Stadium. The East Enders are favored over the South Siders, although Washabaugh's well drilled eleven has better than an outside chance of upsetting the dope.

In Section II, Carrick and Oliver tie up in what promises to be a great duel. In an intersectional fracas, Allerdice takes on South Hills, Perry meets Shady Side Academy at Shady Side, and Allegheny travels to Steubenville for a game there.

Saturday, Langley follows Schenley out of town, meeting Johnstown High in the Flood City.

PIN LEAGUE OPENS

Tonight will mark the inaugural of the 1930-31 bowling season of the Westinghouse Ten Pin League, the oldest ten pin league organization in Allegheny County. The league was established in 1902, with a personnel of 20 members. Five of the original 20 members are still actively engaged.

FASSINGER CAPTAIN

Irving Fassinger last night was elected captain of the Trinity Cathedral Royals basketball team, succeeding Melvin Schorr, who is attending Pennsylvania State College this year. Louis Williams was elected vice captain. The Royals and Royal Reserves will begin play early in November, and games may be booked by consulting Vern Swartzfager, in care of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, or T. Aubrey Davies at Trinity Cathedral, Sixth avenue.

Maybe, at that, Burleigh Grimes wasn't so far wrong in popping off about what he'd do to the Athletics before the series opened . . . It was too late after he lost that tough one . . . Grove doesn't groove 'em, as the Cards found out to their sorrow . . . Believe it or not, but the National League has won only one game in world series combat since 1926, that having been taken by the Cubs from the Athletics last fall . . . In 1927 and 1928, the Yankees made clean sweeps of the Pirates and Cardinals, respectively . . . Counting yesterday's defeat of the Cardinals by the A's, the American League has won 13 games in its last 14 starts against the National League champions, showing what a tough job Barge Street and his Cardinals face in their attempt to re-establish National League supremacy in the classic struggles.

When is a golfer neither an amateur nor a pro? . . . The answer my dear, dear Aloysius, is when his name is George Von Elm, and that probably makes him an Elk . . . The St. Thomas team of Scranton, which was just nosed out, 7-6, by Herb McCracken's Lafayette eleven last Saturday and plays Temple at Philadelphia tomorrow night, is coached by Spike Harding, former Pitt halfback.

Jack Sharkey is sore at New York and the boxing writers there. His complaint is that they were responsible for the collapse of his Campolo fight by dwelling on his shortcomings, which, he contends, are mainly imaginary . . . They expect too much from him, he holds, and, when he fails to do the impossible, proceed to put him on the pan . . . It's a matter of record that a referee once did more damage to a boxer than his opponent did and cost the ringster a swell chance to win a title . . . It was in the battle between Jimmy Goodrich and Stanislaus Loayza in the final round of the lightweight elimination tournament in New York, with Gunboat Smith, the old heavyweight boxer, acting as the third man in the ring . . . The Gooner stepped on Loayza's right ankle and broke it, and, when the Chilean was unable to continue his opponent was declared the winner and new champion on a technical knockout, a queer ending.

Babe Hunt, the Oklahoma heavyweight, now makes his home in Philadelphia, where he meets Jack Renault next Monday night . . . One of these days, Hunt may be called upon to fight George Panka, of Homestead, here, and the feature of such a meeting would lie in the fact that Panka began his career as a sparring partner for the Oklahoma Gusher out in Tulsa a little more than a year ago.—HARRY KECK.

COLONELS TRIP WINGS, 6-5

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 2.—(AP.)—With a ninth-inning rally that staved off defeat, for the time being at least, in the Little World Series, the Louisville American Association champions defeated the Rochester International flag winners, 6 to 5, in the seventh game, here yesterday.

Had Rochester won, the Red Wings would have left Louisville wearing the championship crown of the minor leagues, which they have futilely sought for the past two years and are seeking again. The tally now stands four games for Rochester and three for Louisville, with five needed for the crown.

Verona Baseball Nine Is Banqueted

Members of the Verona Community baseball team, Greater Pittsburgh Class A elimination champion, were honor guests at a banquet given by the Verona booster organization last evening at the Eagles' Hall, Verona.

About 200 fans attended the affair, which was one of the most successful baseball banquets ever held in the district. Rev. R. N. Stumpf was toastmaster and Burgess Bumgardner, Councilman Harry Little, of Pittsburgh; Howard M. Cribbs, R. S. Jones, C. D. Carey and Manager Bill Bright, of the Community team, were among the speakers.

The Book Shoe team, champion of the City League, also celebrated at a banquet last night in the Hotel Henry. August Buch, sponsor of the team, was toastmaster.

BURNS 7-0 VICTOR

10,000 ATTEND GRID LEAGUE NIGHT GAME

By TOM BIRKS.

With 10,000 fans packing every vantage point at Parnassus High School Field, Burns A. A. of New Kensington, opened its season in the Western Pennsylvania independent gridiron conference by defeating the Majestic Radios, 7 to 0, last night.

The only score of the game came on a peculiar play when Toby Uansa fired a long forward pass to Halpate. The ball bounced out of the halfback's hands, hit a Majestic player, and Chile, Burns end, leaped into the air, caught the pigskin and stepped over the goal line for a touchdown. Tom Parkinson kicked the extra point.

It was a bitterly-fought game between two great teams. The Majestics took the field minus Levy, its star halfback, the St. Louis baseball club refusing to let the Quantico Marine get into the game.

UANSA, ROONEY STAR

The dominating play of two former Pitt stars was the outstanding feature of the game. Toby Uansa got started in the second half and reeled off some brilliant broken field running. At the other end of the field, Jimmy Rooney was flashing the greatest exhibition of punting ever seen on the independent gridiron since Billy Doll left town.

Little ball carrying marked the first half, the outstanding piece of work being the interception of one of Uansa's passes by Mose Kelsh on the Burns 40-yard line.

CHILE SCORES

The second half found the roaming Uansa flashing some of the stuff that named him on many All-America teams last year. The Rox boy reeled off 18 yards off tackle and then 12 more to put Burns in a scoring position. This was followed by the pass that Chile carried over.

The Majestics came to life in the final quarter when Jimmy Rooney started throwing forward passes from his own 35-yard line. One to Guarino netted 25 yards and this was followed by Sweeney taking one good for 12. Jimmy then pulled a fake pass to place the ball on the Burns' 11-yard line.

That was the last attempt to cross that line, however, and Burns took the ball. Halpate kicked to remove the danger, and the game ended.

RADIOS HOLD EDGE

In the matter of downs, the Majestics had the edge with 8 to 6 for Burns. Parkinson flashed plenty of stuff on the defense, but Uansa was the only ground gainer. Pandro looked great in the Black and White line. Jimmy Rooney outpunted Halpate, but the running of Levy was missed. It was, without doubt, one of the greatest games ever played on the local sandlots. The lineup:

Burns—7		Majestics—0
Chile	L. E.	Graham
Sweeney	L. T.	Rhodes
Tallman	L. G.	Karris
Pandro	C.	Benedict
Kaiser	R. G.	O'Malley
Cullen	R. T.	Harris
McKean	R. E.	Guarino
Sharkey	Q.	Hunt
Uansa	L. H.	Rooney
Halpate	R. H.	Whitmore
Parkinson	F.	Kelsh

Score by periods:

	1	2	3	4	Total
Burns	0	0	0	7	7

Touchdown—Chile. Point after touchdown—Parkinson. Officials: Referee, Umpire—Marker; Linesman, Bell.

A'S AGAINST EARL SMITH

Staff Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—Earl Smith, stormy petrel of the Pittsburgh club and the most colorful character of the colorful World Series of 1925, is "thumbs down" with the Athletics so far as starting a game of the present titular set.

Manager Street admits that he will not start Smith, but he says that Earl is qualified to go under the bat in the event of an injury to Gus Mancuso. And therein seems to lie little drama.

In the 1925 series, Smith engaged certain stars of the Washington club in such conversation at the plate that they forgot they had bats in their hand until they were out. When the series ended there was a strong feeling among many American Leaguers that Smith had talked the Washington boys out of some World Series ball games.

The latest reports on the Smith situation are to the effect that the enemy will countenance anybody behind the plate, aside from Smith.

Mr. Hoover occupies a box right under me, only he was on the ground floor and I had the upper tenement of Mr. Shibe's three-decker. I got an excellent bird's-eye view of the crease in Mr. Hoover's felt hat. If you want to know what the well-dressed President is wearing at ball games this season, it is a brown hat, a brown suit and tan shoes. He looked like he has just stepped out of a fashion advertisement in the rotogravure section. Anyway, Burleigh Grimes pitched a swell game and he will bother the Athletics later if his spit only holds out. This is why, right after the game, Gabby Street ordered Burleigh on a diet of slippery elm tablets and watermelons.

MY 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK, Manager of World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 22.

In spite of the success apparent in the first season of the new-born league, President B. Ban Johnson never deviated from his policy of strengthening the league. He believed that a weak point in the new circuit was Milwaukee and he sought to have this franchise transferred to a city of larger population.

Connie Mack.

Some attempt was made to get into Pittsburgh, but no suitable site could be found in the Steel City. After much consideration, the Milwaukee franchise was transferred to St. Louis, which gave the circuit its fourth city where there was National League opposition.

In the winter of 1901-02, the American League was able to take many of the leading players left in the National League. Those stars, who were skeptical a year before about the stability of the league, now were convinced that it was in the field to stay and did not hesitate to sign contracts with the new circuit.

Therefore, the playing strength of the American League in 1902 was vastly improved over that of 1901.

At the start of the 1902 race, I was destined to face the most troublesome and devastating crisis of my baseball career.

After I had taken Lajoie, Bernhard, Fraser and Duggleby from the Phillies in 1901, the National League club attempted to get an injunction restraining these players from playing with the Athletics.

The lower courts refused to grant the injunction, and this was a big legal victory for us. But we congratulated ourselves too soon. In the meantime, I had added two more Philly players to my list for 1902.

They were Shortstop Monte Cross and Outfielder Elmer Flick. We knew that the Phillies had appealed from the decision in the lower courts, but we were scarcely prepared for the blast we received when the season of 1902 was only one or two days old.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania handed down a decision reversing the lower courts and issued a permanent injunction restraining these Philly players from performing on the Athletics team.

The blow was a staggering one, for with the season under way, I lost the services of nearly every bulwark on my team. To put it mildly, the verdict of the Supreme Court threw us into a panic.

Pitchers Fraser and Duggleby immediately returned to the Phillies. The Philly owners sent for Lajoie and he would have returned to the team had not one self-important and impolite officer of the club, swelling into a balloon over the court victory, attempted to get blood out of the situation.

ACTION PROVES COSTLY

He told Lajoie that he would have to stand for a stiff fine before the Phillies reinstated him. Lajoie was so inflamed over such unfair tactics that he told him to go to a place that is always hot and said he would quit baseball before submitting to any punishment.

Now, Lajoie was rated as one of the mightiest players in baseball and, had he returned to the Phillies, it would have caused an overwhelming moral effect in the profession and probably might have seriously impaired the progress of the American League and possibly have wrecked it.

The National League lost its big chance by the act of this Philly official in attempting to humiliate the great hitter. We immediately took advantage of the situation by sending Lajoie, Flick and Bernhard to the Cleveland club.

The Supreme Court ruling affected the commonwealth of Pennsylvania only and there was nothing to prevent these players from playing in all other states of the circuit out of the court's jurisdiction.

So these players were in the Cleveland lineup in all games except those played in Philadelphia. They kept out of the state as long as the war between the two leagues lasted.

CONNIE REBUILDS CLUB

The loss of all these players was a shock to me that cannot be overestimated. At that time Lajoie was in the zenith of his career, a matchless second baseman and without an equal as a heavy hitter.

Elmer Flick, too, was one of the leading hitters in the game and also in his prime. My pitching staff was shot to pieces by the loss of such curvers as Fraser, Bernhard and Duggleby.

The verdict could not have come at a worse time because the season had started and all of the leading players already had been signed for 1902 and the rule of the American League was that we could not take a contract jumper.

Nevertheless, I had to address myself to what looked to be a hopeless task. I received some help from other American League teams. The Red Sox sent me Pitchers Fred Mitchell and Pete Husting. From Cleveland I obtained Catcher Ossee Schreck, who was to gain fame later as Rube Waddell's battery mate.

The Supreme Court decision left me with these players to face the pennant fight: Davis, first base; Castro, second; Monte Cross, short; Lave Cross, third, and Hartsel, Fultz and Seybold in the outfield. Powers and Steelman remained as catchers, while my pitchers were Plank, Husting, Hitchell, Wiltse and Wilson.

MURPHY GOOD PICKUP

Monte Cross had jumped from the Phillies to me during the winter, but for some reason his name was left out in the injunction proceedings and I was able to hold him.

My first real ten-strike was in getting Dan Murphy from the Norwich Club to play second base. Murphy had a trial earlier with the Giants, but had been sent back to the minors.

Friends of mine in Connecticut, realizing my poverty of players, advised me to get Dan without delay and I took the tip. I quietly went to Norwich and arranged a deal that gave me a player who was destined to be invaluable to me for many years.

Nobody ever burst into throwing off more sparks than Dan. In his first game in the Athletic lineup, he had five hits out of five times at bat and played faultlessly at second.

While Lajoie's shoes were unquestionably hard to fill, I realized that I had obtained a mighty good man in his place.

Gloom started to disappear as soon as Murphy joined the team, and Philadelphia fans began to realize that we had a team, after all, even with Lajoie, Flick and others lost.

PITT IN LAST HARD DRILL TODAY

By JESS CARVER

Everything, it is lovely to report, appears to be very much o. k. with the collegers. The Dukes, working diligently on their Bluff practice field, have smoothed most of the rough spots that appeared in the game with Slippery Rock and are all set to present a right snappy club against Detroit Tech under the bright lights at Forbes Field tomorrow evening.

Pitt, despite an injury or two and a fullback with a tummy ache, is in fine shape for West Virginia, and will spend today in staging the last rough workout of the week.

Carnegie Tech, on which gobs of indigo descended when Tank Highberger was stricken with appendicitis, has brightened up a bit after learning that the big tackle may not have to undergo an operation at this time and may be back on the club in a week or so.

S. R. O. SIGN OUT

From out of Morgantown, where they are getting ready for a hot old time Friday and Saturday, and preparing to put a whole flock of kinks in the tail of the Pitt Panther, the word comes that Mountaineer Field is sold out; that there isn't a hotel room to be had in the town and that the city is planning to grant permission to outsiders to pitch tents around the town pump Friday night.

Detroit Tech does not figure to put very much of a crowd into Forbes Field tomorrow evening. Slippery Rock, well known hereabouts and fresh from an upset victory over Waynesburg, drew less than 10,000. Detroit Tech, almost totally unknown, won't do much better, because the locals have won themselves a following of no mean proportions, and because the night game is still somewhat of a novelty, the Oakland park won't be exactly empty.

Local fans will have an opportunity to glimpse a pretty good fullback here Saturday as the Tartans entertain Thiel College's Lutherans. In Dick Myers, 185-pound fullback, the aforesaid Lutherans boast a right snappy line bucker and a smart defensive player.

NEW UNIFORMS

Myers last week pounded the daylights out of Temple University's line in Philadelphia. He came out of the contest in good physical trim, and thus appears set to worry the Tartans Saturday.

Thiel always gives the fans a fine show. Coach Rowley employs spread formation, with no slight emphasis on the aerial attack and with a running attack directed mainly outside the tackles and ends. Tech, resplendid in new uniforms (you'll see 'em for the first time Saturday) has an attack which is colorful as usual, if not more so.

BOILS HIT W. VA.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Boils have invaded the ranks of West Virginia University's Mountaineers, but boils or no boils, the squad is hard at work for the Pitt game this weekend. Several players were reported afflicted with the ailment yesterday.

Wilkinsburg Golfers Cop Hart Trophy

The Wilkinsburg Rotary Club golf team defeated the Homestead Rotary Club by 31 points at the Edgewood Country Club yesterday, and is now the permanent possessor of the J. Paxton Hart golf cup. Dr. Le Roy Crafty won the low gross prize with a score of 77.

NUGENT STOPPED

FLINT, Mich., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Roger Bernard, featherweight of Flint, won a technical knockout over Steve Nugent, of Cleveland, in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round headline bout here last night.

How Courage Can Increase Your Business

—By B. C. FORBES—

WHAT EVERY business man wants to know is, "How can I increase my business at a profit?"

Read what follows.

Mr. Forbes

THE FISHING industry of Britain declined several years ago as badly as numbers of American industries have lately declined.

Today it is flourishing.

This transformation did not just happen; brains caused it to happen.

How?

SIR GOMER BARRY tells the story thus, as related in a stirring address by James Wallen, of the Robert Hamilton Corporation:

"For several years past the plight of our fishing industry has been notorious.

"A couple of years ago a scheme was put before the leading firms of trawler owners that they should spend a sum of money on advertising fish as an article of diet. Eventually, the whole trade agreed to a levy of one penny on the pound sterling (2 cents on $5) on the value of all the fish landed, the proceeds to be spent on advertising.

"Last year, this levy totaled £140,000 ($700,000), and the whole of it has been spent on the 'eat more fish' campaign with which the world is now familiar. The results have been simply amazing. The revenue of British trawler owners has been increased by no less a sum than £1,100,000 ($5,500,000) and the sales of fish have gone up by 37,000 tons in one year.

"Today, trawlers, which in the ordinary way were laid up for a considerable part of the year, are now working full time. In addition, 72 new boats have already been launched, with the result that the shipyards engaged in building trawlers were working to full capacity."

WHAT HAS BEEN happening in the United States?

Since the need for securing business became greater following last year's slump, have different industries and corporations utilitized with redoubled vigor this effective of all weapons, advertising?

Broadly speaking, with certain notable examples, they have not.

INSTEAD OF COURAGE, business and financial America have been giving a deplorable exhibition of cowardice. Our largest corporations have been among the most guilty of all. The first thing some of them did was to dismiss salesmen and to cancel advertising contracts.

In other words, when the need became greatest, they did not increase their efforts; they curtailed, weakened their efforts. A wonderful exhibition of long-headed business statesmanship!

THIS SAME policy of fear still grips many corporations and business men—not to mention investors. Although we have entered the season when advertising contracts for the coming year usually are placed, many industrial and commercial concerns are delaying action. They keep holding off and holding off.

Their attitude, apparently, is:

"If business shows signs of coming in without aggressive advertising, we will go ahead and advertise freely. If it looks as if it will be necessary to hustle very hard to get business, then we won't try."

LORD MELCHETT, notably successful British industrialist, told an American audience recently:

"What America needs is not an economist but a psychologist."

UNLESS CONSTRUCTIVE leadership begins to assert itself shortly, unless high finance and big business begin to exhibit more courage and less cowardice, unless faith in the future displaces the present fear, unless reason supplants unreason, conditions, which should and could be improved, may degenerate from bad to worse.

ARE OUR VAUNTED, sturdy Americanism, our boasted confidence in our young country, the richest and heretofore most resourceful in the world, to reassert themselves? Or are we backbonelessly to take a licking lying down?

Duquesne Gas Adds To Reserve Supply

Natural gas reserves of the Duquesne Gas Corporation now amount to more than 82,000,000,000 cubic feet, these to be augmented from time to time, the corporation announced today. The corporation states that new wells recently brought in have been averaging more than 1,000,000 cubic feet a day. It is now operating 157 natural gas wells in Pennsylvania and West Virginia. Over 99 per cent of the gas produced by the corporation is sold under contract to large industrial enterprises and prominent public utility companies supplying the domestic and industrial requirements of Pittsburgh and vicinity.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Decline

Local Market Steady

STOCK PRICES AGAIN HEAD DOWNWARD

Traders' Rush for Profits Turns Market Lower After Starting Day at Advance

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—The stock market once more took the familiar course today that it often finds leading down from the tops of such abrupt rises as that of yesterday.

After further extension of the advance in the opening transactions in-and-out traders rushed to take profits and a large portion of the ground gained during the one-day advance was lost. Selling in the main, however, was in moderate volume.

Stocks declining 2 points or more included United States Steel, General Electric, Anaconda Consolidated Gas, American Telephone, Paramount-Famous-Lasky, North American and Loew's. Stocks losing 4 to 6 included International Harvester, New York Central, United Aircraft, Marx, Case and Baltimore and Ohio. United Fruit was a conspicuous weak spot, tumbling 7 points. International Telephone a weak feature yesterday was well supported around 29, however, and Radio was fairly steady.

STOCK SLUMPS

Weakness in United Fruit reflected a sharp slump in third-quarter earnings attributed to an oversupply of fruit and vegetables in both the United States and Europe during the summer. It was pointed out, however, that the oversupply of domestic fruits normally clears up in the fall, and the banana business improves. Farm implements were also under sharp pressure. International Harvester breaking below 65, last November's minimum. The grain markets, nevertheless, continued to reflect the improved buying apparent recently.

Only for a short time after announcement of the failure of a curb market house did large-scale selling appear in this market. This failure, however, was regarded as of a minor nature, presumably an aftermath of the Sisto failure on Tuesday.

Traders, however, were obviously unwilling to attempt to push farther such a violent upswing as that of yesterday. An occasional technical rebound is an expected development in a declining market. Traders watched closely the action of stocks as they approached the low points of the decline, mostly recorded on Tuesday.

UNDER 1929 LOWS

While most of the well-known market averages or price indices have not as yet approached the low levels of last November, a compilation shows that a little more than half of the total number of active shares have recently broken through the November resistance points. This has not been reflected in the averages, for they are largely based on more prominent shares which receive the best support.

Many observers professed to see strong buying in the market on Tuesday, and there is a feeling in bull quarters that the market will receive powerful support around the bottom levels of last autumn's crash.

There was little in the day's news to influence the market either way. Many traders were inclined to await the effects of President Hoover's address before the American Bankers Association, and the disclosures of the Federal Reserve condition and brokerage loan figures, to be published after the close. Call money held unchanged at 2 per cent.

Legge Recommends Commodity Buying

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, said today that he thought the time has come when it is desirable for commodity investment buying. Mr. Legge, queried about the rise in wheat during the past few days, said that somebody must be getting some confidence in it.

Chairman Legge stated that no formal proposition has been put before the board by foreign groups for the purchase of 100,000,000 bushels of wheat on long-term government credit. He said he had a suspicion, however, that something of that sort may be going on.

Cellophane Prices Cut by Output

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The Du Pont Cellophane Company has cut the price of cellophane one-quarter of a cent on each 1,000 square inches. The reduction brings the current price of large quantities of moisture-proof cellophane to 5¼ cents a thousand square inches and regular cellophane to 3¼ cents.

Chrysler September Shipments Decline

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—Shipment of Chrysler cars, trucks and buses in September totaled 15,738, compared with 18,148 in August and 37,985 in September, 1929.

Estimated total number of Chrysler motor cars in dealers' field stocks on September 30 was considerably lower than at the same date in any of the preceding four years.

Ward's September Sales Show Drop

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Montgomery Ward & Co.'s September sales amounted to $21,332,576, a decrease of $4,795,013 from September, 1929. Nine months' sales totaled $191,153,121, a decrease of $2,548,664 from the 1929 period.

5,000 BANKERS SEE SLUMP IN TRADE OVER

American Association Issues Optimistic Message; Indorse Branch Banking

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2—At this critical period, when the plain citizen is seeking guidance as to the business outlook, more than 5,000 of the principal commercial bankers of the country, in attendance here at the fifty-sixth annual convention of the American Bankers Association gave out the message that it was their collective opinion that the depression has run its course.

PROPHETIC WORDS

After an open row on the convention floor which resulted in a compromise resolution weakening the association's traditional opposition to branch banking the resolutions committee won unanimous approval of its pronouncement on the business outlook. The prophetic words of the bankers were:

"There are evidences that the present depression has about run its course. Judged by historic precedences, we have now reached low ebb and with the resumption of construction very gradual but definite improvement may be expected."

The bankers ascribed the depression to

"A world-wide situation due largely to the sharp decline in the price level of raw materials. This decline has followed in the wake of most great wars, and is part of the process of readjustment needed to restore the equilibrium which was upset by the forced production necessitated in all countries to carry on the war."

Obviously the association cannot by passing a resolution create flat prosperity. Nevertheless the sober collective opinion of the nation's bankers deserves a hearing. It is more likely to be a sincere reading of the signposts than the propaganda of bear raiders at the stock exchange.

AYERS SPEAKS

Col. Leonard P. Ayers, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company, in an address before the savings bank division said:

"I am confident that 1931 will be a year of progressive business recovery if we do as we have in the past—progressively accumulate savings.

"We probably have a year of advancing bond prices ahead of us."

Alexander Dana Noyes, financial editor of the New York Times, who spoke on "Cycles of Prosperity," pointed out that pessimism such as has recently engulfed Wall Street, is a usual accompaniment of this phase of the business cycle. He said:

"If the cycle theory assumes an inevitable chapter of contraction after the chapter of expansion, it assumes as an equal certainty the period of new prosperity to follow that."

In explaining why he considered a gradual return of business prosperity inevitable, the speaker added:

"We have our strong and unshaken banking system. The useful powers of our Federal Reserve have been strengthened by the economic readjustment.

GOLD FLOW STEADY

"Our position as creditor country of the world has been re-enforced. With all the sweeping cut in export and import valuations, resulting both from the fall in price and the world-wide economic reaction, our surplus exports over imports is running larger than in any year since 1922. Our national reserve of gold fills up the inflow from Southern and far Eastern continents as fast as it is reduced by outflow to Europe, but, possibly more important than these powerful elements of economic strength, o producers, our financiers and the American public as a whole, are facing their financial problems soberly and intelligently, setting down to hard work; discarding completely the dangerous illusions of the past two years, and getting ready to meet and turn to the community's advantage whatever realities may be ahead of us."

In spite of the usual efficiency of the steam roller at such conventions delegates refused to accept the resolution on branch banking without revision. After three speeches of opposition to the committee's report were made the committee met with their critics and embodied enough of their qualifications to make the resolution acceptable. The committee proposed indorsing community-wide and county-wide branch banking but later added:

"The association supports in every respect the autonomy of the laws of the separate states in respect to branch banking. No class of banks in the several states should enjoy greater rights than banks chartered under the state laws."

The new resolution as adopted modifies the previous position of the association which on three previous occasions after acrimonious debate opposed branch banking in any form. But the moderns especially the representatives of the larger banks felt that the association in its ultra-conservatism had let the parade of actual events pass by it.

Petroleum Wells Total Higher In 1929

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2. Petroleum was extracted during 1929 from 328,200 wells in the United States which gave an average daily yield per well of 8.4 barrels. These figures announced by the United States Bureau of Mines compared with a production of 7.6 barrels in 1928 from 327,800 wells.

Pennsylvania, the state which first fostered petroleum production, was still the possessor of the largest number of oil wells last year, credited with 80,320 bores. However, Oklahoma's far fewer wells numbering 61,180 were responsible for a gross petroleum production during the year valued at $364,650,000 or about three times the Pennsylvania output.

DAILY TRUE STORY

A rebellious tear clung to Polly Gail's long, upcurling black lashes as she typed furiously away at her desk in the Clarion's office, finishing her copy for Polly Put The Kettle On—"three and one fourth cups of flour, one fourth tablespoons of salt, two level teaspoons of baking powd—"

She stopped to wipe the tear away, it almost fell on her last page of copy.

"I'll show him I don't care!" she mumbled under her breath, "I—I'll show him!"

She looked across the room at handsome Bart Rayland the object of her thoughts, who at that moment was bending over the desk of the new Society Editor Arlyne Gwinn. Arlyne was one of those small, extremely blonds with unusually black hair.

"Too black to be natural," Polly commented the first time she saw Arlyne. Bart was the nephew of the publisher and had more time than the other men in the office and he had used nearly all that time in rushing Arlyne off her feet.

"He doesn't even know I'm alive since she came," Polly told herself.

Two weeks after Arlyne started working on the Clarion a famous string of pearls was stolen at a masquerade ball. The police, after checking all guests, traced the theft to a small red-headed girl whom they believed to be Clever Cleta, a famous jewel thief. But no trace of the girl could be found. A reward of five hundred dollars was offered and after a week's vain searching the Clarion offered fifty dollars to the first reporter who obtained a real clue.

Incited to Dinner

The office buzzed from morning until night. Rival papers offered rewards. Bill Dowling, star reporter for the Clarion, laughingly told Polly that if he won the reward they would take their vacations at the same time and make it a honeymoon. Polly only smiled, for she knew that under Bill's banter, he was sincere, too sincere, and she liked Bill too well to hurt him. Bill was from her home town.

Then one night Bart asked Polly out to dinner. Her cup of happiness was full, for she realized Bart must care for her after all. He had come to her with a problem.

"Polly, you know they think I'm a dead head in the office. I don't need this reward money, but if I could just get a clue to this Clever Cleta, I'd show that bunch of cheap guys something!"

"Why, Bart, you're as smart as any of them—"

In a short while Bart was telling of some of the big scoops he had made.

Then Polly began thinking about Clever Cleta. If only she could help Bart discover this jewel thief he'd be sure to see she was the girl for him. She found herself noting all the red-headed girls she met, and they were legion.

One day while doing her copy she suddenly remembered hearing her grandmother say that red heads had skin like milk. Other people had fair complexions but not exactly the texture of red-heads. Skin like milk—she had seen skin like that somewhere. Then suddenly she knew. It was Arlyne. But Arlyne had black hair.

"Unnaturally black," Polly mused to herself.

Informs Bill

The next day in the narrow, ill-lighted hall, Polly accidentally stumbled against Arlyne; ...tching out suddenly to grasp something, she caught at Arlyne's thick mop of black curls, releasing them almost instantly. But not before she had felt the curls give. Arlyne caught at her hair frantically and Polly apologized over and over.

That afternoon she was so excited she had to tell someone. Her first thought was of Bart, but even if Arlyne did wear a wig, was that a sure sign she was Clever Cleta? Bart would probably laugh at her or tell her she was jealous. No, she couldn't go to Bart—not yet. Not till she was sure.

Bill came over to her desk and asked her to go out to lunch with him. Before the lunch was half over, she had told Bill of her suspicion.

Bill whistled long and loud. "You may be wrong, Polly, but what a whale of a story! Let me do a little sleuthing first."

Afterward, Polly feared Bill had the wrong idea. Somehow, she couldn't tell Bill she wanted the credit to go to Bart. It sounded so weak.

Two days later Bill stopped at Polly's desk.

"Come out to lunch with me." She looked up questioningly and he nodded.

Polly was so excited she could scarcely wait for the lunch hour. Bart came over later to ask her out to lunch, but she told him she was going with Bill. Bart grew sullen, but Polly was so excited she scarcely noticed it.

"Polly girl, I believe you've done it," Bill exclaimed when they were seated side by side at the Dairy Lunch counter.

"Bill! Are you sure?"

"I'm almost willing to bet my month's salary on it." On their way back to the office Bill outlined his plan.

Mike Cobb was on the force when Clever Cleta was operating in Cincinnati and he knows her. Polly: You invite Bart and Arlyne out to dinner tomorrow night and we'll have Mike come in later.

But when Polly invited Bart he was still sullen. She had to tell him she had a clue to the robbers. His attitude changed instantly.

"Good girl! Don't tell anybody, Polly. Maybe I better come alone?"

"No, Bart, no! Bring Arlyne! She says that is Bill is coming and she can talk to him."

"Polly, be careful and don't let Bill in on this. He's the kind of a guy that would cash in on his own. Be careful, Polly, you know you're talkative and he's slick."

Bart! Bill is not slick. He's clever but not slick. That's a cheap word."

Cobb Arrives

Creaming asparagus that night for the dinner, Polly thought again of the ugly expression that had come into Bart's handsome face.

Near the end of the dinner that night Bart suddenly said: "Wouldn't you be surprised if Polly and I unearthed Clever Cleta?"

Polly looked up surprised and glanced instinctively at Bill. The door bell rang at that moment and as Polly went to answer, the look on Bill's face stayed with her. She didn't seem to be able to describe it. It was as if she had suddenly struck him in the face. Did he think she had told Bart? But she had really intended that Bart should profit by the discovery. What was Bill thinking?

Mike Cobb followed her back to the dining room.

"Bill," she explained glibly, still conscious of that expression on his face, "Mike wants to see you but I made him come in to get a piece of my chocolate cake."

"You know Mike, don't you Bart?" And this is Arlyne Gwinn, our new Society—" But already the situation was out of Polly's hands, as Mike answered:

"Yes, I met her in Cincinnati once but she's changed her name since."

"What do you mean?" Bart advanced threateningly. Arlyne looked up with her helpless baby stare.

"Take me home, Bart! I—I'm tired. I'll get my wrap."

Cleta started toward the bedroom, but Mike caught her by the wrist. "No you don't, my girl! You got away from me once before—" He had slipped the handcuffs over her soft wrists and then with one hand he deftly pulled the mass of black curls from her head, revealing her flaming red hair.

Realizes Mistake

Bart walked over to Mike. "I'm not taking the reward, Mike, it goes to Polly!"

Polly looked from one to the other, but Mike was already leading his prisoner away. Then Polly looked at Bill again, but Bill went into the bedroom and came out with his hat. He followed Mike out.

"Bill, where are you going?"

He turned and looked at her but did not speak.

"Bill, you—you haven't had any chocolate cake yet!" Bill smiled at her and she wanted to cry, but he said nothing and went on down the stairs.

Polly stood still for a moment. Bart came over to her but she motioned him away, ran out the door and blindly down the stairs.

"Bill! Bill, don't go away and leave me! I can't do without you!"

At the foot of the stairs she ran into his out-stretched arms.

Q. AND A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella—
I am about to be married and my husband-to-be works in an office where there are a number of girls and if he takes cigars to the men should he take candy to the girls? ——— Anxious.

Ans.—

As for the fact that you are about to be married; I hope, my good woman, that I may be pardoned for confessing to a rather complete lack of interest in your personal affairs. I had plenty of chances myself, so don't kid yourself on that point. In regard to whether or not your "husband-to-be," as you call him, should take candy to the girls working in his office, I personally think it would be a lot more fun all around if he would take each of them to a good show. You sillies who are getting married give me ainpay in my ummytay.

An interesting example of "the dog in the manger" may be found in the Pittsburgh Railways Company's plea in opposition to the petition of a bus company for permission to operate between Brentwood and downtown Pittsburgh. The bus company offers to carry passengers between the two points for a 15-cent fare.

It seems the people of Brentwood asked the railways company some time ago for better service, and the company answered that it could not make the extensions requested because it was in bad financial condition and could not afford the expense. The people accordingly encouraged the bus company to apply for a franchise. Thereupon the railways company requests that the application be refused because the railways company is in bad financial condition and needs protection from competition.

The railways company is unable to give good service because it is hard up, and because it is hard up—so it reasons—others should not be allowed to furnish the service.

And this brings up the question if it is wise policy to protect public utilities companies from competition. The theory on which it is done is that, since the Public Service Commission regulates the rates that the public utilities may charge and thereby limits their earnings, it is its duty to help them earn all that they can. There is the feeling, also, that unless a public utility prospers it cannot be expected to give good service; therefore companies should be protected from proposed competition that might threaten their prosperity.

But when, as in the case of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, the company uses its lack of prosperity as an excuse for failing to give good service itself and also for opposing the efforts of others who are prepared to give good service—well, it seems the most appropriate thing to do would be to drive the dog out of the manger.

Citizens Disgusted by Vote Machine Delays

The Poole Engineering and Machine Company, to whom the contract has been awarded for supplying Allegheny County with voting machines, has certainly not increased the confidence of the public in its ability to deliver the goods according to contract by its request for a time extension.

The public would like to have confidence in the Poole company. Its bid was lower than that of its competitor, and there would be satisfaction for the taxpayers in the thought that money was being saved by buying the Poole machines. Moreover, the Poole machine was described as having some very desirable and exclusive features, such as the device for printing the result in embossed letters.

But the company's conduct has given the impression that it is indifferent to what the public thinks. It has refused to answer questions of newspaper reporters—legitimate, proper questions asked in good faith; it has not permitted newspaper men to see one of its machines. The County Commissioners apparently haven't tried to find out by inspection what is happening in its manufacturing plant.

Now that suit has been filed by a taxpayer attacking the validity of the contract, the company might have been expected to be more than ever desirous of assuring the public that there was nothing to fear. Instead, it uses the suit as an excuse for asking permission to delay delivering machines until long after the November election. And the majority County Commissioners have granted the request!

No wonder citizens are disgusted.

Home Is Best Place to Begin Safety Education

This week is devoted to the home, so it is appropriate that the Safety Congress should give consideration to the prevention of household accidents. Fathers, mothers and teachers are invited to attend a special meeting at the William Penn Hotel at 9:30 tomorrow morning, at which "Home Safety" will be discussed.

The very word "home" suggests shelter, protection, safety. Unfortunately there are many dangers lurking in the modern home, and people must be on guard against mishaps there as well as elsewhere. The home is the place where safety education should begin. About 24,000 persons lost their lives last year in accidents that occurred in the home. That is almost as many as were killed by automobiles.

If there are old folks in the home, they should be protected from falls, which are responsible for more than one-third of all domestic accidents. Poorly lighted stairs and hallways, slippery floors and skidding rugs, unsteady stepladders cause many a mishap.

Tots need protection from burns, which cause the death of 2,800 children under five years every year. Every fireplace should have its fender.

Prohibition Is Not Only Thing Interesting Voters

Prohibition is a burning question, to be sure; but those politicians who think it is the only thing in which the people are very much interested, the only issue on which it is worth while to base an appeal to the electorate, make a mistake, as is demonstrated by a discussion at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania division of the Izaak Walton League.

The convention, held this week in Harrisburg, opened with the proposal that new efforts be made to secure the passage of legislation to prevent stream pollution. It developed in the discussion that Gifford Pinchot, the Republican nominee for governor, had declared for purification of the streams, but it was asserted that the subject was not even mentioned in the Democratic platform. In consequence of this revelation a strong leaning towards Pinchot soon became apparent among the Waltonians.

The incident is interesting as showing that people are concerned over other things than how the candidates stand on the liquor question. There are hundreds of thousands of fishermen, hunters and nature lovers in Pennsylvania to whom the prevention of stream pollution seems one of the most important matters before the people. Strange as it may seem, there are probably some who regard it as more important, in the gubernatorial contest at least, than the prohibition issue.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Multiple-Cylinders

The first motor car engine was just about powerful enough to put a cap on a soda bottle. Like a Hawaiian dancer, it shimmied a lot, but didn't go anywhere.

Now, the manufacturers are going in for 12, 16 and 48-cylinder cars. The hoods are getting so long the family has to sit in a trailer and the chauffeur uses a side-car.

Have you raised the hood and squinted at one of those 36-cylinder jiggers? Throw a ball of twine in there and the engine will knit you a sweater.

It complicates matters when a thingumbob starts thinging instead of bobbing. As the contraption is a multiple-cylinder job you now suffer from multitudinous carbon and world-wide short circuits.

You raise the hood now and six mechanics walk out. You don't send your car to the garage any more. The repair boys blow a riot call and send the whole garage out to your car.

But they are very exquisite. The motion is as smooth as an apple dumpling sliding back to the kitchen for more sauce. Seventy-two cylinders all purring away as sweetly as an overmoused cat.

All you do is step on the button. It's like opening a world's fair. Over a hundred little valves start popping away and you have to take music lessons so you can tell when the keyboard is out of tune.

A multiple-cylinder job eats up a lot of gasoline and you only get about three traffic cops to the gallon. But the increased skidding efficiency more than makes up for the extra cost.

By next year the manufacturers will be making magnificent thousand-cylinder cars, with fenders, two extra tool chests, and a spare power plant on the back.

There is absolutely no vibration in these new cars except among a nervous passenger. You can glide into a telegraph pole at 80 miles an hour and not even notice you are moving.

We went over to look at some new cars and didn't see anything but derricks. The engines are so big that there is just room inside the tonneau for the windshield wiper to pick your teeth.

But we are going to get one of those multiple-cylinder jobs and keep adding cylinders every year until the car is all hood and we have to ride it bareback.

Isn't It So?

When temptation fails one never hears about it.

Every community has a man who almost caught the largest fish in the world.

Half the optimism in this world consists of making light of other people's troubles.

The rest of the world is mighty thankful to the fellow who keeps his advice to himself.

There isn't much hope for the man who is even too lazy to brag about the way he used to work.

Laws are like men. Every one that doesn't work makes things harder for those that do.

SPONTANEOUS GENERATION

By Archibald Henderson

An endlessly fascinating problem, which scientists may be compelled to study until the end of time, is how life originally came about. The Fundamentalist is satisfied with the Biblical statement that God made Adam out of the dust of the ground. The scientists cannot be content with that answer, which, from the scientific standpoint, leaves the problem unsolved. The scientist seeks to discover the how and the why, as well as the what, of this supreme riddle.

During the Middle Ages, the alchemists set themselves, sometimes impetuously, to the task of discovering some of the deeper mysteries of life, the philosopher's stone, the elixir of life, the transmutation of base into precious metals. They even set themselves the task of the creator; and sought to produce artificially in crucible or retort a human being—a homunculus complete in all parts and properties. It is passing strange that they should have set out upon this mysterious adventure without any advance knowledge of the composition of the creature they were trying to produce.

The scientist does not attempt to produce a homunculus. And for the very good reason that he knows the first step is to discover the nature, qualities and properties of a homunculus. He must take a homunculus apart and find out what it is made of before he attempts to put these materials together to produce a homunculus. Of necessity analysis must precede synthesis.

If we go back to Aristotle, for example, we find that he was no further along, scientifically, than the fundamentalist. He saw nothing unreasonable in the notion that even such highly developed organisms as worms, insects and some fishes could come into being from mud.

Such ideas as this, says L. L. Woodruff in the Origin of Life, are voiced over and over again through more than 20 centuries by philosopher and poet, theologian and layman.

In his De rerum natura, Lucretius says that "with good reason the earth has gotten the name of mother, since all things are produced out of the earth, forming in rain water and in the warm vapors raised by the sun."

Through Virgil and during the mediaeval period, students of nature believed that living creatures were spontaneously generated out of different sorts of dead matter or offal. Cardan, a scientist of no mean ability, and Swan, the author of the Speculum mundi, for example, entertained this curious belief: that a dead horse breeds wasps, a dead mule produces hornets, and a dead ass produces bumble bees!

As late as the Seventeenth Century, scientists entertained the fantastic belief in spontaneous generation. The first figure of importance known to history, to smash this persistent superstition, was Francesco Redi, an eminent Italian scholar, physician and naturalist. By the simplest of experiments, he demonstrated that maggots never developed in meat to which flies were not allowed access and that the seeming transformation of meat into maggots was the result of flies laying their eggs on the meat.

From Redi stems one of the most fruitful scientific generalizations of modern times, namely, that matter does not assume the living state, except under the direct influence of pre-existing living matter.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Suppose you were a modern working girl—

With a good job and a neat little nestegg saved up—

And the usual dreams of a rosy future—

Then suddenly along came A Young Man—

The most wonderful young man on earth—

But, unfortunately, almost the poorest!

Yet, nevertheless, you flopped.

Forgot all about your job and your future.

Went simply loco with love—

And, before you knew it, you were planning, when—

Then what would you do next?

Would you sit tight until the young man earned the wherewithal?

Would you tuck your money safely away and say: "It's up to you, kid?"

Or would you dig joyfully into the old sock and cry: "Here, darling, is my wad! What does it matter whose money it is as long as we both love? Temporate, it's as much my job as yours to furnish the house; so let's go down and look at the new radio!"

Which would you do? Margie H. wants to know. Here's her letter:

DEAR MISS ROBINSON:

Here is a problem several of us want you to settle.

There's a girl who is going to get married. She is a bright, hard working girl and she has saved quite a bit of money. Should she share that money with her husband, helping him furnish the house if he hasn't a cent?

My opinion is that the girl should keep her own money until she is sure that she can trust her husband to use it wisely. There are many cases where the woman gives the man her money—then after he gets it he leaves her flat. I think it is wise to find out what the man is like and if he can be trusted before being so big hearted.

On the other hand, some think that the woman should share all she has, since marriage is on a fifty-fifty basis. What do you think?

MARGIE H.

Perhaps just a careless letter from a giggly kid, but how it reflects the changing world! When before in the world's history did a girl have money of her own making to give—or keep? When was she able to put her man on trial? When could she safeguard her future by keeping an ace up her sleeve? And is it well for her that she can do these things now?

Will she gain, or lose, by this new independence? And what do you think of this idea of giving a man your body and your heart, when you can't quite trust him with your purse?

And how about the man? When, before, has a man had to stand on trial? When has he had to measure up to his wife's code and compete with her efficiency?

And what of marriage under these new conditions? Marriage is bound to be different—you must admit that. Take away all the old reasons for a woman's timidity and servility, take away all the old causes of a man's complacency—and what have you? The doom of marriage—or the salvation? The end of love—or perhaps the beginning of a true and fair relationship between men and women?

Which? What's your answer to it all?

If you were that girl would you save your money and put your man on trial? Or give him your complete trust with your love? And if you were that man what would you want your girl to do?

Let's hear. Write the editor of this paper. He wants to know.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

A young boy in a barber shop deserves a lot of sympathy instead of all the sport they make of him. The poor kid can't help being too young to grow a whisker, and maybe it ain't altogether a misfortune for him to be young. But everybody always makes fun of him for not being old. Well, there was a kid of about 17 went into a barber shop and ordered a shave and a haircut. He said "shave" kinda low, and the barber made him repeat it.

So the barber give him a shave and a haircut and when the kid got out of the chair he looked at himself in the glass, and then moved closer to the glass and run his finger over his upper lip, and then he says, kinda shaky like, as though he'd been robbed, "Where's my mustache? Say, where's my mustache I had one?"

And the barber looked serious and says, "I dunno. I ain't got it, have I? I ain't seen it. Maybe you checked it with your hat when you came in."

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

A Wife's Requests.

I would have you give me
Lovely, fragile things,
Wreaths of budding roses,
Verses gay as wings.

I would have you utter Tender words each day
Brimmed with subtle power
To keep fears away;
Words none else counts weighty,
Meant for me alone,
And to me more precious
Than all jewels known.

I would have you bring me
All your hopes and fears,
All your dreams for witness
Of our loyal years.

I would have you keep me
In a realm apart,
In the high-walled garden
Of your happy heart.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

II.—Do Races Become Senile?

It is often asserted that the gigantic daggers of the latest sabre-tooths not only could not have been useful, but must have interfered with the capture of prey, and so have directly brought about the animal's extinction.

Their long-continued enlargement would then be due to orthogenesis; while their final exaggeration would be a symptom of racial senility. Both the advance and the extinction of the stock would be due to inner causes.

H. G. Wells

But the truth seems to be quite different. The huge teeth of the sabre-tooths are not biting organs in the ordinary sense—almost uniquely among teeth, they are stabbing daggers.

While the true cats were becoming adapted for chasing and devouring the fleet grazing ungulates, the sabre-tooths were evolving along other lines. They were the enemies of the huger and slower browsers (the lumbering tough-skinned giant sloth seems to have been a favorite prey of Smilodon) and their dagger-teeth were evolved to pierce the tough hide of pachyderms.

Their whole structure is beautifully adapted for clinging with the feet and then delivering downward stabbing blows, not for gripping with the jaws.

Now one of the most noteworthy events of the Pleistocene (V. E.) was the change of climate, with the consequent elimination of so many kinds of big heavy mammals and the restriction in range and numbers of the few survivors.

The sabre-tooth of the Pleistocene, far from being a senile type or one that had been forced to overshoot the evolutionary mark, was a beautiful piece of living mechanism evolved to cope with the increasing size and thickening skin of its special prey. And it became extinct not because it ceased to be adapted, but because its prey died out.

Thus, specialization need not be the preface to extinction.

And when it is, the extinction is not brought by some inner ageing of the germ-plasm, but by changes in outer conditions or in living rivals and enemies.

Very specialized types are more easily extinguished than others; but this is because they have moulded themselves too perfectly to the passing world, not because they are "racially old." Their specialty has gone too far for them to turn back before extinction comes.

Racial senility is thus on the same footing with orthogenesis as an explanation of evolutionary happenings. In the great majority of cases there is no need to invoke it, because a simpler and more intelligible explanation will work as well or better.

Sec. 3. The Elan Vital and the Life Force.

The theories so far discussed are none of them what philosophy calls "vitalistic." To account for evolution, they demand no special and mysterious qualities in living matter. Granted that it can reproduce and vary, a few simple forces come automatically into play and evolution by means of selection is the result. There is a machinery underlying evolution as there is a machinery behind chemical combination or the laws of gaseous pressure.

But as we have noted from the outset of this Book, there are other theories in existence whose proffered explanations are not mechanistic at all, but vitalistic.

Of such theories there are many. The most celebrated creative force is Bergson's elan vital or vital urge, which reappears expounded in exaggerated form, a pantomime giant, as the Life Force of Mr. Bernard Shaw.

The Shavian Life Force need not detain us long. It is Lamarckism in caricature. Life evolves, says Mr. Shaw, by trying, by more or less conscious effort. Evolution takes place because all life is purposeful in its degree.

In ourselves the Life Form may be at cross purposes with our conscious but more superficial selves; racial purpose may conflict with individual purpose. But however disguised, however deep below the level of ordinary consciousness, the essence of the Life Force is purpose.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—This is Ladies' Day in this spire of sapience. Any man who doesn't care for the idea can hunt up a nice dock, yoo-hoo for me and I'll give him a lovely running push. With love and kisses! Most of the so-called male geniuses I know should be hopping counters.

And they would be were it not for wives, mothers or sweethearts. But do the ladies get credit? Almost every man will resent the implication that his wife had anything to do with his financial success. He is always self made, the liar. Nobody helped him, no sir-ee!

We columnists, for instance, are so busy blabbing about ourselves we rarely mention patient souls in the background who keep us from appearing in public with one shoe black, the other tan or perhaps a dragging garter. I know one who can pose for a bag of soiled laundry even on Sunday.

And you know what—there are three novelists who cannot comb their hair. Eighty per cent of the geniuses in private are dunkers and gravy soppers. Most of the bright things they say at dinner parties were voiced by their wives across the breakfast table. And don't let them kid you!

I am not hazarding a guess in announcing one of the superlative wits of the banquet boards has his speeches written for him. I happen to know his wife has prepared them for years. And she, bless her heart, is the type they refer to as "an old-fashioned soul and a bit dowdy." She's the keenest wise-cracker in town.

The ladies have been mighty fine sports about it all. They take clip after clip on the chin without a whimper. They will beam when someone gushes: "Your husband is so mentally alert—so brilliant. It must be wonderful to be in his company so much. So stimulating!"

All the time they know the dumbell talks to himself in the bath, can't spell a three-syllable word without flying to the dictionary, sits around mooning like a sick calf when things go wrong, and has to be constantly pepped up with flattery. If he is stimulating, so is ether.

The bravest of men—and if any men have read this far they are suckers—are not nearly so brave as the average woman. It is my slovenly custom to evade issues. In matters of no importance I often say one thing and mean another. But my wife, like most every other wife, faces each problem squarely. Softly feminine, in emergencies she is surprisingly adamantine. She won't be bluffed. And that is true of every other good woman.

* * *

The economic crisis developed a brand of feminine spunk that was the huckleberries. While two-fisted men were fluttering around—what to do! What to do!—over the loss of mere "paper profits," there were women, two of my acquaintance, who accepted the loss of important secretarial jobs without a murmur and became housemaids until the storm blew over.

* * *

I once saw a theater audience gripped in stark terror by a sudden puff of smoke. As it crouched perilously to plunge for exits a young girl as fragile as Lillian Gish scrambled upon the stage and shouted: "If any man leaves this theater before I do he is a miserable coward." And thus was a panic averted.

* * *

The weaker sex—two ha, ha's and a rousing ho ho! I have seen any number of women who could drink a table of men smack under it and clap hands to go places. The inveterate female smoker will puff twice as many cigarets as the inveterate male. This is not particularly to their credit, but it is a physiological fact. Ask any doctor who is braver in affliction.

* * *

I remember when it was said women could not prosper in the hard-boiled world of the theater. It was too rough. But along came Anne Nichols with her mediocre "Abie's Irish Rose" and with little managerial experience made more money than Ziegfeld ever made out of a "Follies."

There is scarcely any calling a woman cannot pursue with the finesse of the man and I have looked into the matter deeply with the possible exception of kettle drumming. I know they excel at the zither, though.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Do you ever compliment the folks at home?

When mother provides your favorite dish—tell her about it.

Jimmy—those good marks at school; show interest and give him a word of praise.

Mary has perhaps done some fine work about the house and would appreciate a kind word from you.

Why take all these things as something you have a right to expect.

They may not be out of the ordinary in the general run of homes.

But knowing an effort has been made to please you should bring commendation from you, just as you like to have your own work appreciated.

If the man over you says a favorable word for your efforts in your daily routine, the day seems brighter, but some way you never think of giving your family such a pleasure.

It is this taking of things as a matter of course with members of your household that makes such a drab sort of atmosphere about some homes.

And wives, aren't you a bit lax about giving Dad a word of cheer when he accomplishes something creditable.
